COUNCIL

plant was constructed in 1972. Some of its equipment must be modernized and upgraded to meet design and safety standards, according to the review presented to council.

The council will also he asked for its input on the future of staffing for the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority. Recently, Keith Carey, the authority's first and only executive director left the position for another job opportunity, which prompted the authority's board to discuss how, or if it should replace Carey, given its needs and very tight budget.

City manager Roh Straebel said at a meeting Tuesday, the authority's board consensus was that it does not need a full-time person to fill the position and will he asking the council Monday for its feedhack on a shared position wherein the person would spend 30 hours per week working for the downtown development authority and 10 hours per week working for the city in an economic development and marketing capacity.

Also among the items that the council is expected to discuss is an update on any donations that may be coming to help offset the city's expenses in the now-discontinued community fireplace project.

When the council voted 4-2 at its May 20 meeting to do away with the fireplace project, the matter of who will pay for the $20,871 in expenses the city has incurred for the project was discussed. Originally the bulk of the cost of the fireplace was to have been paid for hy an anonymous donor, hut with the project being scrapped city officials are expecting the donor won't be paying for a project that never was completed.

At that meeting Straehel and council member Lyle Gennett mentioned that when the controversy over the fireplace first boiled over, several people spoke at public meetings offering to help reimhurse the city for its expenses if the project were halted completely. Gennett specifically said he hopes that those people will now step forward and make good on their offers. At the May 20 meeting new council member Shirley Gibson offered to follow up on some of those possible donors and report back to the council.

As of Wednesday, Strachel said he wasn't aware of any donations that had come for fireplace expenses.

TOWNSHIP

the hunting han might help some, but it's only one step and won't completely solve the problem.

That's especially true, Erratt noted, because much of the northern part of the township is residential and state law requires a 450-foot safety zone around homes in which shooting is not allowed without a homeowner's permission. She said because of the amount of residential property, there probably aren't many areas in that portion of the township that are available for hunting.

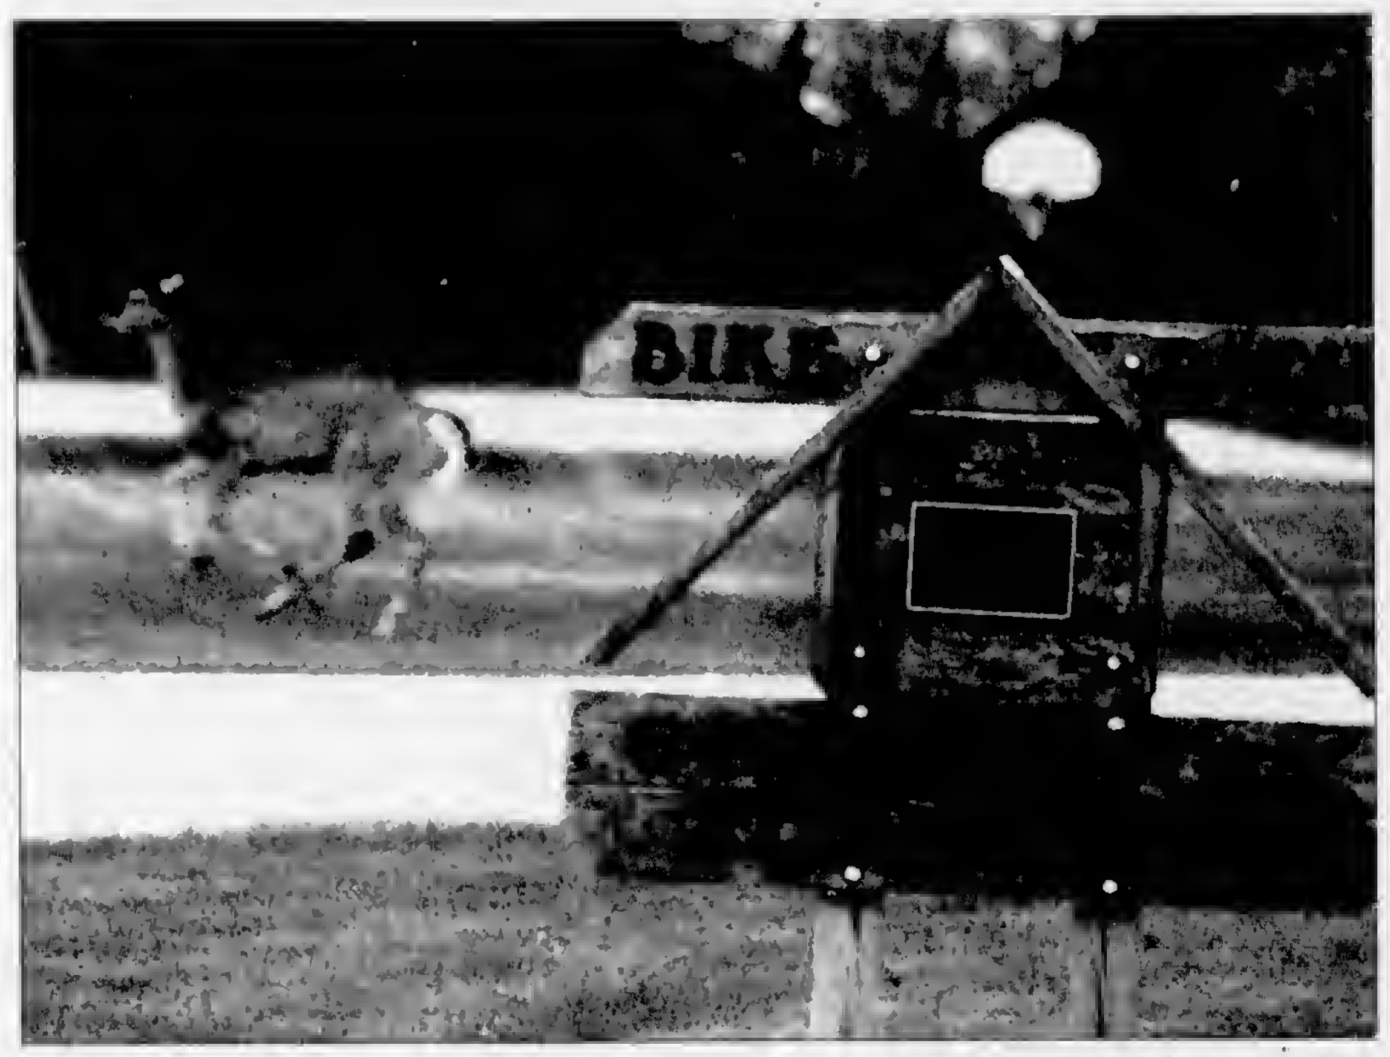
Autenrieth said that solutions such as relocating deer are not effective and are very expensive, but said homeowners can do other things to help cut down on the impact deer have on their properties. Among those options are installing fences, using deer repellents and planting landscaping that is "less tasty" to the deer.

Since the meeting, Autenrieth has provided the township with a list of deer repellent landscaping techniques. The township has posted a link to this list on its website at www.charlevoixtownship.com.

The township board is expected to take up the matter of the hunting han ordinance at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, June 10, at the township hall. At that time the board could choose to do nothing — that is, leave the unenforceable han in place, repeal the han or initiate the process to re-approve the ban, this time following the proper procedures to make it enforceahle.

Also at its May 13 meeting, the board approved a plan to clean and repaint the township's north water tower. Township officials noted that the new paint scheme will be dark gray or black at the base up to half-way up the round top portion of the tank. The reason for the color change, township officials explained, is because in the summertime the cool water in the tank causes condensation on the outside of the tank which creates mold stains on the paint. The darker paint is intended to hide the discoloration. The painting is expected to cost about $83,000.

The board also approved a plan to spend about $5,500 to convert a former township fire truck to serve as the its leaf pickup truck.



STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Shortly after a Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees meeting adjourned at which officials were discussing how to manage the deer population in the north side of the township, a deer runs across the lawn in front of the Charlevoix Church of the Nazarene, just a short distance away from the township hall.

A good start after a perfect ending

Rayders finish season unbeaten in league, notch pre-district win

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

After completing an unbeaten season in the Lake Michigan Conference with a sweep of Kalkaska at the end of last week, the Charlevoix Rayder varsity hasehall team picked up right where it left off with a district tournament win over Elk Rapids nn Tuesday.

The Rayders held off a seventh inning rally to top Elk Rapids, 7-5, Wednesday in a Division III pre-district contest.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 25-2 overall and will face Harbor Springs in a district game at 10 a.m. Saturday, June 1, at Charlevoix High School.

The Rayders jumped out to a 7-0 advantage after the top of the sixth inning before Elk Rapids scored two runs in the sixth and tacked on three more runs in the seventh.

"Overall, I was satisfied with the way we played, hut we let our guards down and Elk Rapids took advantage and got a couple of runs late," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "It was a good start though and you'll take the win anyway you can get it in the districts."

Nate Moon paced the Rayders offensively with a pair of hits including a home run and a double, while Austin Putman added a double and drove in two runs.

Also for the Rayders, Noah Certa, Shane Sutherland and J.J. Bottomley had a hit apiece, while Certa drove in two runs.

"Nate Moon hit two tremendous shots for us," Telgenhof said. "One a home run over the leftfield fence and the other a double just missed going over. Freshman Austin Putman also had a huge hit in the bottom of the sixth doubling in a run and then coming around to score. We tacked on those two runs which ended up being huge."

Tommy Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out seven, walked three and allowed four hits and five runs over seven innings.

"Another key moment was a great catch by Logan Eckhardt in leftfield," Telgenhof said. "Their batter hit a shot which looked like it was in the gap and was going to score two runs. Instead Logan got a great break on the ball, made the catch and saved a couple of runs."

In the other district semi-final game, East Jordan will take on Boyne City at noon. The winner of the Charlevoix-Harbor and Boyne City-East Jordan games will the square-off at 2 p.m. for the district title.

Charlevoix clinched at least tie for the league title last Tuesday when they one the first game of a double-header with Traverse City St. Francis. The nightcap was suspended because of bad weather late in the game with the Rayders clinging to a lead. But the Rayders were awarded the league championship outright the following day when St. Francis announced it would forfeit the suspended game. On Friday the Rayders removed all douht ahout who should own the league title when they swept Kalkaska, 10-4, 8-1, in a league doubleheader to wrap up the regular season at 24-2 overall, 14-0 league.

Charlevoix's 24 wins is a school record. Charlevoix's 1980 team went 23-8 and the 1982 team was 23-12.

"I was very happy with the way things went (Friday)," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said.

"There was no school and (the game) was a 2 p.m. start so I thought that might throw the guys off their routine, hut we won comfortably and were able to get everyone in on both ends of the doubleheader."

In the opener, Shane Sutherland was the winning pitcher as he struck out seven, walked one and allowed two runs on six hits over five innings. Hunter Cox pitched in relief.

Offensively for the Rayders, Tag McCreadie had two hits, while Sutherland added a double. Also collecting a hit apiece were Noah Certa, Will Telgenhof, Luke Klinger, Tommy Zipp, Nate Moon and KeNen Borths.

Klinger, Sutherland and McCreadie both drove in a pair of runs, while Borths had a RBI. The Rayders scored four runs in the first inning and added five more in the fifth.

With the pitching win, Sutherland improved to 6-0 on the season.

In the second game, the Rayders scored three runs in the third, four in the second and added another in the fourth.

Nate Moon led the way offensively with three hits including two doubles and a triple, while McCreadie,Certa and Zipp had two hits.

Klinger, Sutherland and Devin Largent all had one hit apiece. Moon drove in three runs, while Sutherland had two RBI.

Zipp was the winning pitcher as he struck out five, walked two and allowed one run on five hits.

Moon worked two innings in relief and struck out two, walked two and allowed just one hit.

Zipp improved to 7-0 on the season.

"Tag McCreadie is one of our two seniors and it was great to see him have such a great day at the plate on our senior day," Telgenhof said.

"The guys used the same formula they have all season, aggressive baserunning, big innings and limiting the number of free bases we give to our opponents."

Rayders whip Elks in District opener

Rams up next in semi-final Saturday

STEVE ZUCKER

The Charlevoix Rayder softball team wasted little time proving they're serious about winning their district this season, as they downed Elk Rapids 11-0 in their Division III pre-district meeting in Charlevoix on Wednesday.

Katie Hybl started the game pitching for the Rayders, throwing seven strikeouts in three innings, with no hits allowed.

Yogi Hang came in for the final two innings and the save for Charlevoix allowing one hit, with two strikeouts.

"It's exciting. The girls came out ready to play," Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman said. "We hit the ball well and we played good defensively."

> "We hit the ball well and we played good defensively."

At the plate for the Rayders, Jennifer Archey went 4-for-4 with a triple, while Hybl brought in a pair of hits, including a home run. Kelsey Pischner had a double and a single. Olivia Certa had two hits, with Paige Bradley adding a double. Hang, Nicole Peterson and Gabby Gray each had one hit.

With the win against the Elks, Charlevoix, which finished the regular season at 19-9 overall and won the Lake Michigan Conference with a 12-2 in league record, moves on to play Harbor Springs in a semi-final game on Saturday, June 1, in Charlevoix at noon. In the other District semi-final game, Boyne City will take on East Jordan at 10 a.m The winner of the two semi-final games will play for the District title at 2 p.m.

SOCCER

Rayders notch first round District win

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

One goal was all the Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team needed to slip past Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy, 1-0, in a Division IV soccer contest Tuesday at Burt Lake Northern Michigan Christian Academy.

With the win, the Rayders improve to 17-5 overall and will face Leland in a district semifinal at 6 p.m. Thursday, May 30, at Traverse City West High School.

Freshman forward Kelsey Engstrom found the back of the net at the 20 minute, 45 second mark in the second half on a pass from the corner from junior Kaitlin Hinkley.

"We had plenty of good opportunities, but just had trouble finding the back of the net," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "Burt Lake's keeper was outstanding against us.

"Defensively we played a great game."

Sophomore goalkeeper Gloria Greene finished with three saves in earning the shutout in goal.

The Rayders took 17 shots on goal.

Rayders defeat Rams

Tuesday's win in the opening round of the District tournament comes on the heels of a end-of-season win on Thursday, May 23.

With the Harbor Springs girls' soccer team already having wrapped up the Lake Michigan Conference title the day before, Thursday's meeting with Charlevoix didn't come with as many implications as had been hoped.

That didn't stop the Rayders from coming out fast and strong to seal a second place finish and steal a 1-0 win from the Rams in the final regular season game of the season under the lights at Kipke Field.

"I was very pleased with how fast we were to the ball," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said.

"We played a very good game winning many of the balls both in the air and on the ground."

The lone goal of the game for the Rayders came from junior Katie Kiteley, who connected on a pass from Elizabeth Way minutes into the game.

Splitting time in goal for the Rayders were Gloria Greene and Bailee Stevens, each posting a shutout.

Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi came away impressed with his girls despite the loss.

With the league wrapped up, Fantozzi played a number of younger girls, while giving veterans the night off.

"There was no need for us to put our cards on the table. We've already come off a tough game where there were some injuries," Fantozzi said.

"For me, it was more of a learning experience. We definitely learned a lot about Charlevoix."

Charlevoix finishes the season 16-5 overall and 12-2 in the league, while Harbor went 17-2, 13-1.

Scholten credited the defensive efforts of Carolena Elowsky, Sydney Carlson, Katie Paramo, Shelby Robinson and Leah Davis.

JUNIOR GOLF

Junior Golf program registration set for June 8

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Officials with the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Program will host registration for this summer's Junior Golf instructional program Saturday, June 8 at the City of Charlevoix's Charlevoix Golf Club.

To participate, children must be at least 8 years of age and no older than 17.

Registration requires a parent or guardian be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn of the family commitment necessary for participants to successfully benefit from the program.

Youth 12-17 years of age should register at 10:45 a.m. and those ages 8-11 are scheduled to sign up at 11:45 a.m.

There is a per-lesson fee of $5 or a $50 season plan option that pays for all scheduled lessons and play days.

This year marks is the 18th year that the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association has offered the program to area youth. Sessions teach golf fundamentals, meet two or three times weekly and runs through July 13.

The program has drawn acclaim from the National Junior Golf Association when they selected the local program as one of the top 13 of such programs in the country.

Pros from local courses that will make up the teaching staff include: Steve Braun and Marty Joy from the Belvedere Club, Joan Waha from Ye Nyne Olde Holles, Keith Grunch from the Charlevoix Country Club, and Scott Blechel formally from the city's Charlevoix Golf Club. The emphasis will again be on learning golf rules and procedures proper fundamentals and techniques, and course etiquette.

Lessons rotate and will be take place at each of the Belvedere, Charlevoix Country Club, the Charlevoix Golf Club, and Antrim Dells courses. In addition, there will be Sunday evening "fun" play with a variety of events for advanced players, scheduled for the Belvedere course.

Director Dean Davenport also reminded parents, "We will again have scholarships available based on need for families where the fee may be a hardship with details available at registration. We also will again have loaner clubs available. We want every youngster to have this golfing and educational opportunity."

Program officials noted that additional adult volunteers are needed to work in the mentoring program so that whenever participants play a few holes to conclude each lesson they have an adult monitoring them. Those new "mentors" should attend the registration session or call (231) 547-6433.

Black Forest at Wilderness Valley

Wilderness Valley at Black Forest is just one of our Golf Club Card partners:

Local golfers refer to Wilderness Valley as the "hidden gem." The Watrous-designed course does not garner the publicity of its much-tougher Black Forest sister layout, but it's plenty "hard enough for most people," according to David Smith, founder and owner. He also says, "Good players will have a good time."

The fairways appear generous but frequently narrow in the prime landing areas, and many of the holes bend left or right, putting a premium on accuracy. The routing is resort-friendly, and many of the greens can be reached by bouncing the ball rather than requiring a carry over one of the 45 bunkers. Women, seniors, and other players with a low trajectory ball flight especially appreciate this feature.

The course plays about 6,500 yards from the tips (126 USGA men's Slope Rating), 6,000 yards from the white tees (121), and under 5,000 yards from the reds (115 women's Slope Rating). Par is 35 out and 36 in for 71. Yardage blocks are provided on the par-3 tee boxes, and color-coded 100, 150 and 200-yard markers are in the center of the fairways of all longer holes. The 9th hole and 18th holes come back to the clubhouse, so it's feasible to play a quick nine.

TENNIS

Rayder racquets take 3rd at conference championships

The Charlevoix Rayder tennis team overcame difficult weather conditions to notch a third place finish at the Lake Michigan Conference Championship tennis match Tuesday — the team's final event of the season — at Boyne Mountain.

The Rayders finished fifth at the regional event last week.

"All the teams in our conference overcame all the obstacles," Rayder coach Audra Randall said. "We started at Boyne Mountain knowing the limitations on weather and started right off with eight game pro sets for the first round. Again the coaches realizing we needed to continue with this abbreviated method to complete our conference championships. No one is particularly fond of this choice, but it was what needed. The weather still went had a little earlier that expected and we then decided we could still continue but at an indoor facility, Bay Fitness and Tennis."

At No. 1 doubles, Randall said Cassidy Peebles/Karley Pearsall, both seniors, left everything on the court making it to the conference finals for their flight. They first defeated East Jordan 8-2, in semi-finals defeated Harbor Springs 8-2, which put them in the finals against Traverse City St. Francis.

"The last time these two teams met, we played very well against TCSF in the semis at regionals almost getting to the finals as well. Today Peebles/Pearsall had a high level focus but fell to TSCF in the finals 6-1,6-1. The whole team was very proud of them as the played their final matches of their tennis season."

Five of the other flights made it to the semi-finals in their flights. Seeded fourth, At No. 1 singles, Madi Carey defeated Claire Wellman of Boyne City 8-2, and was defeated in the semi-finals 8-0, by Amanda Bandrowski of St. Francis. Seeded third at No. 2 singles, Lexi Barnes defeated Elk Rapids 8-0, and was defeated in the semis 8-3 by Harbor Springs.

Third-seeded at No. 3 singles, Kelsea Stevens defeated East Jordan 8-6, and was defeated 8-3 by St. Francis.

At No. 4 singles, Taylor Markgraf defeated Boyne City 8-3, then was defeated in the semi-finals 8-1 by St. Francis.

Third seeded at No. 2 doubles, Mallory Murray/Emily Roloff defeated Grayling 8-2, and fell in the semis against St. Francis, 8-1.

At No. 4 doubles, Cassis McCraney/Carly Scholey defeated Elk Rapids 8-5, falling to St. Francis, 8-1.

At No. 4 doubles Ellie Ackerman/Hannah Ennis were defeated by Harbor Springs 8-2 in their opening round but played very stable for such a young team, Randall noted.

"The team took third place in the conference championship. As a coach I am very proud of this group of girls for their commitment to their team and working hard to make this a team a quality team in character and the game of tennis."

NOTES

Field dedication set for June 9

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Township officials will dedicate the newly reconstructed baseball field at the township's Shanahan Field with a special dedication ceremony at 1 p.m. on Sunday, June 9.

The field will be named in honor of former township supervisor H. Dale Glass, who is expected to be on hand for the ceremony and my throw out the ceremonial first pitch, current township supervisor Chuck Center said.

A Charlevoix Little League Junior Division game will follow the dedication ceremony.

The field was constructed last fall, but township, but because of the late spring, township officials have been waiting to begin using the field for games.

Youth Football camp set for June 10-12

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Rayder Youth Football Camp will take place Monday, June 10-Wednesday, June 12 at Kipke Field.

There will be two sessions daily with a session from 9-10:30 a.m. for fifth through eighth grade students and 10:30 a.m.-noon for kindergarten through fourth grade students.

Organiers said the camp will emphasize football fundamentals and will be led by new Rayder head varsity football coach Ron Bindy, other members of the Rayder football coaching staff and Rayder football players.

The cost is $20 for the three-day camp.

Registration forms will be sent home with students at Charlevoix-area schools and are available at the Charlevoix Elementary School and Charlevoix Middle School Offices.

Participants may also register at 8:30 a.m. on the first day of camp day at a cost of $25 per participant.

All proceeds from the camp will benefit the Charlevoix Rayder football program.

For more information contact John Haan at jhaan@rayder.net.

ADVERTISING MANAGER

News-Review

The Petoskey News-Review, a media company in northern Michigan, is seeking an Advertising Manager.

We offer a wonderful and well-respected daily newspaper, and also numerous niche and web products. We're looking for someone to lead our advertising retail team, track sales, create and communicate opportunities for sales, provide training and handle major accounts.

The successful candidate will be high-energy, innovative, and motivated with a "can-do" attitude. They will be willing to provide memorable customer service, and be passionate about our print and digital media products. The ability to direct and motivate a sales team, while providing first-class training and leadership, is essential. We're looking for someone with a proven track record of success who embraces new and existing technologies, can make presentations, think on their feet and isn't afraid to roll up their sleeves.

The position offers a comprehensive benefit package and excellent earnings potential.

Our parent company, Schurz Communications, Inc., is a 141-year-old, family-owned organization, with cable, television, radio and newspaper properties throughout the United States

Interested candidates please visit

NOTICE OF
MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

The Mortgage described below is in default: Mortgage made by Susan M. Barr-Stemen, as Trustee of Susan M. Barr Trust dated July 11, 1995, as Mortgagor, to Business Lenders, LLC, a Delaware limited liability company, as Mortgagee, dated July 13, 2006 and recorded July 19, 2006 in Liber 756, Page 767, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Mortgage"). The Mortgage was assigned by Business Lenders, LLC to TSKEE Enterprises, LLC, a Florida limited liability company, as Assignee, by virtue of an Assignment of Mortgage dated February 14, 2013 and recorded March 5, 2013 in Liber 1022, Page 498, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan (the "Assignment of Mortgage"). The legal description contained in the Assignment of Mortgage was corrected by an Affidavit of Scrivener's Error dated March 27, 2013 and recorded April 4, 2013 in Liber 1025, Page 533, Charlevoix County Records, Michigan. The balance owing on the Mortgage is $797,476.33 at the time of this Notice. The Mortgage contains a power of sale and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity has been instituted to recover the debt secured by the Mortgage, or any part of the Mortgage. Take notice that on June 7, 2013 at 11:00 a.m., local time, or any adjourned date thereafter, the Mortgage will be foreclosed by sale at public auction to the highest bidder at public vendue at the place of holding the Circuit Court within Charlevoix County. The Assignee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt secured by the Mortgage as stated above (which includes all costs and expenses paid by the Assignee to collect the debt and to protect its interest in the property, all as provided in the Mortgage), plus interest on the amount due at the rate of 2.25% above the Prime Rate as published in the Wall Street Journal, (currently 5.50% per annum at the time of this Notice) and any amount subsequently paid by the Assignee to protect its interest in the property. The property to be sold at foreclosure is all of the real estate located in the Townships of Melrose and Chandler, Charlevoix County, Michigan, described more particularly as follows: PARCEL 1: That part of Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, Chandler Township, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, Melrose Township, more fully described as: Beginning at a point in the centerline of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13, 18, 19 and 24; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 361.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said centerline on the arc of a 400 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence North 448.80 feet; thence North 34 degrees 35 minutes East 256.66 feet; thence North 23 degrees 54 minutes East 284.48 feet; thence North 12 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 336.12 feet; thence East 248.56 feet; thence South 06 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds West 428.54 feet; thence South 88 degrees 39 minutes 15 seconds East 393.42 feet; thence South 03 degrees 35 minutes 15 seconds East 227.80 feet; thence South 02 degrees 46 minutes 45 seconds West 170.12 feet; thence South 14 degrees 43 minutes 30 seconds East 328.43 feet; thence South 37 degrees 17 minutes 45 seconds East 161.25 feet; thence South 39 degrees 11 minutes East 182.11 feet; thence South 20 degrees 49 minutes East 201.80 feet; thence South 34 degrees 42 minutes East 300.70 feet; thence South 11 degrees 47 minutes West 96.96 feet; thence South 42 degrees 23 minutes 30 seconds East 114.95 feet; thence South 17 degrees 55 minutes 10 seconds East 181.42 feet; thence South 18 degrees 52 minutes 40 seconds West 374.11 feet; thence South 00 degrees 03 minutes East 1197.77 feet; thence South 89 degrees 10 minutes 30 seconds West 629.60 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the centerline of Spring Valley Road 1106.55 feet to the Point of Beginning: EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 18 and 19, Township 33 North, Range 4 West, and Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, for the Point of Beginning; thence South 00 degrees 12 minutes East along the town line 200 feet; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West 375 feet; thence North 00 degrees 12 minutes West 200 feet; thence South 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds East along the centerline of Spring Valley Road to the Point of Beginning; being a part of the Northeast 1/4 of Section 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West; AND FURTHER EXCEPTING THEREFROM the following described parcel: That part of Sections 13 and 24, Township 33 North, Range 5 West, described as: Beginning at a point in the center line of Spring Valley Road which is South 00 degrees 12 minutes East 807.02 feet from the corner common to said Sections 13 and 24; thence North 69 degrees 05 minutes 30 seconds West along the center line of Spring Valley Road 736.44 feet; thence Northwesterly along said center line on the center line on the arc of a 400.00 foot radius curve to the right, a distance of 110.51 feet (the chord of said arc being North 61 degrees 10 minutes 37 seconds West 110.16 feet); thence North 10 degrees 54 minutes 10 seconds East 284.00 feet; thence North 00 degrees 40 minutes 30 seconds East 290.78 feet; thence South 70 degrees 33 minutes 30 seconds East 257.17 feet; thence South 03 degrees 46 minutes 30 seconds West 434.76 feet; thence North 87 degrees 38 minutes 30 seconds East 219.94 feet; thence North 15 degrees 37 minutes 30 seconds East 448.47 feet; thence West 29.66 feet; thence North 615.45 feet; thence North 03 degrees 30 minutes 40 seconds East 484.11 feet; thence North 214.52 feet; thence North 89 degrees 30 minutes 10 seconds East 170.34 feet; thence South to the Point of Beginning. Charlevoix High names Senior Scholars

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix High School officials have named seven members of the class of 2013 as Senior Scholars."

In recent years the school has been using the Senior Scholar program in lieu of naming a valedictorian and salutatorian. Students qualify as a Senior Scholar through a formula that factors in their grade-point-averages and their ACT test scores.

The school's graduation ceremony for the will take place at 2 p.m., Sunday, June 2, in the high school gym.

Name: Crystal Batdorff
GPA: 3.772
Parents' namas: Dannis Batdorff and Sharon Jannax

Batdorff

High school activities/honors: Crystal has participated in Rayder basketball, track and field, and cross country as well as the Charlevoix High School Prayer Group, Model United Nations and Freshman Student Government. Combined grades and standard test scores earned her a place on the Lake Michigan Academic All-Conference Team.

Plans for after graduation: In the fall, Crystal will attend North Central Michigan College studying mathematics.

Nama: Sydney Elaina Carlson
GPA: 3.825
Parents' Namas: Boogie and Lisa Carlson

Carlson

High school activities/honors: Sydney has participated in basketball for four years, serving as a team captain and earning All-Conference and All-Area honors. She has also served as a team captain on the girls' soccer team, earning All-Conference and All District as well. Sydney is an involved member of the National Honor Society, and has spent time coaching fifth and sixth grade girls basketball. She is senior class co-president alongside Jarod Reibel, and helped to coordinate many of the senior class' homecoming activities. Sydney's combined grades and standardized test scores earned her a spot on the Academic All-Conference team.

Plans for after graduation: Sydney will be attending Grand Valley State University and is currently undecided on what she will be studying.

Name: Carolana Elowsky
GPA: 3.994
Parents' namas: Grant and Bridgat Elowsky

Elowsky

High school activities/honors: Carolena has been a Rayder athlete on the volleyball, basketball, cross country and soccer teams. She earned the girls' soccer All-State honorable mention award and was a team captain her senior year. Carolena is co-president of the student council and also an active member of the National Honor Society and the Quiz Bowl team. She has volunteered at Red Cross blood drives and clothing and food drives in her community.

Plans for after graduation: Carolena will attend Michigan State University in the fall and she is currently undecided on what she will study.

Name: Jarod Reibel
GPA: 3.982
Parents' namas: Tharon and Molly Raibel

Reibel

High school activities/honors: Jarod has been an active member in Rayder athletics, participating in football, basketball, and track and field all four years. Jarod is also a co-president of the senior class as well as a co-president of the National Honor Society. He also participated in Quiz Bowl. His combined GPA and standard tests scores earned him a spot on the Lake Michigan Academic All-Conference Team. Outside of school, Jarod has helped with youth basketball and football camps during the summer.

Plans for after graduation: Jarod will attend Grand Valley State University where he plans on studying mechanical engineering.

Name: Corbin Turkalson
GPA: 3.969
Parents' names: Chris and Tonya Turkalson

Turkelson

High school activities/honors: Corbin has played varsity football all four years, and received all conference honorable mention his senior year. He has also been active in the varsity golf and basketball program. Corbin participated in Quiz Bowl for the past two years and received Academic all-conference.

Plans for after graduation: Corbin will be attending Grand Valley State University in the fall where he plans on studying business.

Name: Christopher Young
GPA: 3.875
Parents Names: John and Anna Young

Young

High school activities/honors: Chris has performed in Charlevoix Performing Arts productions all four years and held a lead role in their production of Willy Wonka. He has also run track and field for four years and has earned three varsity letters in the sport so far. He has run cross country for three year and has earned his varsity letter all three years and has won honorable mention all-conference twice. As well as sports, Chris has participated in Quiz Bowl, Model United Nations, FIRST Robotics, martial arts, Sea Scouts, and is an Eagle Scout.

Plans for after graduation: Chris will attend Michigan Technological University where he plans to pursue a degree in mechanical engineering.

Nama: Maura Brandi
GPA: 3.851
Parents' Namas: Richard Brandi and Maureen Radke

Brandi

High school activities/honors: Maura has played Rayder soccer for all four years of high school and joined the cross country team her senior year. She has been involved in a significant amount of volunteer activities such as mentoring in Peer-to-Peer, being an instructor at Challenge Mountain, helping set up art shows and volunteering at the Charlevoix Public Library. Among other things, she was also involved in National Honor Society and enjoys expressing her creativity through the Charlevoix Visual Arts program. This year she earned a spot on the Academic All-Conference Team because of her test scores and grade point average.

Plans for After Graduation: Maura will be attending Michigan State University in the fall to study environmental engineering.

Lions award scholarships

The Charlevoix Lions Club recently presented its 2013 Irish Coleman and Don Meggison Scholarship Awards to four Charlevoix High School seniors.

Seniors Connor Currier and Abigail Romano both were awarded the Don Meggison Community Service Scholarships and seniors Sydney Carlson and Jarod Reibel the Irish Coleman Scholarships.

The scholarships are named in honor of Lion Stuart "Irish" Coleman who was both a teacher and coach at Charlevoix High School from 1926 to 1963 and Lion Don Meggison, who was a life-long Charlevoix resident who also had been extensively involved in the community.

The recipients of these annual awards do not apply for them, but are selected based upon the criteria of students who win at least six varsity sport letters during their high school career and have the two highest grade point averages.

"These scholarships represent both body and mind of these exceptional students. The $750 dollar scholarships will assist these bright students in their collegiate efforts," Lions officials said in a news release.

Lions officials noted that these scholarships happen with the assistance of the Charlevoix Community Foundation who has invested much of the Lion's club donations over the years to award these annual scholarships.

School officials propose barely-balanced budget

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix school administrators scrimped and saved, and proposed a balanced budget to the board of education — though one that would leave only $25,000 in the fund balance at the end of the 2013-2014 school year.

Board members will decide whether to approve the budget as early as their regular meeting on Monday, June 17.

Superintendent Bob Gendron said getting out of financial trouble could be a three-five year process.

"There's not a lot of fat in this (budget), I can tell you that," said Gendron. "At the same time, we can't be done. $25,000 (in savings) is not a lot of money. We have to continually work through this. Will this get us through June 30? Yes. Is it totally operational and we can run the district easier? Yes, even if nothing else came in. But that's not the position I want to be in."

At its regular meeting in May, the board voted to lay off several full-time and part-time teaching and support staff.

The high school will return to a semester system, and will offer physics every other year, alternating with the newly-added advanced biology, said principal Suzanne Klinger.

The high school's performing arts classes will be cut and added as an after-school club.

The proposed budget creates a new

Thompson to retire from fire department

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After 39 years serving on the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, fire chief Curt Thompson is hanging up his turnout gear for good on June 30.

Thompson made the announcement official when he submitted his letter of resignation to the township board at its May meeting.

Thompson, 72, has served on the department since about six months after it was formed in 1974 and for about 30 of those 39 years, he has been its chief.

He said his interest in fire fighting started when he was a little boy living on the outskirts of Battle Creek, about a block away from the community's fire station.

"It seems like all my life, we always lived near a fire station, seeing the fire trucks and hearing the sirens has always been part of my life," Thompson said.

He moved with his family to East Jordan in 1950, got married in 1960, moved to Petoskey for six or seven years and ultimately settled in Charlevoix Township in 1970. Thompson said a few years later, he was approached by long-time and well-

Council continues to wrangle fireplace fallout

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

If you like the way East Park's Plaza B looks now, you'll probably like the decision the Charlevoix City Council made this week about what to do in the plaza now that the controversial outdoor community fireplace project has been scuttled.

At its regular semi-monthly meeting Monday, the council voted 5-0 (council member Greg Stevens was absent from the meeting) to do nothing more with the plaza than to place brick pavers in the semi-circle center that is now dirt covered by wood chips.

The vote came following a public hearing that the council had scheduled Monday to take public comment on the matter. Although there were more than 30 audience members in attendance at the meeting, not one of them spoke during the public hearing.

Council member Gabe Campbell — one of three council members who ousted three council members in a recall over the fireplace issue in May — said, "Most of the people I talked to don't want anything there. I don't think they should put a tree back in there. It opens up the view and during Venetian (Festival) that sidewalk gets pretty crowded and it opens up more room. Brick pavers makes sense to me."

Council member Lyle Gennett said he had spoken with city public works superintendent Pat Elliott who said that because the substantial foundation that was poured for the fireplace still remains just under the surface at the site, the pavers might have a slight crown in the middle of the plaza.

Also, as part of its motion to direct city staff to put brick pavers in the plaza, the council gave city staff the OK to set up a program that would allow people to buy bricks with names engraved on them, to be placed in the plaza.

City manager Rob Straebel said the city has enough pavers left over from other projects in the park to fill the space. He said staff would use the existing pavers to fill the space until the brick program is set up and purchases begin.

But bricks weren't the only lingering fireplace-related matter that the council considered at the meeting.

Donation update

The council heard an update from council member Shirley Gibson about the status of any donations that might be coming in to the city to help offset the $20,000 in costs it incurred in the now-defunct fireplace project.

Gibson said she had recently spoken with Chip Terrill, one of the many vocal opponents of the fireplace project and one of several people who offered earlier council meetings to donate money to the city to offset already-incurred costs, if the project were to go away.

Gibson reported that Terrill was not interested in raising all the money,

EJ fireworks display draws scrutiny

ZAC BRITTON
Northern Michigan Review

EAST JORDAN — Fourth of July did not get moved up by a month in southern Charlevoix County.

It may have seemed like that late Sunday, June 2 and early Monday, June 3 when a fireworks display erupted, making more than a few area residents question what was going on and grumble about being woken up.

Turns out it was part of the weekend-long celebration for 2013 graduates at East Jordan High School.

"A friend of mine even heard it across (Lake Charlevoix)," Abbey Etler, a South Arm Township resident who claims to have been awakened at 12:30 a.m. said. "I was asleep, as I'm sure many people were, but I wasn't irate about it. I just thought it was inconsiderate."

East Jordan High School principal Tammy Jackson said she took calls regarding the display on Monday. Although the weekend of events highlighting Sunday's graduation ceremony were not sanctioned specifically by the school or the district, it's not the first time fireworks have been used to celebrate graduation.

"I believe it has been done before in the past," she said, noting a parent organization planned the weekend's events. "That is put on by a legit company, not shot off by a bunch of kids privately."

The display was put on by Great Lakes Fireworks, who said "we were glad to do it, helping kids celebrate graduating with something to do besides partying."

According to Bruce Tyree, owner of Great Lake Fireworks, the eight-minute display was shot off just before midnight from shore in Eveline Township while graduates were on a boat on Lake Charlevoix. Neighboring properties were informed of the event, according to Tyree, and were supportive. He also said the event was permitted through Eveline Township with Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet Central Dispatch as well as the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office being informed of the display.

The company was contracted by East Jordan Parents For Alternative Choices.

Jackson also said that the weekend festivities included multiple events at Boyne Mountain — such as zip line rides, visiting Avalanche Bay and taking a chairlift ride — along with viewing a senior video at Bellaire Theater and a boat ride on the Voyager out of Charlevoix

East Jordan Police Chief Don Boehm Jr. and Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider, each said they had no knowledge of the fireworks display. Officials at Charlevoix-Cheboygan-Emmet Central Dispatch Authority reported receiving two fireworks-related calls over the weekend in Charlevoix County, including one in Boyne City.

"I expected with it being late at night, there may be (complaints)," said Tyree. "We spoke with the neighbors, the sheriff's office and 9-1-1 dispatch."

Informed of the reason, Etler was understanding — to a point.

"I don't want them to get in trouble, they're kids and they should be celebrating," she explained. "Something like this could have repercussions, even those kids should be celebrating their accomplishments. Why couldn't it have been earlier?"

EPA to start testing basements for poison vapor

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Owners for about half of the roughly 60 properties that could be affected by soil vapors emanating from contamination located beneath a portion of the city of Charlevoix have agreed to allow for further testing on their properties

That was the word from U.S. Environmental Protection Agency officials near the end of an informational open house for the community at the Charlevoix Public Library Wednesday.

In addition to sharing information, during the open house EPA officials were hoping to collect as many testing consent forms as possible in advance of further testing is expected to begin the week of Monday, June 10, said Dave Novak, community involvement coordinator for the Charlevoix Superfund site.

These access agreements will allow the EPA to test on affected homeowners' and business properties and in their basements to see if vapor from contaminated soil is intruding into those basements.

"Before we can do any testing of any private property, we need a signed access agreement by the property owner," said Novak. "It's important that we get these."

Novak said property owners who received an access form and haven't yet turned it in can still do so by calling Novak and he will come and pick up the form next week.

"It's that important. We can stand and look at the property all day long, but we won't be able to do anything unless we have that form," said Novak.

The EPA mailed about 60 access agreements for about 100 different locations — two or three of which might be on the same property.

The EPA workers will test the properties for the presence of vapor, either by drilling holes in the homeowner's yard or basement. If the EPA finds contaminated soil that can turn into a gas near a building, then they may test the soil below the building itself, according to an EPA fact sheet.

If they test in the homeowner's basement, they will drill a hole — about an inch in diameter — in the basement floor and place a probe into the hole in order to collect vapors.

If the EPA finds that there are vapors underneath the basement, workers will install a system that extracts the vapors, and the vapors exit the house and dissipate into the air. If the EPA finds no vapors, workers will patch the hole.

The EPA will pay all costs incurred — for the drilling, any patchwork needed and for installation and maintenance of the system.

"If we bore a hole in the basement and it comes up negative, we fill the hole back up and we patch it," said Novak. "We're not going to leave a hole in the basement and walk away."

The soil vapors are coming from two contaminants that leached into the soil through the early 1980s from two dry cleaning businesses and a tool and die shop. Soil beneath one dry cleaner on the corner of Grant and Antrim streets, another dry cleaner on the corner of Bridge and Hurlbut streets and a tool and die shop on Lincoln Avenue between Grant and State streets was contaminated with trichloroethylene and tetrachloroethylene. Both are liquids used in dry cleaning, and both have been found to cause cancer, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Protection.

If breathed in high levels, tetrachloroethylene can cause upper respiratory tract irritation.

According to statement from the EPA for a News-Review story published in May about the site, the EPA found samples above federally-accepted levels during sampling it did in August of 2012.

The sampling will take place from an area one third mile square, north of Garfield Avenue and bordered by Bridge Street, just west of Grant Street.

More than ever, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful needs community's help

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The petunias have been planted.

In the past, that's generally where most of the need for the community's elbow grease in Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's Operation Petunia has ended each year.

But this year the organization that has kept the five miles of U.S. 31 lined with petunias for the past 31 years will need more help from the community.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board president Aaron Wilkin said the problem is the same one that has been dogging the program for the past several years: weeds.

For many years the organization paid service clubs and other groups to tend to the weeding duties. Typically it cost the organization between $16,000-$18,000 a summer. However, in 2010, budget constraints prompted the city of Charlevoix to cut its contribution to the organization by $20,000. That left the organization looking for another, less-expensive way to weed the flower beds.

The organization found the answer in a program it worked out with Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider, who arranged to have a work detail of county jail inmates attend to the weeding. That program worked well for the past three years, and saved the organization thousands each year. However, Wilkin said, changes in the rules governing work crews, and lower numbers of inmates at the jail have made the inmate weeding program not practical this year.

"Last fall we reached out to booster groups, organizations and many landscaping firms and no one had any interest in taking it on," Wilkin said.

So, this year the organization is hoping to tap into its vast once-a-year labor pool a couple additional times to handle the weeding duties.

To that end, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has scheduled a community weeding event from 4-7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 25.

Wilkin said the weeding effort will work very similarly to planting day. During the early to mid-afternoon crews will block off the outside two lanes of U.S. 31 with cones allowing people to safely pull weeds from the flower beds without vehicles whizzing by just inches away. And also similar to planting day, those volunteering during the weeding event will be given tickets to partake in a strawberry social which Friske's Farm Market will host in East Park when all the weeding is done.

Wilkin said the board is hopeful that a large turnout for the event will make it go as quickly and smoothly as planting day typically goes, and in a matter of a few hours, all the work will be done.

"If people want to continue to see petunias in Charlevoix, we need their help," Wilkin said. "This is really our only option, but if we get a good turnout, it shouldn't take any longer than planting."

Wilkin said the organization plans to do another weeding event in early August (tentatively, Aug. 6). He added the group would like to do one closer to the start of Venetian Festival, but the consensus of the group was that there are so many events and the town is so busy in July, it would be difficult to schedule such an event during that time frame.

In the meantime, the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful Board continues to work on what it hopes could be a long-term solution to the weeds and other problems the display has encountered in recent years, such as flooding and die off from fertilizer and herbicide over-spray: switching to baskets — 300 of them to be exact to hold the annual petunia display. Wilkin said the group is still trying to work out the best type of post from which to hang the 80-pound baskets. When it does — hopefully by June 17 when the rest of the baskets for the downtown area are slated to go up — the group will place six prototype baskets at the top of the south Bridge Street hill, to give people an idea of what a basket-based display might look like.

Wilkin added that if this year's experiment with the community weeding events works well, it could buy the organization a few more years of using the roadside beds.

Finally, Wilkin noted that there are two more things that residents can do to help with this year's display.

First, he noted that it would be helpful if residents and businesses along the route did their part by keeping the grass trimmed along the beds between the sidewalk and the street.

Secondly, he said while donations to the organization have picked up some in recent weeks, contributions are still off from most years at this time by about 10 percent.

Anyone wishing to contribute to Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's Operation Petunia can do so by sending a check to P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Police investigate pool damage

The City of Charlevoix Police Department is investigating an incident that caused damage to a pool at a condominium complex this week.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerad Doan said the damage occurred sometime either late Tuesday or early Wednesday, when someone apparently rode a skateboard into the empty pool at the Wharf Condominiums on Belvedere Avenue.

Doan said the pool was empty because it had just been repainted with special epoxy paint, which was still wet when the incident took place. The cost of repairing the damage is estimated at about $500.

Police ask anyone with information about the incident to contact the police department at (231) 547-3258

Ferry may be running soon if inspection OK'd

AEBRA COE

IRONTON — Work on the Ironton Ferry is wrapping up and the historic vessel could open its summer season as soon as this Friday.

The ferry usually begins carrying cars, bicycles and pedestrians across a narrow arm of Lake Charlevoix in mid-April after the ice melts from the lake, but an extensive overhaul of the engine and wheelhouse this year meant that start day has been delayed by nearly two months.

The U.S. Coast Guard was slated to perform a final inspection of the changes made in the vessel on Thursday, June 6, and the Charlevoix County Transportation Authority, the governmental unit in charge of the Ironton Ferry, will make an announcement soon after with further information on a opening date.

"We don't expect anything unusual as we have had several visits (from inspectors)," said chair of the authority Richard Gillespie. "They will inspect on Thursday and an announcement will come the moment we know something."

Changes made to the vessel over the winter include replacement of the decades-old wheelhouse with a new wheelhouse reoriented to one side rather than the center, replacement of an inefficient engine with a new, hydraulic engine, rewiring of the vessel, and a few other cosmetic changes.

Nothing fishy about this robins' nest

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

- About 10 years ago I bought what we have come to call the "Drummond Island Carp." We found it along with some other figures at a sort-of yard sale on its namesake island. It is something like a fish: about 16 inches long, terribly ugly and carved from native wood with a chain saw. It has an almost oriental look. It is not frightening, but it is nonetheless a sort of nightmare fish, having giant fishy lips and fins like small brooms.

Not wishing to hide it from public view, a few years ago I hung it above our garage door It is sheltered from the rain by the roof overhang. We hope it keeps evil at bay. It certainly serves no other purpose for us.

Our purposeless object is of considerable interest to some of our songbirds, however Each spring for the past four years, the notch behind its head (most fish do not have a notch behind their head) has become the chosen place for our resident robin couple to build a nest. It is sheltered from the weather, and even the most agile cat or squirrel cannot get to it. This spring was no exception.

The robins have now raised to fledging their first family of the season. There are two small robins, barely able to fly, hanging out in our back yard, where their parents still occasionally bring them a bit of food. Within days they will be on their own in the dangerous world.

The parent birds will probably begin a second family, secure in the knowledge that the children will not suddenly move back home once they are grown. Birds are apparently able to solve problems that we more intelligent humans have trouble with.

Another problem the robins seem to have solved is what to do with the big home place after the children have moved out. They just build another one I sometimes help by taking down the old place, providing them with space to build anew in what is clearly the safest and most desirable location anywhere around here. They don't seem to like using the same nest twice.

Getting such an early start on renewing the robin population suggests a good year for our local songbirds. Maybe global warming can be a good thing, at least for the robins.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Garden club unveils new awards for homeowners

The Charlevoix Area Garden Club is sponsoring a new program to further encourage beautifing Charlevoix.

Similar to its business award program, the new program is for homeowners.

The club is offering an award each week for a beautiful residential garden.

"The garden does not need to be large but any beautiful garden is worthy of this award. We will judge on color, texture, design and originality. We will have a small group of garden club members drive or walk by the garden. Once a winner is found, each week a small sign will be placed in the yard and an award will be provided to the homeowner. So we are encouraging everyone to view their own yard or their neighbors yard," club officials wrote in a release about the program.

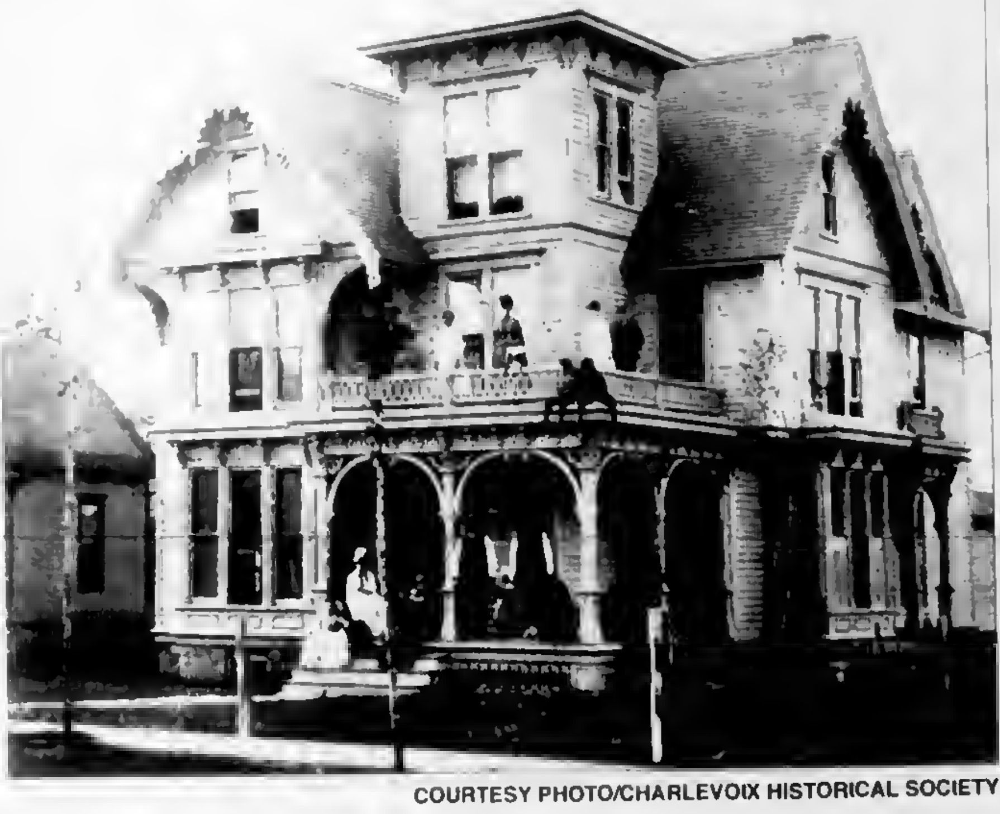
CHARLEVOIX
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Pioneer businessman Amos Fox (highlighted in "Looking Back" for May 24) built his first Charlevoix residence on the north side of the Pine River Channel in the late 1860s just west of the current Weathervane Terrace hotel. In 1887 he moved downtown to 103 Main St., and later Park Avenue, just off Bridge Street, into a turreted Victorian jewel covered in trim and gingerbread. The Fox family occupied the house until just after the turn of the century, after which the federal government leased, then ultimately bought the property in 1908 for a convenient lighthouse keeper's residence. All the keeper had to do was step out his back door, cross the bridge, and walk out to his responsibility which was then located at the end of the north pier. A keeper resided here until 1941, by which time the two lights, now at the ends of the piers, were totally electrified and automated and a keeper was no longer needed. On June 13, 1944 the Federal Works Agency — Public Buildings Administration in Washington sold the house as "surplus property" for $2,250 to furniture dealer Ed Smith, whose store was across the alley on Bridge Street. Dentist Walter Hoffmann obtained it in the 1950s, where the house later gained local fame for the silver Christmas tree he displayed in the second story west window all year long for years. The site is now Hoffmann Park.

Permit granted for Griffin test excavation

Charlevoix-based expedition expected to take place this month

(AP) An organization that believes it may have discovered the wreckage of the oldest known shipwreck in the Great Lakes has received a state permit to conduct a test excavation at the site in northern Lake Michigan, officials said Tuesday.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the state archaeologist's office approved a plan by Great Lakes Exploration Group, which hopes to identify the vessel as the Griffin, also known by the French equivalent Le Griffon. Legendary explorer Rene-Robert Sieur de La Salle built and commanded the ship on behalf of King Louis XIV.

During its maiden voyage in September 1679, the Griffin departed from the area near present-day Green Bay, Wis. Carrying a crew of six and cargo of furs, the ship was never seen again.

Seasonal and soon-to-be full-time Charlevoix resident Steve Libert, founder of the private exploration group, said he was excited to get the permit after years of legal wrangling with the state of Michigan, which claims ownership of shipwrecks on Great Lakes bottomlands under its jurisdiction.

"We look forward to working together in this public-private cooperative relationship to uncover an important part of the United States, France and Canadian history," he said.

The Griffin was the first full-sized ship to sail on the Great Lakes, and its fate is one of the Great Lakes' most enduring mysteries. Among many theories are that the vessel sank in a storm, was scuttled by a mutinous crew or was captured and burned by Native Americans.

Libert, 59, has been studying and searching for the Griffin for nearly three decades, calling it "the Holy Grail" of Great Lakes shipwrecks. He hasn't disclosed the exact location he is targeting but says it's near a group of islands near the Wisconsin line.

While diving in the area in 2001, he came across a length of timber protruding from the lake bottom. He says it could be the bowsprit or another part of the vessel, most of which is buried in sand and mud.

He has assembled a team of archaeologists — some from France — and scientific divers who plan to conduct their most thorough examination this month. The state permit allows them to dig two test pits on the lake bottom and search for evidence that a shipwreck is there and that it's the Griffin, said Sandra Clark, director of the Michigan Historical Center, part of the DNR.

Among the things the researchers will look for is a cannon with Louis XIV's insignia, Libert said. A sonar examination in 2006 detected numerous artifacts on the bottom and embedded in sediments, said Ken Vrana, Great Lakes Exploration Group's project manager.

The organization reached an agreement with the state and the French government in 2010 to cooperate in an effort to identify the wreck. If it is indeed the Griffin, they will reopen negotiations about how to deal with it, including whether it could be salvaged and publicly displayed.

"We're all comfortable with what they're planning to do in the next few weeks," Clark said. "This seems like a reasonable way for us to see if there is really anything there, which we are all very interested in knowing."

Speaking to the Courier in April, Libert said the hope for this expedition is that the team will uncover enough evidence that will warrant a full excavation of the site later in the year. Ultimately, Libert said, if the wreck is confirmed to be Le Griffon, the team will determine if all or part of the wreck can be raised and preserved.

He said the June expedition could take anywhere from five to 12 days, depending on weather and other factors. If the decision is made to do a full excavation, he expects the team would move quickly to do the work in order to protect the site from would-be scavengers and other possible risks.

As in the past, Libert hopes to use Charlevoix - which he and wife, Kathie, plan soon make their year-round home - as the expedition's home port. Libert said he'd love to someday see Charlevoix become a home for a museum for the ship and/or its artifacts.

Story walk ready for second summer

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Family Story Walk is ready for its second season of walkers and readers.

Recently stories and writings about Charlevoix, written by Charlevoix students, were placed in the three story boxes in East Park, at the library, at the Charlevoix Historical Society and in the pavilion at Depot Beach.

Descriptions of Charlevoix written by first grade students are in boxes near the fish pond, at the library, and in front of the historical society. Stories by middle and high school students are near the bandshell, in Bridge Park and at Depot Beach. More stories will soon be added this week to the Ferry Beach and Lake Michigan Beach pavilions boxes.

The walk, was started last summer by Charlevoix resident Sherrel Bergman as a way to combine reading and exercise, is a 6.25 mile long and has eight stories along the way. There is no particular order to the stories so a person can read one, two, or all of the stories depending on how far they want to walk.

Bergmann said this summer the boxes will feature writings by Charlevoix writers including mysteries, fun facts about Charlevoix, and classic stories. She said during the fall, the boxes will feature stories about apples and Halloween. Stories and student writings will be changed weekly during June so that many student writings can be featured. Starting in July, each box will feature fun facts and historical information about the area. In August, a mystery will be divided into 8 parts and each box will contain a section of the mystery.

Maps of the story walk are available at the library, city hall, the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, and in the windows of many Bridge Street merchants.

For information about this project, please contact Sherrel Bergmann at rayderberg@aol.com.

Rayders to host volleyball camp

The Charlevoix Rayder volleyball program will host a volleyball camp from 8:45-11:30 a.m. on June 24-26 for area girls going into sixth through ninth grade.

The camp will take place at the high school gym.

The cost is $45 which includes a camp t-shirt and the three days of volleyball instruction. Jenna Way will be returning from Ferris State, where she is currently playing volleyball, to run our program with our coaches and 2013 team.

"This gives our young athletes a great opportunity to learn the skills of volleyball and enjoy game experience, too," Rayder varsity coach Audra Randall said.

Those wishing to sign their children up may stop at Randall Chiropractic, 1302 Bridge St. or contacting Randall (231)-459-5416. Pre-registration is appreciated, but walk-ins are welcome.

City offers tennis lessons

The City of Charlevoix recreation department is offering youth tennis lessons this summer.

The lessons will be offered Mondays and Fridays in two sessions.

The first session is June 10-July 5 and the second session is July 8 - Aug. 2.

Each session includes seven lessons plus a rain date.

The lesson schedule is broken up by age and skill level.

Beginners ages 7-9 will be from 1-1:45 p.m.

Beginners ages 10-12 will be from 2-2:45 p.m.

Intermediate for any age will be from 3-4 p.m.

Intermediate, competitive for any age will be from 4-5 p.m.

The cost for the lessons are $70 per session for residents and $75 per session for non-residents.

Lessons take place at the Charlevoix City Tennis Courts, located on Elm Street near the Charlevoix Golf Club.

For more information, call the instructor Gunnar Lundteigen at (231) 547-2593.

Registration forms are available at Charlevoix City Hall or at the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

OBITUARIES

Gary Lawrence Jesiek, 75

Gary Lawrence Jesiek, age 75, of Charlevoix, passed away Friday, March 22, 2013, at Vanderbilt Palliative Care Center in Nashville, Tenn., after a long, tough battle with cancer. Cremation has taken place.

Gary was born Nov. 21, 1937, in Flint, the son of Lawrence D. Jesiek (deceased) and Faye I. (Shank) Jesiek of East Jordan.

Gary grew up in Flint and graduated from Flint Northern High School, Flint RETS and Flint Junior College.

He worked and retired after 41 years from Genesee Welding Supply and AGA Gas.

Gary served in the U.S. Army Reserves for six years.

He was a member of the American Welding Society and Charlevoix Kiwanis.

Gary married LoisAnn (Jones) Jesiek on March 10, 1962, in Flint. Gary and Lois Ann retired to Charlevoix in 2000. They traveled extensively to South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain and Europe.

Gary was an avid swimmer, tennis player and golfer. He enjoyed trout fishing and pheasant hunting in his youth with his father. He was always a fun guy to be with. He always wore a smile. His nicknames were Radar, Gyro, The Duke, and Baby Cakes by his wife. His family and friends have many good memories and fun stories to tell about him and their relationship with him.

Gary is survived by his wife of 51 years, LoisAnn (Jones) Jesiek; children, son, Christopher Jesiek, daughter, Amy Jesiek, daughter, Jill Jesiek; mother, Faye I. Jesiek; brother, Dennis Jesiek; sister, Linda Heiermann; three grandchildren, Leslie Robbins, Adam Bizzell, Rachel Bizzell; one great-grandson, Trevor Gillum; several brothers- and sisters-in-law, and many friends.

The family suggests memorials to: Charlevoix Public Library, Charlevoix Kiwanis, Charlevoix Garden Club Memorial Garden, or Northern Michigan Chorale Scholarship Fund.

A memorial service will take place at 11:30 a.m. Friday, June 28, at Charlevoix Community Reformed Church, 100 Oak St., Charlevoix, with pastor John "Chip" Sauer officiating.

Shirley Ann Maher Haggard, 82

Shirley Ann Maher Haggard, 82, born Aug. 31, 1930, in Newburg, N.Y., passed away peacefully on Thursday, May 30, 2013, at University of Tennessee Medical Center in Knoxville, Tenn., following complications from heart surgery.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Albert and Grace Maher; daughter, Katherine; infant daughter, Karen; infant son, Sean; sisters, Eleanor and Mary Jane; and brother, Stephen.

Survivors include her husband of 59 years, George O. Haggard Jr.; daughter, Carol (Bob) Wood; sons, George O. Haggard III "Chuck" (Pam) and John (Tammy); grandchildren, Shawn (Julie) Wood, Jennifer (Doug) Martinez, George O. Haggard IV "Kyle;" twins, Terra and Tesha Haggard; and Andrew Haggard; great-grandchildren, Isaiah and Otis Wood and Cosima Marzinez; sisters, Gracie and Peggy; brother, Albert.

Prior to her marriage to George, Shirley was a secretary in the Adjutant General's Office at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, N.Y. Following the death of her daughter, Katherine, Shirley decided to pursue a career in retail, continuing the tradition established by her mother-in-law, Polly and her aunt Kay. She relocated the Polly Kay boutique to Morristown, Tenn., from its previous locations in Charlevoix, Mich., and Coral Gables, Fla. The Morristown location of Polly Kay opened in spring of 1974 and remained in The Gardens shopping center on West Andrew Johnson Highway through 2006.

After her love of family and a close circle of friends, Shirley was an avid supporter of University of Tennessee sports. She was also a true fan of Tiger Woods, from the time she saw him place in the NCAA college golf tourney at the Honors Course in Ooltewah, Tenn. Shirley and George were world travelers, and she always enjoyed making plans for the next great trip. She supported many charitable causes in Morristown and once served as president of the Catholic Church Women, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church in Morristown.

The family is very grateful for the skills and kindness of Dr. Everett and everyone in the Critical Care Unit at UT hospital, and to Drs. Ramaprasad, Patel, Sutherland and Assadnia in Morristown.

The family received friends from 9-11 a.m. today, Monday, June 3, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church, followed by the funeral Mass officiated by Bishop Stika, Monsignor Patrick Garrity, the Rev. Joseph Hammond, the Rev. Alex Waraksa and deacon Shawn Smith. Following the service interment took place in Hamblen Memory Gardens.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests donations be made to Morristown-Hamblen Hospital Foundation, 1621 W. Morris Boulevard, Suite D, Morristown, Tenn. 37814 or to ALPS Adult Day Services, 600 N. Daisy St., Morristown, Tenn. 37814; or to any other charitable organization of the donor's choice.

Arrangements are by Stetzer Funeral Home.

Bike4BreastCancer Ride set for June 15

Char-Em
bike4breastcancer

Saturday, June 15, will mark the 11th anniversary of the Charlevoix/Emmet County Bike4BreastCancer Ride at Veteran's Park in Boyne City. The event, which takes place the third Saturday in June each year, raises funds for breast cancer programs offered through Charlevoix Area Hospital and McLaren-Northern Michigan Hospital.

Event organizers said, in the past year alone, breast health services have been provided for more than 100 uninsured women at either Charlevoix Area hospital or McLaren-Northern Michigan Hospital, which includes mammograms, ultrasounds, MRIs, CT scans and biopsies. In addition, the funds have been used to offer assistance with cancer-related medical bills. The money raised by Bike4BreastCancer through this ride helps to sustain these programs year-round.

In 2000, after being diagnosed with inflammatory breast cancer, Kathy McDonald looked for a way to combine her love of cycling with breast cancer awareness. After searching the internet, she found Kathy Betz and Bike4BreastCancer.

Over the years this event has raised more than $250,000, donating $208,000 back to the community. Eighty-five percent of the proceeds are spent in Charlevoix and Emmet counties, providing services and support to the women who live and work in our communities. The remaining 15 percent goes to the national Bike4BreastCancer chapter, which funds the website and provides insurance and support for the individual rides, organizers said.

Online registration is open until Thursday, June 13, at www.bike4breastcancer.org. Registrations may also be obtained at any of the area chambers of commerce or one of these local bike shops: North Country Cycle Sport, Revolution Bike, Bikefix Cycling Center, High Gear Sports and Latitude 45 Bicycles and Fitness. Registrations must be received by no later than June 13, and the cost is $30 per person or $50 per family (two adults and any children 13 and under).

Onsite registration is available at a cost of $35 per person or $60 per family. Prizes are offered for those with the highest individual fundraising efforts.

On the day of the event, sign-in and on-site registration for the 55 mile route begins at 7 a.m., with riders starting by 7:30. Riders for the 42, 20 and seven mile courses are welcome to sign in and/or register and begin their rides from 7:30-9 a.m. Breakfast items are provided prior to the ride and lunch is served beginning at 12:15 p.m. There are also water and fruit stops along the 55, 42 and 20 mile routes.

For more information, contact Gay Pung at b4bcharem@yahoo.com or (231) 330-1399, or visit the group's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/b4bchar-em.

Golf Scramble to benefit cats and dogs

The Charlevoix Area Humane Society will host the Dog Leg Golf Scramble at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 15, at the Charlevoix Country Club.

"It's a beautiful course," said humane society director Scott MacKenzie. "... Golfers who attend should have a lot of fun."

Fox Motors has donated a 2013 Chevy Malibu LS that can be won by getting a hole-in-one on a par three hole the day of the event.

Also, the humane society fundraising committee will sell mulligans, skins and raffle tickets during the scramble. Prizes will be awarded for the longest drive, longest putt, and the first and last place teams.

"We still have room for several foursomes," MacKenzie said.

A $100 per golfer entry fee includes a cart, goodie bag, use of the driving range, one raffle ticket and an awards dinner.

Registration forms for the shotgun scramble tournament are available at the Charlevoix Country Club golf course, the Boyne, Charlevoix and East Jordan chambers of commerce and at the Charlevoix Area Humane Society. Forms are also available by emailing director@charlevoixhumane.org.

"If you don't have a foursome, just indicate that on the registration form and we'll put teams together," MacKenzie said. "Individual golfers and pairs are encouraged to register."

Proceeds from the tournament will support the Charlevoix Area Humane Society. Any businesses interested in sponsoring holes or the awards ceremony should contact MacKenzie at (231) 582-6774.

BUDGET

position for Travis Garrett — formerly the middle school principal. Twenty percent of his duties will be the athletic director position. Eighty percent of his position will be as a "student success coordinator," and he will meet with at-risk students. That portion of his position will come from the at-risk funds, which do not come out of the school's general fund.

Other budget shavings in the proposed budget include cutting board member stipends, reducing superintendent travel expenses, reducing his administrative assistant to half time, reducing contracted substitute bus drivers, reducing technology equipment line items and cutting the summer camp program at the elementary, the Sunshine Club Summer Camp.

The district would capture some money by going to a "pay-to-play" athletics system. Students and their families would pay $100 per sport, $250 maximum per athlete, or $400 maximum per family. Middle schoolers and their families would pay $75 per sport or $300 max per family. Students who qualify for reduced lunches would pay 35 percent less, and students who qualify for free lunch would not have to pay.

The board had two particular worries after hearing these line item reductions: that support staff and custodians were bearing the brunt of the cuts, and that elementary school classes would remain high.

"I can tell a lot of work went into this, but it seems like a one-year plan to get us out of a jam now, and we'll be back to doing this again next year," said board trustee Dick Joseph. "I thought we were going to make some tougher cuts now so we didn't have to do that in 2014."

Board trustee Glen Catt called into question administrative salaries.

"It seems easy to cut the support staff, but when it comes to administrative positions, we seem to be tentative in making the calls," Catt said.

The board questioned, in particular, technology director Scott May's $89,000 position. Gendron countered that Boyne City school district, which is rolling out the same one-to-one iPad initiative that Charlevoix has, pays the Charlevoix-Emmet County Intermediate School District $80,000 for technology services, and pays for support staff to manage the devices.

"I had a student today whose iPad was broken, and she was in tears because she didn't know how she was going to study for exams," said Karen Peterson, a high school English teacher, during public comment. "Scott came into my room for 50 minutes helping her transfer everything from one iPad to one she could use. You wouldn't get that personal attention if you just hired someone to come in after hours to take care of wires."

Mays' duties also include managing several labs and overseeing pupil accounting, which determines the amount of state aid each district would receive.

Several elementary teachers were also in attendance to explain high elementary school class sizes.

First-grade teacher Stephanie Carey implored parents worried about large class sizes to talk to elementary teachers about their fears.

"I would encourage anybody who has questions about what's perceived to be high class sizes to come to us," said Carey.

The board could come to a decision about the budget at its next regular board meeting, 6 p.m. Monday, June 17, at the middle school.

THOMPSON

known township supervisor Oscar Stroud about joining the newly-formed department, and he's been answering the call ever since.

Thompson said he's seen a lot of change in the fire service and the community over his nearly four decades with the department.

For example, when Thompson started with the department, Firefighter I training required by the state was 66 hours. Today it is 152 hours. Also, when the department purchase its first new fire engine in 1976, it cost about $32,000. The department's most recent new truck purchase in 2007 cost about $362,000.

The nature of runs the department gets called out on has changed over the years now. He said the number of structure fires the department handles has declined over the years, a fact he attributes largely to better building codes, safer construction practices.

Thompson said his years with the department have been filled with ups and downs — whether it was dealing with the challenges of providing service to a 72-square-mile area in three townships filled with narrow winding roads, or responding to a fire, or traffic crash, and knowing the victims involved.

"There's times you feel bad because you couldn't do anything for the people, and there are time where you feel good because you were able to make a difference," Thompson said.

He said he decided now was the right time to retire as the department has a good crop of "young guys itching to take over, and it's about time they get their feet wet."

Thompson said his retirement from the department will take some getting used to.

"After all those years of listening for the pager and listening to the scanner, it's going to be hard not to go when I hear those sirens. But it will be nice when the pagers go off in the middle of the night in the middle of the winter to stay in bed ... Plus, I might like to go to Florida once in a while."

He added: "Its one of those jobs that you've got to be cut out for, and you've got to love doing it. I wouldn't trade the experience for anything in the world."

The Charlevoix Township Board is planning a small reception for Thompson during its next meeting, which is set for 7 p.m. on Monday, June 10 at Stroud Hall. At the same meeting, the township firefighters are expected to present their proposed new slate of fire officers (including Thompson's successor) to the board for its consideration.

"But he's not walking away," Gibson said. "He (Terill) thinks it should be three-way split with the donor, the city, and pledges."

Gibson said Terrill is expected back in town soon and Straebel said he would set up a meeting with him to discuss options.

Straebel noted that as of Monday the city had received one $70 donation. On Thursday morning, Straebel said since Monday another $100 check came in.

"I made pledge and I'm going to honor my pledge," Gibson said. "The community should step up and do what we should do."

Donation, policies

The council also discussed a series of proposed ordinances or policies suggested by Campbell at its last meeting in May.

Campbell suggested that the council consider ordinances prohibiting memorials on all city property except the cemetery, that any structure erected in a city park larger than a park bench or table require a vote of the people, that any new structures on city property must go to the planning commission for review, and that no gifts may be accepted by the city if it requires any cost to the city.

Discussion on the proposals centered around the fact that some of Campbell's concerns have been addressed, at least in part by a donation acceptance policy the council approved earlier this year.

Mayor Norman "Boogie" Carlson Jr. noted that it would not be legal for the city to hold elections on matters such as approving the construction of structures in parks or other "regular business" matters, (such as the fireplace). Carlson also noted that a prohibition against any sort of memorials on city property would fly in the face of the plaques that adorn the interactive water fountain, some of the benches in East Park and, the brick paver program the council approved earlier in the same meeting.

Straebel noted that some of the issues regarding what, among city projects should go before the planning commission will be addressed in a policy on just that topic that the planning commission is working on and will soon be presenting to the council for its consideration.

Council member Porter suggested that the council should appoint a committee to revisit the recently approved donation acceptance policy to see if any improvements can be made upon it. The council left the matter with plans for Straebel to meet with council members to firm up direction and purpose for such a committee.

FOIA funds

The council also debated what it should do about an outstanding balance of $1,222.05 from a very large Freedom of Information Act request filed by city resident Julee Roth on Dec. 3 of last year.

Roth was one of the three city residents (Campbell and Porter were the other two) who sponsored the petitions that ultimately led to May's successful recall election.

Roth's request was for "access to and copies of all documents contained in your file relating to the proposed construction and location of a fireplace in East Park." The request then went on to specify in 13 sub-points all of the types of documents Roth was seeking.

The majority of the bill included 3,365 pages of documents at $0.10 per page and 48.5 hours of staff time at $17.97 per hour.

City clerk Carol Ochs said the request was completed, but Roth has neither picked up the documents, nor paid anything more than a $50 "good faith" deposit the clerk requested before beginning on the document request. Ochs said she requested the deposit after letting Roth know on the day the request was filed that the cost of the request likely would exceed $1,000.

The matter was before the council because Porter and other council members had questioned whether Roth should be made to pay for the request. The questions arose in response to a letter the city attorney recently sent to Roth asking for payment to avoid possible legal action.

Among the options that the council could have considered was reducing or waiving the fee under a provision in the law that allows for such an action if it is in the public interest because the request "can be considered as generally benefitting the public."

City manager Straebel told the council be was very much opposed to waiving the fee citing concerns about the precedent it would set for future requests.

At one point Porter proposed developing a policy on how it should handle such situations, but ultimately the council voted 5-0 to move forward with attempting to collect on the bill through small claims court.

"As far as I'm concerned this is a no-brainer. She needs to pay," Gennett said.

District champs!

Rayders' historic season rolls on with first district title since 1988

Members of the Charlevoix baseball team celebrate winning their Division III district championship on their home field.

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix baseball team has enjoyed a year for the record books and with a pair of wins Saturday, its not quite over just yet.

The Rayders picked up their 27th win of the season, a school record, in securing their first district championship since 1988 on their home field on Saturday, June 1.

Charlevoix earned wins over Harbor Springs, 9-5, in a dramatic comeback fashion, and East Jordan, 12-6, to win the Division III district title on their home field.

"The seventh inning rally against Harbor kind of sums up our season — these guys don't ever think they are going to lose," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Harbor Springs played such a great game, they caught everything we hit at them until that last inning."

The Lake Michigan Conference and district conference champion Rayders will move on to play Negaunee in the Division III regionals at Traverse City St. Francis on Saturday, June 8. The first pitch of that game is expected around noon. If the Rayders win that game, they would face the winner of the other regional semi-final game between Kalkaska and Whittemore-Prescott at about 2 p.m. The regional champion will go on to play in a quarter-final game at noon on Tuesday, June 11 at Traverse City West High School. The state semi-finals and finals are June 14-15 in Battle Creek.

The Rayders won the first game of the day Saturday, 9-5 over Harbor Springs, as Tommy Zipp earned the win on the mound, throwing a complete game with six strikeouts and seven hits allowed.

KURT GRANGOOD/NEWS-REVIEW

Rayders beat Rams in OT for District title

After earning 5th District title in 6 years, Rayders bow in regionals

The drive for five was a successful one.

The Charlevoix High School girls' soccer team captured its fifth Division IV district title in six years in overtime against Harbor Springs on an Ellie Way goal on Saturday, June 1 at the Click Road Soccer Complex in Petoskey.

(The Rayders won four straight Division IV district titles from 2008-2011.)

"She (Ellie Way) is so team orientated," Charlevoix first-year coach Pete Scholten said. "I had to tell her (Ellie Way) to be more selfish this week, and we are glad she shot the ball."

After a crossing pass from Kaitlin Hinckley, Way found herself alone with Harbor Springs goalkeeper Sydney Elkins after a scramble inside the goalie box.

That's when Way shot the ball to the open corner and put the ball in the net.

"We had a defensive breakdown in overtime right in front of our net," Harbor Springs coach Ed Fantozzi said. "That cost us the game."

Harbor Springs, 19-3 overall, won the first meeting between the teams this season, 3-1, with all three goals being scored by Rhi Cullip, while Charlevoix would win the second conference match, 1-0.

"We knew we had to play strong on defense," Scholten added. "Carolena Elowsky, Sydney-Carlson, Shelby Robinson, Leah Davis, and Olivia Storm, who went one-on-one with (Rhi) Cullip most of the game, they all played their hearts out tonight."

The Rams' Sadie Cwikiel, Betsey Simons, Amanda Hoffman, Robyn Dendel, Meg Shepherd, and Zoey Bazilla were defensive standouts.

"Our ability to defend kept us in the game," Fantozzi said.

Rayder goaltender, Gloria Greene made seven saves, while Ram's goalie Elkins made nine saves.

For Charlevoix, it marked the 17th time this season the Radyers have held an opponent scoreless which is a school record.

Saturday's game marked the 12th time either Charlevoix or Harbor Springs has won the district title in 13 years.

The Rams, who captured the Lake Michigan Conference title with a perfect 12-0 league slate, will graduate four seniors in Abigail Hackman, Meg Shepherd, Chelsea Olivarez and Cullip.

Saturday's win earned the Rayders the opportunity to play in a regional semi-final game Tuesday against Muskegon Western Michigan Christian on the Warriors' home field.

Rayders come up short at regionals.

Rayders headed to regionals

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

CHEBOYGAN — The Charlevoix High School boys' golf team placed two golfers within the top 10 en route to finishing second at the 11-team Division III district Thursday, May 30 at the Cheboygan Golf and Country Club.

Roscommon shot 324 to win the district title, while the Rayders were second with a 328. Manistee was third at 332, followed by Kalkaska, 338; Cheboygan, 345; and Elk Rapids, 370.

The top six teams and six individual qualifiers all advance to a Division III regional on Thursday, June 6, at Mason Country Central's Lakeside Links.

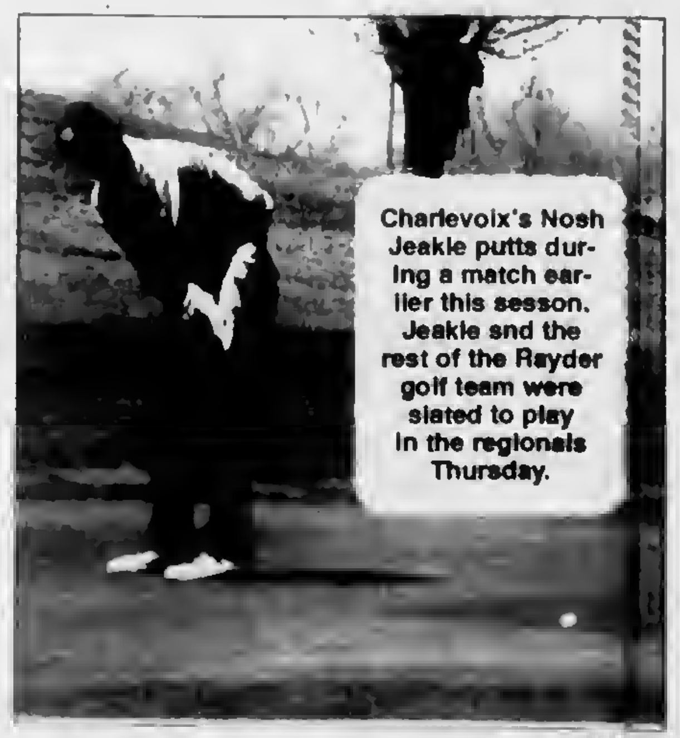
Cheboygan's Andrew Purcell was the individual district medalist as he shot 77, while Benzie Central's Paul Pumas was second at 78.

Charlevoix's Noah Jeakle was third as he shot 79, while teammate Bradley Rizzo shot 81 and finished eighth. Also for the Rayders, Tanner Catt shot 82 and was 12th overall, while Corbin Turkleson and Chandler Novotny each shot 85 and were tied for 15th.

Boyne City had two players qualify as individuals as Tim Barber shot 90 and was 20th overall, while Eric Moran shot 91 and was 22nd.

Also for the Ramblers, Aaron Reynolds shot 96, followed by Ben Halstead, 98; and Steven Halstead, 101.

Other players who qualified as individuals were Houghton Lake's Trevor Hallett, 92; along with Grayling's Joe Greenway, 92; and Houghton Lake's Riley Connett, 94.



Charlevoix's Noah Jeakle putts during a match earlier this season. Jeakle and the rest of the Rayder golf team were slated to play in the regionals Thursday.

Way sets state record in 3200-meter run

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

COMSTOCK PARK — Longtime Charlevoix High School girls' track and field coach Mary Plude doesn't lose her voice very often.

She also hadn't seen sophomore standout runner Amber Way show much emotion throughout the season.

On Saturday at the Division III state finals at Comstock Park, Plude's voice was just about gone while Way was overcome with emotion and for good reason.

Way won the Division III girls' 3200-meter run in a new Division III state meet record time of 10 minutes, 48.48 seconds, beating the previous record set by Wyoming Kelloggsville's Nicole Bush set in 2004 which was at 10:57.16.

Bush went on to become an All-American distance runner at Michigan State University.

Way, who last year was runner-up in the state meet in the 3200 at 11:07.63, surpassed Raquel Serna of St. Louis with about 800 meters to go to push ahead and finish in the new state record time.

"It's still kind of coming to me," Way said. "I'm just still in awe."

Way's finish also left Plude nearly speechless, and voiceless.

"She (Way) went through the first mile just about perfect," Plude said. "She was second to Serna and I realized Amber needed to take her out a little sooner and she made her move sooner, caught her with about a half mile to go.

"When I saw her again, I told her to surge again," Plude said. "I made her move after the 800 again to get a bigger lead and her 600 meter kick was something. Over the final 800 meters, she put about 11 seconds on Raquel."

Way said she felt comfortable with the pace of the race, and realized she needed a strong finish over the final 800 meters to take the crown.

"Everything was right where we wanted it to be," Way said. "I wanted to do an 80 second split and everything else was just keeping my spot. I really started to kick it in when I noticed Raquel was starting to slow down a little, which was around 1,000 to go."

Over the final 800 meters, Way said the race went extremely fast.

"I just remembered to keep my form, stay on the balls of my feet and I was just trying to feel where she was without looking back, just tried to talk myself through it."

Way, who along with Plude studies all her opponents and strategy prior to each race, figured Serna, who's a senior, would take the race.

"At first and at the beginning, I thought Raquel would be the state champion," Way said. "Being a senior, I just thought she'd want it, but I just kept going and at the end, at the finish line, I had the finish line alone in front of my face."

Plude said she and Way didn't talk much prior to the race.

"We talked about it before and her goal in her workouts was to run in the 10:40s," Plude said.

"She understood it and we analyzed all the people she'd be racing against. It's always an easy conversation with her," Plude added. "We're communicating on the same wavelength and she's not just going out running and seeing what's happening. You give her a plan and she figures it out."

Plude and Way both said they weren't initially aware of the record time until sometime following the race.

"To find out it was a state record, it was just like 'Wow'," Plude said. "She ran that race in her own style and like she has all year. To beat someone (Bush) with that type of quality, there's not a whole lot more you can say.

"She just did what she's been doing all season."

Way said keeping her form was key throughout the race, that along with knowing the competition.

"I know what my strengths and weaknesses are," Way said. "At least I know now more of what I can do and I just focused on relaxing and doing things smarter."

Plude said in her close to 30 years of coaching, she's never coached an athlete quite like Way.

"She's a real racer and she's just so genuine," Plude said. "She had a great sense of humor and she's great to be around. She's still a child at heart and she has a lot of fun racing. She loves being with her team and it's not just about her. She has no ego about her and what she does.

"It just amazes me at what she's accomplished," Plude added. "It's what she's dreamed of and it came to fruition."

Not only did Way earn All-State in the 3200, but she also ran a leg in the Rayders' second-place finishing and All-State 3200 relay as Cora Taylor, Madeline Boss, Caroline Boss and Way finished in 9:44.25. Grandville Calvin

Christian won the race in 9:38.02.

"That relay team really choked me up," Plude said. "They were about 13 seconds behind following the first handoff, but Madeline Boss caught them up into the pack and then Amber took them to second. Then Caroline just extended it from there.

"For them to go from 14th place to second and to gain 25 seconds, that's what I've seen from them all year."

Charlevoix sophomore Amber Wey (far left) smiles from the podium after winning the Michigan High School Athletic Association Division III girls' 3200-meter run Saturday at Comstock Park. Wey won the race in a new MHSAA Division III girls' record time of 10 minutes, 48.48 seconds, beating the previous record of 10:57.16 set in 2004 by Wyoming Kelloggsville's Nicole Bush. Requel Serna (second from left0) of St. Louis was second in 10:59.66.

Also for the Rayder girls, Boss was sixth in the 800-meter run at a personal best time of 2:21.51. Manistee's

Annie Fuller won the race in a state-record time of 2:11.77.

Boyne City junior Kylie Hicks earned a pair of All-State medals as she placed second in both the 100 hurdles, 15.15; and the 300 hurdles, 45.76.

In the boys meet: Wyoming Kelloggsville won the Division III state title with 52 points, while Mason County Central was second, 31; followed by Standish Sterling, 28. Charlevoix finished with five points.

For the Charlevoix boys, the 3,200-meter relay team of Jackson Buday, Nick Snabes, Tristan Rudolph and Nick Plude placed fourth in a team-best time of 8:08.26.

Rayders fall to Harbor in District semi-final after conference win

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

After winning the Lake Michigan Conference and a pre-district game in convincing fashion the Charlevoix Rayder varsity softball team's dreams of winning a district title on their home field came to an early end Saturday, June 1 when a late-game surge by Harbor Spring led to a 6-5 loss in a district semi-final matchup.

Boyne City won the other semi-final game, defeating East Jordan 9-2. The Ramblers went on to win the title game defeating Harbor Springs 4-3.

Boyne will move on to play Gladstone in the Division III regionals at Traverse City St. Francis on Saturday, June 8.

In game one for Boyne, who moves to 13-14 overall on the year, Emma Shumaker brought in the win against the Red Devils, throwing a complete game with seven strikeouts and four hits allowed.

Jordan Weiss came up big at the plate with four hits including two doubles, while Rainy McCune tripled and singled.

Charlevoix came out early and racked up five runs, but, Charlevoix coach Keri Hoffman said, the fifth inning proved disastrous as walks and errors got the best of the Rayders.

Katie Hybl started the game going four and a third innings while giving up five hits and four runs and striking out five. Yogi Hang took the loss, allowing four hits walking three and striking out four.

For the Rayders, Jennifer Archey had a double, Gabby Gray Kelsey pischner, Nicole Peterson each had a single. Rachel Shull had two hits and Yogi Hang had a double and single.

For the Rams, Brooke Paige was the winning pitcher, allowing 10 hits, while striking out five.

The Rayders finish the season at 20-10.

"It was a disappointing way to end a great season," Hoffman said. "The game was very exciting we came out and scored five runs and then in the fifth we made a few errors and had some walks the really hurts us." Give credit to Harbor Springs they came ready to play and never quit. It was just a bad time of the year to have a bad game."

"Overall we had a great season. The girls really played well. Having only 3 seniors on the team this year the future is looking bright for Charlevoix softball.

Graduating for the Rayders are pitcher and catcher Katie Hybl, outfielder Rachel Shull and second baseman and outfielder Olivia Certa.

Several Rayders also recently garnered several All-Conferences honors including Katie Hybl, Skylar Herriman, Jennifer Archey and Gabby Gray who were first team selections, and Yogi Hang, Rachel Shull, Olivia Certa, and Kelsey Pischner who earned Honorable Mention honors.

Rayder football camp rescheduled

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Organizers of the Rayder Youth Football Camp original set to start on June 10, have rescheduled the camp to avoid a conflict with a basketball camp.

The football camp will now take place from Monday-Wednesday, June 17-19 at Kipke Field.

Times for the two age groups have also been swapped from the original schedule.

There will be two sessions daily with a session from 9-10:30 a.m. for kindergarten through fourth grade students and 10:30 a.m.-noon for fifth through eighth grade students.

Organziers said the camp will emphasize football fundamentals including passing, catching, running, blocking and tackling and will be led by new Rayder head varsity football coach Ron Bindy, other members of the Rayder football coaching staff and Rayder football players. All participants will receive a camp t-shirt.

The cost is $20 for the three-day camp.

Registration forms will be sent home with students at Charlevoix-area schools and are available at the Charlevoix Elementary School and Charlevoix Middle School Offices.

Participants may also register at 8:30 a.m. on the first day of camp day at a cost of $25 per participant.

All proceeds from the camp will benefit the Charlevoix Rayder football program.

For more information contact John Haan at jhaan@ rayder.net.

Lansing Catholic won the event at 8:01.27.

"We had a good time and had some good performances," Charlevoix boys coach

Ken Plude said. "We finished about two seconds better than what we anticipated."

Plude also noted it was the 16th time a Rayder 3200-meter relay team has placed at the state meet.

"All those guys are coming back next year too," Plude said. "We do lose 13 seniors, which is about half the team, but we still have a lot of quality guys coming back, we just won't have the depth."

Plude also mentioned his 400 relay team of Jarod Richel, Charlie Hamilton, Devon Drain and C.J. Rice ran their best time of the season at 46.10; while Plude was tied for 12th in the 800, 2:01; and Chris Young was 18th in the 300 hurdles at 42.00.

"Everybody who was there was new and it was a good experience for all the seniors to get there," Ken Plude said.

"That 400 relay team, they've worked so well together and made the most of the speed that we have. That's the greatest compliment I could give them. It's been a lot of fun."

Also in the Division III boys meet, Josh Wojan of East Jordan placed ninth in the 1600 in a personal best time of 4:25 this season and was 10th in the 3200 lead by the Rams with a brilliant six run seventh inning, thanks much in part to Zipp helping his own cause with a three run double that would put the Rayders up 7-5.

"We just kept battling and it was fitting that Tommy got the big hit — he is one of our two seniors and he just didn't want his high school career to be over," Telgenhof added.

East Jordan topped Boyne City in game two of the day, 4-3,as Matt Bolser took the win on the mound, throwing a complete game. He allowed just four hits, while striking out seven.

The Rayders wouldn't mess around in the championship game against the Red Devils, as they piled on a 10-1 lead by the end of the third inning. Charlevoix eventually walked away with a 12-6 win over East Jordan to capture the district crown.

"I think after all of the excitement of the first game, our fans were happy that we kind of took the mystery out of it against East Jordan," Telgenhof said.

Shane Sutherland pitched six innings for the Rayders, striking out nine, while allowing 12 hits. Nate Moon picked up the save, striking out the side in the seventh.

Zach Shepard, Noah Raymond, Bolser, and Colin Petrie all pitched in the loss for East Jordan.

At the plate for Charlevoix, Noah Certa finished the day with three hits and two RBI; Tommy Zipp had six RBI on one hit. Sutherland had a hit with two RBI. Will Telgenhof finished with four hits and two RBI. Austin Putman had two hits, including a triple, and two RBI and Luke Klinger had a triple and an RBI.

"I was really happy that we were able to get all of our guys the experience of playing in a district championship game," Telgenhof said. "The whole team has really worked hard and they deserved the win and they all deserved to play."

For East Jordan on the day, Zach Shepard had four hits and two RBI, Tim Schut had four hits and two RBI, Petrie had a hit and an RBI, Oscar Scheier had two hits and an RBI, Dustin Hejka had two hits and two RBI and Tucker Alward and Raymond both had a hit.

"These young men really did East Jordan baseball proud with the way they played," East Jordan coach Tom Reid said. "The Boyne City game was one of the most well-rounded, well-played games we played all year and after falling into a 10-1 hole in the finals, they didn't give up and battled back to make a game of it."

On Tuesday, the Rayders were unable to recover from a quick strike by the Warriors.

Muskegon Western Michigan Christian's Alexis Riksen scored a goal just 15 seconds into Tuesday's Division IV regional semifinal, then added another goal midway through the half.

The two goals would be all that Western Michigan Christian would need as they defeated the Rayders, 2-1, to advance to a Friday, June 7, regional final against Grandville Calvin Christian.

Grandville Calvin Christian advanced to the title game with a convincing 6-0 win over Hart in Tuesday's other regional semifinal.

Muskegon Western Michigan Christian, 16-4-2, and Grandville Calvin Christian, 17-2-3 and ranked No. 2 in the Division IV state coaches poll, met last season in the state semifinals.

With the loss, the Rayders close a 19-6 season.

"We started the game a little flat and they caught us off guard," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We played a great game,and kept in the game right to the end.

"I'm very proud of our girls tonight."

The Warriors got off to a good start as Riksen, a sophomore, took a pass from freshman Brea Frein and quickly volleyed a shot into the Charlevoix net.

The score remained 1-0 until close to midway through the opening half when Riksen scored again, this time on a setup from freshman Jessica Kinnucan.

Charlevoix scored their lone goal of the game with six minutes, 23 seconds left to play as sophomore Ellie Way broke away from a defender and found the back of the net. Kaitlin Hinkley had the assist.

The Rayders finished with 14 shots on goal as sophomore goalkeeper Lindsey Johnson earned the win in goal for the Warriors. Gloria Greene finished with nine saves in goal for the Rayders.

The Rayders had two corner kicks in the final six minutes of the game and finished with six total corners, including several good chances to tie the game.

"We came back and played a very competitive match to where I'd be interested what would happen if we met them again," Scholten said.

The Rayders will graduate seven seniors including Anna Way, Maura Brandi, Carolena Elowsky, Syndey Carlson, Hannah Herboldsheimer, Bailee Stevens and Katie Paramo.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

BEAUTIFUL LIKE new leather sofa (purchased from Reid Furniture). $825. Call (231)838-2447.

ENTERTAINMENT SYSTEM:
Timberlake cabinet, 36" Sony TV and cassette deck, VHS record and play. Pioneer DVD LD player. Excellent condition. Reduced to $850 for all. (231)242-0380.

THE VERMONT Packboat is light, fast, safe, sea-worthy and easy to row. It comes complete with a fancy backrest and oars. Made out of kevlar with wood trim, it is very strong and yet light enough for a woman to carry. It has only been in the water twice. Original Price $2,900, asking $1,500. All proceeds benefit The YMCA of Northern Michigan. Can be seen in Petoskey, MI. Call 231-347-0283 or 248-613-8430 with questions.

COURTESY PHOTO

The Charlevoix Middle School Staff said a final goodbye for the year to their sixth through eighth grade students Thursday, June 6, then gathered for a picture in front of the middle school sign as a final get-together before the packing and moving from the building is completed. The sixth grade will move in to the elementary school building while seventh and eighth grades will move into the high school for the 2013-14 school year. Staff members said saying good-bye was difficult, and offered their thanks to the community for their support.

A date with history awaits

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Libert

Steve Libert may have a date with history this week.

Libert, who with his wife, Kathie, has had a seasonal home in Charlevoix for the past 15 years and plans to soon make the community their full-time home, may know in a matter of days if, after a three-decade quest, he truly has found the long-lost shipwreck of the French vessel the Griffin.

Just last week, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and the state archaeologist's office approved a plan by Libert's private exploration group Great Lakes Exploration Group, which hopes to identify the vessel as the Griffin, also known by the French equivalent Le Griffon. Legendary explorer Rene-Robert Sieur de La Salle built and commanded the ship on behalf of King Louis XIV.

During its maiden voyage in September 1679, the Griffin departed from the area near present-day Green Bay, Wis. Carrying a crew of six and a cargo of furs, the ship was never seen again.

The Griffin was the first full-sized ship to sail on the Great Lakes, and its fate is one of the Great Lakes' most enduring mysteries. Among many theories are that the vessel sank in a storm, was scuttled by a mutinous crew or was captured and burned by Native Americans.

Libert, 59, has been studying and searching for the Griffin for nearly three decades, calling it "the Holy Grail" of Great Lakes shipwrecks. He hasn't disclosed the exact location he is targeting but says it's near a group of islands near the Wisconsin line.

While diving in the area in 2001, he came across a length of timber protruding from the lake bottom. He says it could be the bowsprit or another part of the vessel, most of which is buried in sand and mud.

Since that time, Libert has used Charlevoix for a base of operations for many research expeditions to the site.

This time, however, the community will have a slightly diminished role, thanks, in large part to the low level of Lake Michigan.

Speaking to the Courier Wednesday evening from his condominium in Charlevoix, Libert said he was planning to head out Thursday morning traveling by land to the tiny Upper Peninsula port where the expedition will originate this time with trailers loaded with gear for the work ahead.

Libert explained the low water levels and lack of space in the tiny ma-

Should clerk be appointed, not elected?

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix is one of a decided minority of cities in the state in which the city clerk is elected and not appointed.

But that could change, perhaps as early as next year, if a proposal floated at a recent Charlevoix City Council meeting gains traction.

City manager Rob Straebel brought the matter up for discussion at the council's June 3 meeting.

In a memo to the council and at the meeting, Straebel noted that his suggestion was in no way a criticism of current city clerk Carol Ochs, who has served in the position for the past nine years. In fact, Straebel lauded Ochs performance. However, Ochs has chosen not to seek re-election when her term expires in November, making it a good time to take a look at possibly making a change.

Only city resident Larry Sullivan filed a nominating petition before the deadline to have his name appear on the November ballot for the clerk's position, although plenty of time remains for a person to file to run as a write-in.

Straebel noted that a survey by the Michigan Municipal League showed that of 127 reporting 106 had an appointed clerk, 16 had elected clerks and five did not specify.

Straebel went on to write in his memo: "An elected clerk may or may not have the skill set for the job. The duties require strong administrative, written and verbal skills as well as knowledge about the Freedom of Information Act, drafting meeting minutes, archiving, issuing licenses, and a bevy of other professional skills. If the new clerk does not have these skills, they will need to attend training to learn the intricacies of running the clerk's office."

Ochs said she can see benefits of both the elected and the appointed positions.

"Larry Sullivan is more qualified to step in to this chair than I was when I

McLean resigns, board to fill vacancy

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education is seeking a new board member to appoint to fill a vacancy after board president John McLean tendered his resignation from the board on Tuesday, June 4.

McLean

District superintendent Robert Gendron said McLean did not give a reason for the move in his letter of resignation, however, he provided a written statement in response to a request for comment from the Courier in which he expressed frustration with the board's current state.

McLean, who had served on the board since 2006, and has been the board's president since the following year said the decision to resign from the board was "grueling."

"On one hand, I continued to feel an obligation to our children and staff. On the other, I could not continue to work with a board that I believe has completely lost focus of why we were elected to the positions we hold. To provide the best possible educational experience for the children of our community. Instead, it has become a battle of keeping the peace amongst ourselves, not an uncommon characteristic of school boards across the country," McLean wrote.

"We carry personal agendas, dislike of our peers and continuous finger pointing and unsubstantiated accusations against each other, our superintendent, and our administrators. This has clouded the ability of boards across the state to focus on 'what's best for kids.' I could not endure this trend, nor did I want to be a part of it. If I can't be part of the solution, I will not continue to be part of the problem.

McLean said he will return to working with children in the district in a way he most enjoys: "in the classroom, fieldtrips, and working

After long delay, ferry now open

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

IRONTON — The Ironton Ferry began operating full-time late Monday afternoon — about two months later than normal.

A final inspection of a few major upgrades to the vessel concluded Monday morning and approval by the Coast Guard to begin operation across the south arm of Lake Charlevoix was granted.

A delay in completion of engineering drawings is the major reason why the vessel did not start operation this year until almost two months later than normal, according to transportation authority officials.

While out of the water for its five-year inspection by the U.S. Coast Guard, the ferry got a major overhaul with the installation of a new hydraulic engine, new wheelhouse and new electrical wiring.

The ferry carries vehicles, pedestrians and bicyclists from just south of Charlevoix in Ironton one-quarter mile to its destination a few miles west of Boyne City saving passengers a about a 20 mile long ride around the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

The ferry could have been operational on Friday, June 7, but a June 6 inspection found a faulty hydraulic fitting which delayed the approval process that would have allowed the historic vessel to begin to carry passengers over the weekend.

The Coast Guard inspector offered to come Friday said project leader and Transportation Authority member Richard Gillespie.

"It was later decided he would come Monday morning to allow ample time to verify everything," he added.

The ferry was shut down for maintenance between 12:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"A fitting needed to be tightened up" and a few other minor adjustments needed to be made, including an adjustment to the ballast to compensate for a slight list, said Transportation Authority chair Richard Gillespie. "It's nothing major. They're checking things out and just want to be certain everything's in order.

Township repeals unenforceable hunting ban

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Deer on the north side of Charlevoix take notice: Hunting is once again permitted in the north end of Charlevoix Township, after an action taken by the township's board of trustees Monday.

By a 5-0 vote, the board voted to repeal the decades-old ordinance that banned hunting on the township's north side, even though township officials recently learned that the ordinance was never really enforceable because the board that passed it back in the late 1980s didn't follow the proper procedures that would allow law enforcement officers to prosecute a violator.

Earlier this spring, township supervisor Chuck Center said despite the ordinance's lack of teeth, north side township residents have abided by the ban. Discussion of repealing the ban came up earlier this year when some residents complained that deer were damaging their yards and that allowing hunting might help thin the number of deer in the township.

At the board's May meeting, two Michigan Department of Natural Resources officials said hunting might help some, but other measures, such as installing fencing and planting less deer-friendly landscaping would do as much, if not more to help the situation.

Part of the problem with hunting's effectiveness in controlling the deer population in the township, is the fact that there are few parcels in the township that can be hunted without permission from the neighbors. Under state law, no one can hunt within 450 feet of a home without the consent of the homeowner. With the residential nature of the north side of the township, that eliminates many parcels. A list of deer management suggestions remains available on the township website at www.charlevoixtownship.com.

In other business, the board unanimously approved a motion to establish an ordinance under which Shanahan Park closes at 10 p.m. each night. The ordinance comes on the heels of complaints from neighbors of the park about noise from people in the park at night. Center said he has spoken with county sheriff Don Schneider about the issue and Schneider said deputies will keep an eye on the area and respond to any complaints that are called in to 9-1-1.

Asked about sanctions that violators of the ordinance might face, Center noted that although the word "ordinance" was used as part of the motion, he would have to look into whether the measure amounts to something enforceable by law enforcement officers or something more akin to a rule for the park.

The board also unanimously approved a request from Center to hire an appraiser to evaluate a three-acre parcel of property at the corner of Martin and Waller roads. Center noted that the parcel is currently for sale and he be-

Auditors: Financial standing okay, reporting problematic

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County's financial assets and tax base both declined between the 2011 and 2012 fiscal years, but its debt also declined and the county's financial standing is nothing to cause concern, reported Ron Harris, of the auditing firm Harris Group.

The auditor did catch a few problems with the county's preparation of financial statements that should be addressed, though, Harris said.

"(The county's) financial statements, if they had not been audited, would have been materially misstated," he said.

Harris presented the county's 2012 audit for the period between Oct. 1, 2011, and Sept. 30, 2012, Wednesday to the county board of commissioners and announced that his firm would not submit a bid to continue to offer auditing services to the county.

"We've worked hard for the county as long as I've been involved with the audit," said Harris. "... Our working relationship has been not where it should be. I just think it's time — it's time to step away. It will be good for the county that way-you'll have fresh eyes looking for things."

Total net assets of the county declined about $1.2 million from a year earlier. That, explained Harris, is largely because more was spent than was taken in to the road fund over the course of the year, primarily the result of cash investment into the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road project. The second reason is because the county chose to pay off the Grandview Medical Care Facility bonds it took out, a large initial investment that will ultimately save taxpayers almost $500,000 in future interest costs.

Also of note, the county's tax base dropped $14 million from where it was in just over a year earlier to $2,018,000,000 in summer, 2012.

"At just under 1 percent, it can be a big number," he said of the drop.

The audit demonstrated a few concerns with the way the county conducts business.

It should correct a deficit in the road fund, set aside a separate fund to cover retiree health benefits liabilities and, most "concerning" according to Harris, must find a better way to file financial statements to ensure accuracy and avoid the $2.2 million overstatement the auditors caught

Lake now more accessible at Whiting

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

BOYNE CITY — Whiting Park on Lake Charlevoix will soon be the first public beach in Charlevoix County to offer easier access into Lake Charlevoix for residents and visitors with limited mobility.

A ribbon cutting ceremony will be at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 15, at Whiting Park on the shore of Lake Charlevoix between Boyne City and Ironton. The public is welcome to join in the celebration as the park unveils the MobiMat RecPath and a floatable chair to allow access to the beach and water for those with mobility challenges just in time for the 2013 summer season.

Whiting Park was chosen by this year's Leadership Charlevoix County class as their community service project. The class, in partnership with the Disability Network of Northern Michigan and the Charlevoix County parks and recreation department, has been working on the project since September.

The MobiMats are specially designed to allow easier access across the sand for individuals in wheelchairs and families with strollers.

The leadership class raised more than $11,000 to purchase 150 feet of mat and the chair.

"It was amazing how the surrounding communities came forward to help raise the funds needed to purchase the accessibility equipment," said Lisa Luebke, a leadership class member. "Once we got the word out to the public, the response was incredible. Several local businesses held fundraisers, area service clubs contributed and many individuals donated as well. It was just an outpouring of generosity."

Located at 05820 Lake Shore Road west of Advance, Whiting Park was chosen for the universal access equipment because of its existing accessible campsites, bathroom and canoe/kayak launch for those with mobility challenges.

Leadership Charlevoix County is currently accepting applications for the 2014 class, which will start in September 2013. The program aims to identify, encourage and educate new and emerging leaders. Participants spend nine months — one day per month — gaining in-depth exposure to the county, its organizations, leaders and resources. Upon completion, the participants are eager to carry out a more powerful, positive and lasting impact within their organizations and communities.

For more information about Leadership Charlevoix County, visit www.leadershipcharlevoixcounty.com or contact program coordinator Mishelle Shooks at (231) 536-2440.

Dog sitting requires a pound of patience

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennell

Grand- dog - n. any of various canines whose owners have moved out of their parents dwelling and now giving the said parents the ability to express love for a grandchild that may or may not ever be.

Doggerd –to go to the dogs [Colloq.] – to deteriorate your home and mental state slowly by caring for such canines.

Dogs are experiments in parenting for parenthood. Egad! We did the same and I apologize now to my family for doing so.

So, it was family time this past weekend. Not for us, necessarily, but our weekend did include an extra family member: our grand- dog. Now, I really should be grateful. It was only two short years ago when there were two grand-dogs plus our own golden retriever spending a week (actually 10 days) in our lovely Victorian home. This structure, which has withstood the test of time, did a whirlwind of a job keeping the furry critters intact minus a fenced-in yard and only meandering flower beds to keep them confined. The combined weight of these creatures came in slightly under 300 pounds give-or-take a few ounces.

We love our animals of all kinds and we will still dog-sit when needed, but I thought it was time to shed a little insight on the topic in case you haven't been asked to care for your son's or daughter's dog yet.

Top things in your life that change when babysitting grand-dogs

1 Dog hair: These are objects resembling tumble weed blowing across the wood floors. You can actually catch one with one hand if you are quick enough.

2 Feeding time: Use different bowls in various locales to keep double dipping to a minimum.

3 Walks. I don't know how professional dog walkers do this without needing rotator cuff surgery. Maybe that's why they're called "professional" dog walkers. I feel certain there's a school out there that this old counselor knows nothing about.

4 Answering the door: This is the most daunting task and I apologize to any visitor who had to listen to me shout "down" numerous times.

5.Weekends: This does not mean sleeping in. Dogs have clocks wired into their skulls telling them when to get up, when to eat and when their master is coming home. "Isn't your turn to take them out?" Is a phrase utilized frequently, akin to "Isn't it your turn to get up with the baby?"

Just give us a whistle or call out our name and we're certain to respond to any of your questions regarding care, maintenance and what objects of art to put away before their arrival.

Like I said, we love our children, grandchildren and grand-dogs, but the best advice is the tried and true Boy Scout one, "Be Prepared" or else you'll end up becoming "doggerd" and, doggone it, we don't want that to happen.

Gayle Gennett is a retired educator and counselor with more than 30 years experience. She is currently a licensed professional counselor in private practice focusing on youth and couples counseling. She also oversees the Lay Chaplaincy Program at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She holds a bachelors degree in art education, a masters degree in guidance and counseling and post graduate work in administration all from Eastern Michigan University.

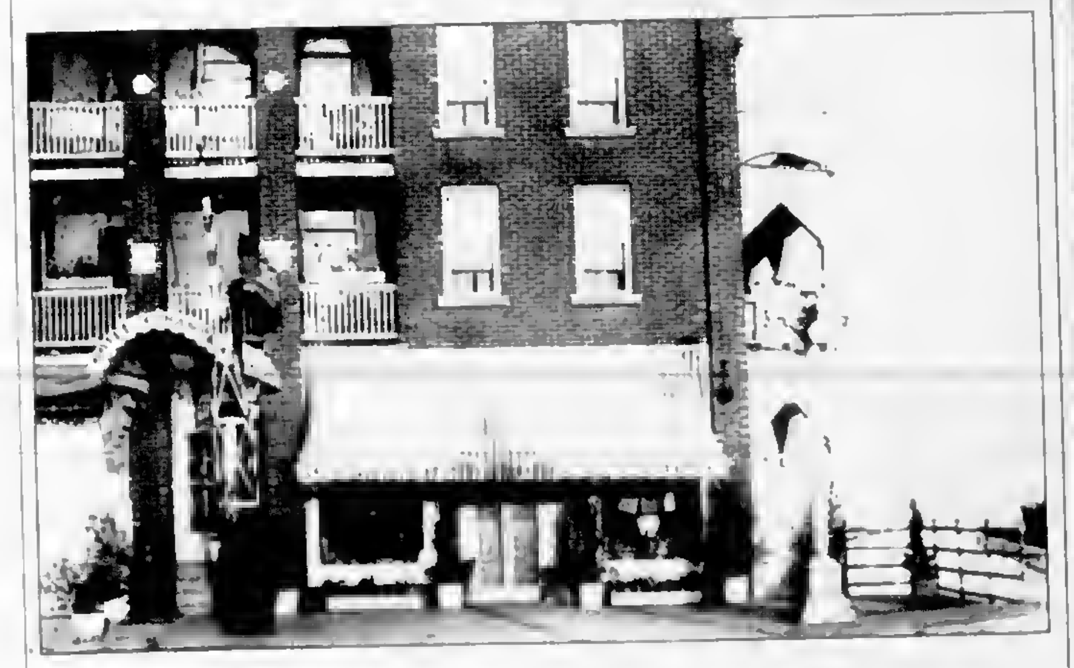
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...



In 1883, Charlevoix's first doctor, Levi Lewis, who had arrived here in 1869, built the Lewis Grand Opera House at the southwest corner of the channel bridge at the request of his wife. She found Pine River, as the village was then known, to be pretty much a cultural backwater. The whole family participated in running it. Its beautifully appointed 800-seat auditorium hosted a huge variety of events over the years such as traveling plays, musicals, lectures, vaudeville, motion pictures, high school graduations, even Charlevoix High School's first basketball game in 1910 with the seats removed. In 1923, Mr Salem Mussalem, a mid-Easterner of undetermined origin who always wore a fez and had operated an oriental rug emporium and bazaar in town for many summers, bought the building and turned the auditorium into his rug shop and store and the rest of the structure into a hotel faced with new red brick. He called his new home The Alhambra. The word "al-hambra" is Arabic for "the red fortress" and refers to the great Moorish castle in Granada Spain. The Alhambra remained in business for the next quarter century until the sturdy but worn out old opera house, as most of Charlevoix still called it, had to come down in 1947 to make way for today's bridge. All that remains is the sloping lawn facing the Weathervane Restaurant. This is how the facade and side galleries looked in the mid 1930s.

Smart Commute winners named

Smart Commute Charlevoix, in its second year, recently named the winners of the Commuter Clock Challenge for its 2013 event.

For large employers, those employing 40 or more people, the Commuter Clock Award goes to Castle Farms, with a 25 percent participation rate.

For medium sized employers, those employing 13 – 39 employees, the Commuter Clock goes to Boyne Area Medical, who had a 40 percent participation rate.

And for small employers, those employing up to 12 people, the Commuter Clock goes to The Clothing Company, who had a 52 percent participation rate.

Smart Commute Charlevoix is designed to increase awareness of, and demonstrate the ability to use, alternative methods of commuting that provide health, economic and environmental benefits through a fun-filled week of community engagement. Smart Commute Charlevoix is organized by a volunteer steering committee and is supported by Irish Boat Shop, Charlevoix Area Hospital, Village Graphics, Charlevoix State Bank, and Harbor Industries, Inc.

This year Smart Commute Charlevoix had 12 teams register including large employers: Charlevoix Area Hospital, City of Charlevoix, Castle Farms, Harbor Industries, Inc; medium employers: Boyne Area Medical, Health Dept of North West Michigan, Charlevoix Area Pool, Charlevoix State Bank, Charlevoix Public Library; and small employers: Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, The Clothing Company, and Charlevoix Women's Health.

Organizers said participants saved 715 miles of driving vehicles by either sharing a ride, riding a bike, walking or even scooting to work.

Smart Commute 2013 included a new twist this year, with an added regional challenge put out by the Traverse Area Trails Council – a regional challenge between Grand Traverse County, Charlevoix County, and Emmet County Smart Commute Weeks. Emmet County has been awarded the 2013 Northwest Michigan regional Smart Commute Trophy, but Charlevoix County organizers are hoping to take it over in 2014.

For more information about Smart Commute Charlevoix and to find out how you can help plan or just participate next year, contact Val Meyerson, at (231) 237-7360.

Garden club announces poster contest winners

The Youth Education Committee of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club helps youth in the Charlevoix community learn about plants, gardens, ecology and conservation. The committee's main project involves coordinating two poster contests at Charlevoix Elementary School and St. Mary School. The themes for the first contest are Smokey Bear's, "Only You Can Prevent Wildfires" and Woodsy Owl's, "Lend a Hand Care for the Land". These themes are created at the national level through the National Garden Clubs, Inc. and the United States Forest Service.

The second poster contest is sponsored locally through the Charlevoix Area Garden Club and is a garden-related poster. The 2012-13 theme was "It's a Garden Party". This was also the club's theme for its 2012 yearbook and garden walk. In addition, just as Smokey and Woodsy ask children to do specific things, organizers wanted to help children "celebrate" the beauty and diversity of gardens.

In the fall, art teachers are contacted and a teaching schedule is arranged. Committee members, working in pairs, present the Smokey/Woodsy poster contest to each art class in kindergarten through fifth grade and the garden-themed poster contest to kindergarten and third through fifth grade classes using member created lesson plans and teaching aids.

The presenters use the schools' latest technology by using PowerPoint presentations. Emphasis is on conservation, ecology and the use of plants native to the Charlevoix area. Approximately eight weeks later, committee members judge the posters and determine first, second and third place and honorable mention awards for each grade level. Grand prize winners are determined for each contest. The first place winners for the Smokey Bear/Woodsy Owl contest are then sent to the Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan for judging. First place winners at the state level proceed to the regional level and regional first place winners proceed to the national level.

Winners were honored at the May 13, 2012 Spring Recognition Tea where family members and friends are also invited. Posters are mounted and displayed on the walls and cookies and punch, made by committee members, are served. All first, second, third place and honorable mention win-

DEFENDING FREEDOM DAILY SINCE 1776

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

OBITUARIES

Denise Ann Moore, 57

Denise Ann Moore, 57, of Charlevoix, passed away Tuesday, June 4, 2013, at her home.

She was born Jan. 15, 1956, in Detroit, the daughter of George and Virginia (Scott) Noller. She grew up in Central Lake and attended Central Lake High School.

On Aug. 8, 2004, Denise married Joe Richard Moore in Charlevoix.

Denise enjoyed reading, working at the Petoskey and Charlevoix 7-Eleven, horseback riding and caring for her horse, and spending time with Joe, whom she adored.

She is survived by her husband, Joe; daughter, Theresa (Larry) Maurer, of Central Lake; son, John E. (Shellee) Potter, of Traverse City; 10 grandchildren; one great-grandson; sisters, Donna Hull of Detroit, Karen Noller of Central Lake; many nieces and nephews.

A gathering will take place 2-6 p.m. Saturday, June 15, at the Richard Moore home on Marion Center Road in Charlevoix.

Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is assisting the family.

Charles W. Grube II, 74

Charles W. Grube II, 74, of Bellaire, and formerly of Bay City, passed away unexpectedly on Tuesday June 11, 2013.

Visitation will take place from 4-7 p.m. on Thurs. June 13, at the Bellaire Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Funeral services will take place at noon on Friday, June 14, at the Family of Faith Ministries Church of God, in Charlevoix with Pastor Michael Arp officiating. Prior to the service, visitation will take place from 11 a.m. until the time of service at the church.

Charles was born April 10, 1939 in Saginaw,, the son of Charles W. and Marjorie T. Grube.

He graduated from Cranbrook Kingswood School in Bloomfield in 1957 and attended the University of Michigan. He married Linda A. Quigley in 1959 and they were married until her death in 2005.

Charles was a founding member of the Mouthrop-Clift MCI Insurance group in Bay City and a lifetime member of the Bay City Elks Lodge. He also donated much of his time to community endeavors including coaching Little League and volunteer fundraising. Upon retirement in 2001 he moved to Bellaire to enjoy golf, fishing and boating. He became an active member of the Bellaire Rotary and enjoyed volunteering his time in the Bellaire community for various not-for-profit endeavors.

On Jan. 28, 2006 in Charlevoix, he married Barbara Malthy, at the Family of Faith Ministries Church of God, where he became a member. His all-around positive outlook on life and unconditional love were known by all who came into contact with him. He was always there to listen, share, and counsel all those in need of a friend.

Charles is survived by his loving wife Barb of seven years, his children Dana Grube, Gretchen Grube, Geoff (Mary) Grube, Marjorie Grube, sister Mary Mills, stepchildren Chris Malthy, Lori Fischer, grandchildren Daniel, Michael, Kelan, Clare, Zach, Mallory, Keagan, Kendall, and Karsyn and other family and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents and first wife Linda.

Memorial contributions may be made in his memory to the Bellaire Rotary, PO BOX 923, Bellaire, MI 49615.

Please sign his online guestbook www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com.

Thomas Garth Wieland

Thomas Garth Wieland passed away at home on June 11, 2013 after a long battle with cancer.

He was born at the Charlevoix Hospital on June 20, 1930 and grew up on a farm outside of Ellsworth. He graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1948.

Like his grandfather and father before him, Tom pursued farming as his life's work. He owned and operated a dairy farm with his brother, two nephews, his daughter and son-in-law, his son, and many valued and loyal employees over the years. He was fortunate enough to have a job that he loved — he was passionate about farming. He graduated from the Kellogg Farmer's Study Program at Michigan State University in 1970, which afforded him the opportunity to travel throughout the world and learn about agriculture on four different continents.

In 1951, he moved from Banks Township to the "Barnard" community outside of Charlevoix. He married Ardeth Howe of Boyne City on June 18, 1955.

He spent his entire life in a community he cared for — on the land he loved. Tom was very involved in many Michigan organizations and served in various ways to enhance the surrounding area. Prominent was his service as a board member of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, acting as its president for 23 years; the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, where he acted as chairman for many of the 46 years he served. For many years he was on the boards of organizations including the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service; the Michigan Animal Breeders Cooperative (North Star); the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange; and the Charlevoix County Development Corporation. As a valued leader of other initiatives and organizations too numerous to mention, he set a remarkable example of what it means to "give back."

But anyone who knew Tom knew he took time to appreciate the lighter side of life. He enjoyed watching high school basketball, especially when the Rayders were playing in the state championship series. He maintained a record of having attended 82 Venetian Festival Parades in a row (every one that had been held to date).

He loved animals, especially Labrador retrievers, and could often be seen with one of them in the passenger seat of his pickup truck. His love for the outdoors included hunting and spending time in his deer blind with friends. He was an accomplished softball player, basketball player, and water skier. He enjoyed baseball and watching the Tigers. He was interested in the world and made new friends in the many places that he traveled to including Holland, Panama, and Australia. No matter how busy he was, he always found time to turn his tractor into a neighbor's driveway to say hello.

Tom lived life with enthusiasm, optimism and humor. He loved to tell a story or a joke. Despite life's hurdles, he never lost his ability to enjoy the moment or to see a silver lining. Each year he was optimistic that the corn he planted would be rained upon and that the sun would shine to produce a good crop. Throughout his extensive treatment at Northern Michigan Hospital he came to know many of the staff and other patients he encountered, always asking about their children or pets and sharing a smile and "hello" despite his own circumstances.

Tom is survived by his wife, Ardeth (Howe), and his children: Tammy (Bob) Leake, Wendy (Alan) Walls, Janna Wieland, and Tim (Amy) Wieland, along with his brother and sister-in-law, Dick and Doris Wieland, nieces and nephews: Kathy (Marv) Ruis, Joni Wieland, Sue (John) Cliff, Lyndon (Barb) Wieland, Chris, Sarah, Owen and Leslie Bates; his brother-in-law, Larry Speigl; his sister-in-law, Arvilla Bates, and an extensive network of friends and family. Again, too numerous to mention, he leaves them all with a special memory of a man who was wealthy in the way that truly counts, as he richly loved, and laughed, and lived.

Visitation will take place from 3-5 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. on Monday, June 17 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A memorial service will take place at Noon on Tuesday, June 18, 2013 at the Charlevoix Reformed Church.

Contributions may be given in Tom's name to a memorial Agricultural Scholarship Fund, established and administered by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at: PO Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727, (231) 536-2440.

Please sign Tom's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Brittney Lamb - Reagan Drebenstedt

Brittney M. Lamb and Reagan T. Drebenstedt, both originally of Charlevoix were united in marriage on Jan. 11, 2013, in New Braunfels, Texas. The afternoon ceremony was followed by an intimate dinner with the wedding party and guests at the historic Grist Mill of Gruene, Texas.

Brittney is the daughter of Susan Lamb of Charlevoix and Tim and Pam Lamb of Pleasanton, Calif. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and California State University, Fresno and is employed as a behavioral therapist in San Antonio, Texas.

Reagan is the son of Robert and Marlys Drebenstedt of Charlevoix. He is a lieutenant in the U.S. Army stationed at Fort Sam Houston where he works at the Brooks Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Restaurant gets new owners, keeps Landings 'vibe'

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

New owners for The Landings, a landmark restaurant on Lake Charlevoix's Ironton Narrows, are hoping resume a full service operations on June 21 after a nine month hiatus.

Last summer, The Landings closed two weeks before Labor Day when former owners decided to put it up for sale.

The effort to reopen the establishment started when full- and part-time residents in the area explored a joint venture to save the restaurant from extinction and the property from being turned into a luxury RV park. When the dust settled the last people remaining in negotiations with the former owners were Preston Parrish, a who lives near Holy Island and Bob Berg of South Florida who summers along Lake Charlevoix.

"There were a good number of neighboring residents who expressed angst and concern over the prospect of losing the Landings," said Berg. "When the RV deal fell through, we met with former owners Lyle Miller and Tom Sheridan and asked if ... they would consider carving out a deal that would include ownership by a group of about 20 interested parties."

The six-acre parcel extends from Ferry Road to the lake and includes the restaurant, 24 boat slips and the fuel dock with 500 feet of frontage on Lake Charlevoix. The deal closed just a month ago.

Parrish and Berg recently enlisted Adam Guerriero of East Jordan to serve as the restaurant's manager and chef. Guerriero's wife, Renee, and various members of her family have worked at The Landings for many years.

When Guerriero heard that the project to revive the restaurant was in the works, it piqued his interest. Guerriero had been working at Charlevoix's Grey Gables for six years and had been thinking about moving out on his own.

"Three weeks ago I met with Bob and Preston and in 10 minutes realized that we all shared the same vision for the property," Guerriero said.

"Adam was so generous, jumping in on the project so quickly," Parrish said. "It's awesome. Things are already going so well."

"We're not in it to make money as a primary goal," said Berg. "The first thing is to save a tremendous landmark for the benefit of all of us who enjoy the lake and appreciate access to lakeside dining here."

He, along with the owners, hopes to maintain the same "comfortable vibe" that has made the Landings a casual and congenial place to dine and hope to stay open all year.

He said he will plan his menu around as much local and fresh home grown produce as possible, regional specialty foods from both coasts including seafood, delivered fresh and overnight, right from the source.

Standing under the sign for the soon-to-re-open landmark restaurant in Ironton The Landing, are business partners (from left) Bob Berg, Adam Guerriero and Preston Parrish.

History event to feature Boyne's industrial past

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's third History Speaker Series program of 2013 will be "More to Boyne City in 1902 than Just Lumbering - The Chemical and Charcoal Iron Plants."

The event will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 18 at the Boyne District Library, lower level, Community Room, 201 East Main St in Boyne City.

The guest speaker for the event will be Bob Morgridge.

At the turn of the century, lumber barons recognized that uncut trees in the lumber camps and the slashing on the ground could turn a dollar. Consequently they constructed the Boyne City Chemical Plant in 1902. In its prime, the plant's yearly production was 2 million bushels of charcoal, 500,000 pounds of acetate of lime, and 600,000 gallons of wood alcohol.

The plant shipped the charcoal across the street (where The Landings are located today) to the Charcoal Iron Plant. The charcoal was used to smelt iron ore into cast iron bars. The plant had the capacity of producing 28,000 tons of cast iron per year. Both industries closed with the end of the lumbering era.

During the event, historian and author Bob Morgridge will discuss the history of two industries that for 20 years played an important part in Boyne City's history during the lumbering era. Light refreshments will be served. This program is free and open to the public. For more information call (231)-582-5326.

On Jan. 28, 2006 in Charlevoix, he married Barbara Maltby, at the Family of Faith Ministries Church of God, where he became a member. His all-around positive outlook on life and unconditional love were known by all who came into contact with him. He was always there to listen, share, and counsel all those in need of a friend.

Charles is survived by his loving wife Barb of seven years, his children Dana Grube, Gretchen Grube, Geoff (Mary) Grube, Marjorie Grube, sister Mary Mills, stepchildren Chris Maltby, Lori Fischer, grandchildren Daniel, Michael, Kelan, Clare, Zach, Mallory, Keagan, Kendall, and Karsyn and other family and friends. He was preceded in death by his parents and first wife Linda.

Memorial contributions may be made in his memory to the Bellaire Rotary, PO BOX 923, Bellaire, MI 49615.

Please sign his online guestbook www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com.

Thomas Garth Wieland

Thomas Garth Wieland passed away at home on June 11, 2013 after a long battle with cancer.

He was born at the Charlevoix Hospital on June 20, 1930 and grew up on a farm outside of Ellsworth. He graduated from Ellsworth High School in 1948.

Like his grandfather and father before him, Tom pursued farming as his life's work. He owned and operated a dairy farm with his brother, two nephews, his daughter and son-in-law, his son, and many valued and loyal employees over the years. He was fortunate enough to have a job that he loved — he was passionate about farming. He graduated from the Kellogg Farmer's Study Program at Michigan State University in 1970, which afforded him the opportunity to travel throughout the world and learn about agriculture on four different continents.

In 1951, he moved from Banks Township to the "Barnard" community outside of Charlevoix. He married Ardeth Howe of Boyne City on June 18, 1955.

He spent his entire life in a community he cared for ,, on the land he loved. Tom was very involved in many Michigan organizations and served in various ways to enhance the surrounding area. Prominent was his service as a board member of the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, acting as its president for 23 years, the Charlevoix County Planning Commission, where he acted as chairman for many of the 46 years he served. For many years he was on the boards of organizations including the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service; the Michigan Animal Breeders Cooperative (North Star); the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange; and the Charlevoix County Development Corporation. As a valued leader of other initiatives and organizations too numerous to mention, he set a remarkable example of what it means to "give back."

But anyone who knew Tom knew he took time to appreciate the lighter side of life. He enjoyed watching high school basketball, especially when the Rayders were playing in the state championship series. He maintained a record of having attended 82 Venetian Festival Parades in a row (every one that had been held to date).

He loved animals, especially Labrador retrievers, and could often be seen with one of them in the passenger seat of his pickup truck. His love for the outdoors included hunting and spending time in his deer blind with friends. He was an accomplished softball player, basketball player, and water skier. He enjoyed baseball and watching the Tigers. He was interested in the world and made new friends in the many places that he traveled to including Holland, Panama, and Australia. No matter how busy he was, he always found time to turn his tractor into a neighbor's driveway to say hello.

Tom lived life with enthusiasm, optimism and humor. He loved to tell a story or a joke. Despite life's hurdles, he never lost his ability to enjoy the moment or to see a silver lining. Each year he was optimistic that the corn he planted would be rained upon and that the sun would shine to produce a good crop. Throughout his extensive treatment at Northern Michigan Hospital he came to know many of the staff and other patients he encountered, always asking about their children or pets and sharing a smile and "hello" despite his own circumstances.

Tom is survived by his wife, Ardeth (Howe), and his children: Tammy (Bob) Leake, Wendy (Alan) Walls, Janna Wieland, and Tim (Amy) Wieland, along with his brother and sister-in-law, Dick and Doris Wieland, nieces and nephews: Kathy (Marv) Ruis, Joni Wieland, Sue (John) Cliff, Lyndon (Barb) Wieland, Chris, Sarah, Owen and Leslie Bates; his brother-in-law, Larry Speigl; his sister-in-law, Arvilla Bates, and an extensive network of friends and family. Again, too numerous to mention, he leaves them all with a special memory of a man who was wealthy in the way that truly counts, as he richly loved, and laughed, and lived.

Visitation will take place from 3-5 p.m. and from 7-9 p.m. on Monday, June 17 at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A memorial service will take place at Noon on Tuesday, June 18, 2013 at the Charlevoix Reformed Church.

Contributions may be given in Tom's name to a memorial Agricultural Scholarship Fund, established and administered by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at: PO Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727, (231) 536-2440.

Please sign Tom's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com

Brittney Lamb - Reagan Drebenstedt

Brittney M. Lamb and Reagan T. Drebenstedt, both originally of Charlevoix were united in marriage on Jan. 11, 2013, in New Braunfels, Texas. The afternoon ceremony was followed by an intimate dinner with the wedding party and guests at the historic Grist Mill of Gruene, Texas.

Brittney is the daughter of Susan Lamb of Charlevoix and Tim and Pam Lamb of Pleasanton, Calif. She is a graduate of Charlevoix High School and California State University, Fresno and is employed as a behavioral therapist in San Antonio, Texas.

Reagan is the son of Robert and Marlys Drebenstedt of Charlevoix. He is a lieutenant in the U.S. Army stationed at Fort Sam Houston where he works at the Brooks Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Restaurant gets new owners, keeps Landings 'vibe'

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

New owners for The Landings, a landmark restaurant on Lake Charlevoix's Ironton Narrows, are hoping resume a full service operations on June 21 after a nine month hiatus.

Last summer, The Landings closed two weeks before Labor Day when former owners decided to put it up for sale.

The effort to reopen the establishment started when full- and part-time residents in the area explored a joint venture to save the restaurant from extinction and the property from being turned into a luxury RV park. When the dust settled the last people remaining in negotiations with the former owners were Preston Parrish, a who lives near Holy Island and Bob Berg of South Florida who summers along Lake Charlevoix.

"There were a good number of neighboring residents who expressed angst and concern over the prospect of losing the Landings," said Berg. "When the RV deal fell through, we met with former owners Lyle Miller and Tom Sheridan and asked if ... they would consider carving out a deal that would include ownership by a group of about 20 interested parties."

The six-acre parcel extends from Ferry Road to the lake and includes the restaurant, 24 boat slips and the fuel dock with 500 feet of frontage on Lake Charlevoix. The deal closed just a month ago.

Parrish and Berg recently enlisted Adam Güerriero of East Jordan to serve as the restaurant's manager and chef. Guerriero's wife, Renee, and various members of her family have worked at The Landings for many years.

When Guerriero heard that the project to revive the restaurant was in the works, it piqued his interest. Guerriero had been working at Charlevoix's Grey Gables for six years and had been thinking about moving out on his own.

"Three weeks ago I met with Bob and Preston and in 10 minutes realized that we all shared the same vision for the property," Guerriero said.

"Adam was so generous, jumping in on the project so quickly," Parrish said. "It's awesome. Things are already going so well."

"We're not in it to make money as a primary goal," said Berg. "The first thing is to save a tremendous landmark for the benefit of all of us who enjoy the lake and appreciate access to lakeside dining here."

He, along with the owners, hopes to maintain the same "comfortable vibe" that has made the Landings a casual and congenial place to dine and hope to stay open all year.

He said he will plan his menu around as much local and fresh home grown produce as possible, regional specialty foods from both coasts including seafood, delivered fresh and overnight, right from the source.

Standing under the sign for the soon-to-re-open landmark restaurant in Ironton The Landing, are business partners (from left) Bob Berg, Adam Guerriero and Preston Parrish.

History event to feature Boyne's industrial past

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's third History Speaker Series program of 2013 will be "More to Boyne City in 1902 than just Lumbering - The Chemical and Charcoal Iron Plants."

The event will take place at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 18 at the Boyne District Library, lower level, Community Room, 201 East Main St in Boyne City.

The guest speaker for the event will be Bob Morgridge.

At the turn of the century, lumber barons recognized that uncut trees in the lumber camps and the slashing on the ground could turn a dollar. Consequently they constructed the Boyne City Chemical Plant in 1902. In its prime, the plant's yearly production was 2 million bushels of charcoal, 500,000 pounds of acetate of lime, and 600,000 gallons of wood alcohol.

The plant shipped the charcoal across the street (where The Landings are located today) to the Charcoal Iron Plant. The charcoal was used to smelt iron ore into cast iron bars. The plant had the capacity of producing 28,000 tons of cast iron per year. Both industries closed with the end of the lumbering era.

During the event, historian and author Bob Morgridge will discuss the history of two industries that for 20 years played an important part in Boyne City's history during the lumbering era. Light refreshments will be served. This program is free and open to the public. For more information call (231) 582-5326.

LIBERT

rina means he won't be able to use the Nomad vessel that is in Charlevoix. Instead this expedition will use a local fisherman's trap fishing boat for that work.

The last-minute curveball did little to dampen Libert's excitement for what may be a capstone in his underwater exploration efforts.

Besides, curveballs are nothing new for Libert, who has spent more than a decade wading through a sea of red tape involving, state, federal and French officials to get to this point.

Libert said he and his crews will begin making preparations for the dive and excavation at the site on Friday and on Saturday, a team of world-class experts in underwater archeology, including several from France are expected to begin their work at the site.

He said it's possible that they could have an answer in a matter of hours, or days, or perhaps no definitive proof will be found that the wreck is, in fact the Griffin.

Libert said it appears that the ship's deck is just a few feet under the sand. He said that finding an artifact on the ship such as a cannon with Louis XIV's insignia, would be an important clue, although it wouldn't be definitive of Griffin's identity. That's because, he explained, it would have been common practice in the day, that other sailors could have found the abandoned or partially subunerged wreck and scavenged its cannon.

"It may come down to the structure of the ship, comparing it to the ship-building practices of that time, and other cultural artifacts that we might find," Libert said.

Libert said if the crews are able to make a determination that the wreck is that of the Griffin, work would stop at the site, and the project would move into a whole new phase: Deterofining what to do next.

Libert said he is grateful for the support the Charlevoix community has shown him over the years and he still says, if the wreck is the Griffin, he'd like to see some kind of museum involving the discovery to end up in Charlevoix.

Libert also thanked State Rep. Greg McMaster for his help in securing the permits for the upcoming excavation and noted that nearly all of the people who will be involved in the expedition are from Michigan.

CLERK

stepped in," Ochs said. "It takes one year to learn the job and it is a two year term. You should at least look at changing it to four-year term."

She added: "One benefit of being elected is you do have a certain amount of autonomy, but it is hard to get someone with right the skill set."

Council member Gabe Campbell said he thought it is a good time to look at the clerk's position, especially with the upcoming retirement of city treasurer Rick Brandt, to see if there might be a way to combine the position.

But council member Lyle Gennett, and others said combining the clerk's position with the treasurer's position would be too much for one person.

To make the change from an elected to an appointed city clerk would require modifying the city charter, which can be done only by a vote of the people

Both Ochs and Straebel said given the hoops that the city must jump through with state officials it would be very difficult to get the measure on this November's ballot.

The consensus of the council was to have Straebel look into the matter further and report back to the council.

In other business, the council conducted a public hearing and heard another presentation from a consultant about the city's need to significantly upgrade its waste water treatment plant so that it can comply with new ammonium discharge limits set to take effect in 2015.

Because the plant's ability to process ammonia through biological processes is limited during cold-weather months, the only viable option for the plant is to use an advanced treatment process. That could cost the city close to $11 million.

Tentative "worst case" scenario, the consultants said, is that could cost the average residential customer an additional $22 per month to help pay off the 20-year loan on the project.

Work on the planning for the project will continue, and in the meantime the city will apply for a grant that could help it offset some of its design costs for project.

In other business, the council heard a report and request from the city's downtown development authority board on a proposal to possibly modify the authority's executive director position into a shared position with the city as a whole. The discussion comes on the heels of the recent departure of Keith Carey from the executive director's position. The authority's board in recent weeks has noted that Carey's departure provided an ideal opportunity to look at scaling back the position to help save some money and because some of the projects that Carey originally oversaw in the position have now been completed.

After some discussion, the council gave its general blessing for the authority's board to move forward with a plan to create a full time position that would be split 30 hours for the downtown development authority and 10 hours for the city at-large.

On Monday, the downtown development authority board met for a special meeting at which it approved a more solidified proposed job description for the council's consideration at its June 17 meeting.

The position as detailed in the draft job description, would be called the community economic development director and its purpose would be, "This position is responsible for facilitating, promoting and ensuring community and economic development in order to secure opportunities for economic and business development and increase local employment."

Fireplace fundraising update

Straebel told the Courier Wednesday that pleas from city council members to those who pledged money to offset the city's costs associated with the now-defunct community fireplace project in East Park are starting to pay off. Although as of press time last week only around $100 had been donated to offset the $20,000 fireplace bill, since that time one donor has submitted a check for $5,000. Anyone wishing to contribute money to offset the costs associated with abandoning the fireplace project, may mail or drop off a check to city hall at 210 State St.

one-on-one with students."

He concluded: "We have a great school system and wonderful people ensuring our kids are ready for a diverse and global economy. My hat is off to the men and women who comprise our Charlevoix Public Schools."

Gendron said following a special meeting with the remaining board members at noon Thursday June 6, the district posted advertisements on its website and with area newspapers seeking applications from anyone wishing to be appointed to the board seat that McLean has vacated. To qualify, a person must be at least 18 years old and live within the Charlevoix school district boundaries

Anyone interested in being considered for appointment to the position, should submit letter of interest with qualifications by Friday, June 14, to: Charlevoix Public School, Board of Education Secretary, 104 East St. Mary's Dr., Charlevoix, MI 49720.

The person appointed would serve out the remainder of McLean's term which expires in 2014

Gendron said the board hopes to conduct interviews with candidates for the vacancy starting at 5 p.m. on Monday, June 17. The board's regular monthly meeting will follow at 6 p.m. at which the board could vote on making an appointment to fill the vacancy

Gendron said the board hopes to move quickly to fill the vacancy so the new board member can be in place for its upcoming budget finalization for the 2013-14 school year. Under state law, school districts must have their budgets for the coming school year finalized by June 30 each year. He said the board is tentatively planning to finalize the 2013-14 budget and make its final amendment to the 2012-13 budget at a special meeting on Monday, June 24 lieves it would make an ideal location for a new north side station for the township fire department. He said the location is ideal because it is directly across from the current station. Center said the fire department currently shares space with the township's water and maintenance departments.

"We need an upgrade," Center said "We have very archaic conditions in the fire station on north side."

The appraisal is expected to cost between $350-$500.

Center said there are no funds allocated in the current year's budget for property purchase or construction for a new station, but he said the township does have about $1.2 million in its fund balance. Center did not know what the current asking price for the property is.

FINANCES

for the 2012 fiscal year.

The discrepancy was found in taxes and receivables. Harris says this is not the first time the county has struggled with accuracy in its financial reporting. In previous audits the county was informed of challenges its auditors encountered when going through revenue and receivables.

"We had an easier time this year with those," Harris said. "They were filed better. We did have to look for some, but the process is getting better. At least now (staff are) learning the system and process for ... booking those receivables.

Despite the progress, this year again, the firm had to do a lot of searching to make sure receivables and revenue were properly stated in the county's records.

"During the year we cleared out due-tos and due-froms. We had to make some adjustments. We're not looking at every transaction, we are looking at those that would have a significant impact on financial statements. To have taxes and receivables adjusted by $2.2 million, that's a material adjustment to your financial statements," Harris explained.

Boys golf headed to state finals

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

LUDINGTON — The Charlevoix High School boys' golf team has been coming on as of late.

They couldn't have picked a better time to put together five solid scores than they did Thursday.

The Rayders claimed their second Division III regional in the past three years as they edged Roscommon to take the crown at Lakeside Links.

Both the Rayders and Bucks shot 332, but Charlevoix was claimed the champion based on their fifth golfer whose score, 88, was better than Roscommon's, 98.

Manistee placed third at 336.

All three teams as well as the top three individual qualifiers not on qualifying teams will play in the Division III state finals June 14-15 at Bedford Valley in Battle Creek.

"It was a very exciting day," Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said. "It was a close one and it's nice we won via the tiebreaker."

The Rayders, who earlier this season captured the Lake Michigan Conference title, had all five players score in the 80s, led by seniors Chandler Novotny and Tanner Catt, who each shot 81 and were tied for fifth to earn All-Regional honors.

"Those two guys are both playing with a lot of poise and leadership," Grunch said.

"They've both been to the finals before and are excited to get back there. Experience is key, Tanner had a double and a triple bogey and still rebounded to shoot 81."

Also for the Rayders, junior Brad Rizzo shot 82 to finish tied for 10th, while Noah Jeakle and Corbin Turkelson were tied for 25th with 88s.

Jeakle and Turkelson's 88s bested that of Roscommon's No. 5 man Josh Seames, who shot 98, to give the Rayders the title.

Hunter Mires led Roscommon with a 78 and was second. Cheboygan's Andrew Purcell was overall medalist at 75, while also qualifying as individuals were Ethan Leavitt of Ludington at 78 and James Wilson of Chippewa Hills who shot 80.

Playing as individual qualifiers, Boyne City's Eric Moran shot 109 and was 64th, while Jacob Knitter shot 114 and placed 69th.

Grunch said his team is familiar with the course next week at Bedford Valley.

"It's good to know that course a little bit," Grunch said.

"I'm proud of the guys, they were conference champs and now we're regional champs. Going into the state finals we hope to get into the top 10 or better.

"It's nice we're peaking at the right time."

Rayders' magical season ends at regionals

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

TRAVERSE CITY — The Charlevoix High School baseball team brought together a magical season in 2013.

Last weekend, the Rayders won their first district title since 1988.

Earlier in the year, they claimed their first league title since 1982.

They entered Saturday's Division III regional semifinal against Negaunee on a 13-game winning streak, carried an impressive 27-2 record and were ranked No. 9 in the Division III state coaches poll.

Their 27 wins was also a school record, breaking the prior high of 23.

Unfortunately for the Rayders, there wouldn't be a 28th win as Neguanee junior lefthander Tyler Jandron stymied Charlevoix's usually potent offensive and running attack.

Jandron held the Rayders to just three hits, struck out 11 batters, walked just two and made the play of the game in the top of the seventh inning to force out a runner at second as the Miners knocked off the Rayders, 2-1, in the regional semifinals.

Negaunee then fell to Whittemore-Prescott, 7-2, in the title game.

Whittemore-Prescott, which advanced to the title game with a 6-4 win in Saturday's opening game against Kalkaska, will face Clare in a Division III state quarterfinal game Tuesday at Traverse City West.

Jandron allowed just one run in the first inning on three hits, then simply shut the Rayders down the rest of the way.

"I told their coach (Mark Hill) he (Jandron) was the best pitcher we've faced all year long without a doubt," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Early on, he struggled a little bit with his control, but he really settled in and we couldn't get anything going like we had hoped.

"We really haven't been stymied all year," Telgenhof said. "We've only been shutout once all year and we've been averaging about eight runs a game. We thought sooner or later we'd get it going, but they (Negaunee) made the plays and credited them. They are a nice team."

The Rayders took a 1-0 lead in the top of the first inning as Nate Moon singled up the middle, Shane Sutherland singled to left and Tommy Zipp walked. J.J. Bottomley then drove in Moon with an RBI single. The Rayders nearly made it 2-0 in the same inning, but Sutherland was tagged out on a close play at the plate.

"We had a play at the plate in the first inning and we didn't think that one potential run would be the last chance we'd have to score," Telgenhof said.

Negaunee pushed across both of their runs in the bottom half of the first inning as Tyler LaJoie reached on a bunt single, stole second and scored as Jandron singled and moved to second on an error to tie it at 1-1.

Jandron then scored the eventual game-winning run as Zane Radloff reached on an error.

"He's a real gamer," Hill said of Jandron. "He contributed two really nice hits and then he made a really sweet play at the mound where he reached out and knocked the ball down. If he doesn't get a hand on that ball, the game easily could've been tied."

The game remained tied until the seventh when the Rayders led off the inning as Bottomley was hit by a pitch. Hunter Cox pinch ran for Bottomley and was forced out at second as Jandron knocked down a hard-hit liner up the middle, scrambled off the mound and in one motion made a diving force-out at second to get Cox.

"That was great play on his part," Telgenhof said.

With two outs, Telgenhof eventually moved to third on a pair of wild pitches as the tying run was just 90 feet away. Jandron then struck out Tag McCreadie to secure the win.

"We just couldn't get anything going," Telgenhof said. "He (Jandron) did a good job of mixing up his pitches. We all thought we were going to win the game. We had a runner on third with two outs and like so many times this season, we thought we'd push that run across."

Tommy Zipp took the loss for the Rayders as he allowed two runs on seven hits while walking one and striking out seven.

"Tommy pitched a great game," Telgenhof said. "Early on, he may have had some nerves and they got some good swings on him, but once he got dialed in he was good."

Jandron and the Miners limited the Rayders both at the plate and on the basepaths throughout the game.

"We knew they had a good record and they had a couple of kids with 18 stolen bases," Hill said. "We have a strong catcher with a good arm and Jandron has a good pick-off move to first. Our motto was they had to get on before they could steal."

The Rayders close a 27-3 season and will graduate just two seniors in McCreadie and Zipp.

"It's been a magical season, that's one way to describe it," Telgenhof said. "Our goal was to win the district. Realistically we were 17-7 last year, lost five seniors including our two best players and we didn't count on anything like this. They really came through."

"The chemistry on this team was something," Telgenhof said. "These kids really believed in each other and played for each other. As a group they came together and it was a special season, it's just a tough way to end it."

Mike and Chris Way receive character award

A Charlevoix couple that is well-know for their contributions to the community, especially supporting Rayder athletic programs, were honored this week by the Beyond the Scoreboard Organization at its ninth annual Champions of Character Awards Banquet at the Emmet County Fairgrounds.

This annual banquet recognizes Northern Michigan area individuals, coaches, athletes, officials, and other sport leaders who through their actions have demonstrated, educated, mentored, or encouraged good sportsmanship through youth or interscholastic sports.

Among those recognized at this years event were Charlevoix's Mike and Chris Way who were awarded the Outstanding Parents Award

The nomination description from the event program reads:

"Mike and Chris came to Charlevoix in 2005 and immediately jumped right in as willing school and community workers. Their two daughters were outstanding athletes at the middle and high school level but even after they graduated the Ways have remained involved. In regards to parenting, they are tremendous role models and examples as to how all parents should perform. Simply put, they give of their time, resources and have no problem grasping the sportsmanship concept. Mike and Chris get involved, are always positive and choose to live life in victory rather than be influenced by the things that can drag people down. During six years of volleyball Mike video-taped games, has coached seventh-eighth grade girls basketball since 2006 and has assisted with varsity volleyball upon request. Chris has taught in various schools and currently is a full-time paraprofessional for a handicapped 10 year old boy."

The other people recognized at the event included:

— Brianna Burrus, Inland Lakes, Female High School Athlete

— Andrew Furstenberg, Harbor Springs, Male High School Athlete

— Dennis Starkey of Petoskey, and Mark Stormzand, of Cheboygan, High School Coaches

— Patricia Lamberti, Petoskey Youth Soccer, Youth Sports Leader

— Brian Drayton, Petoskey St. Francis, Youth Coach

— Gene Massey of St. Ignance and Ray Fisher of East Jordan, Officials

— Tim and Kathy Drenth of East Jordan, Fantastic Fans

— Jack Taylor, Beyond the Scoreboard founder, Lifetime Achievement Award.

The keynote speaker for the event was Jon Jansen, a University of Michigan All-American football player and 12-year lineman in the NFL who now lives in the Petoskey area.

Beyond the Scoreboard is a Petoskey-based non-profit volunteer organization organized in 2005 "to emphasize the development of positive character traits through youth and interscholastic athletic programs here in Northern Michigan. It strives to teach coaches how to replace the 'win-at-all-cost' model of coaching with the 'effort-towards-excellence' model, pursuing victory with honor.

Trout tournament numbers up, weather 'perfect'

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

There were plenty of smiles to be seen among those organizing and participating in the 29th annual Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament that took place in and around Charlevoix last weekend.

"The weather was the best we've ever had," Dean Mikulski, one of the tournament's long-time organizers said. "With three days of flat water, you could go anywhere you wanted."

And the number of participants edged up from last year a couple dozen to almost 400, another good sign, Mikulski said.

The fishing, he said was some what of a mixed bag.

"The brightest spot was the walleye fishing was probably the best we've ever had," Mikulski said. "We had reports of guys catching their limit every day. The weren't monsters, but you had to be at four-plus pounds to make the board. There was a lot of good action in the South Arm, in the channel and other parts of (Lake Charlevoix), too."

Mikulski said there was also good action with lake trout.

"There were bunches of them taken, but they were all in the 20-25-inch range," he said, noting that the lakers are still subject to the "slot limit" rule that doesn't allow lake trout 24-34 inches to be kept.

On the down side, Mikulski noted that brown trout numbers were down again, a trend that has spanned several years and salmon were nearly non-existant. However, he did note one unusual catch — an Atlantic salmon that was boated by one angler. He also said steelhead catches were down during the tournament — something he said was likely a function of the cooler than normal water temperatures for this time of the year. (He noted that last year at this time the water temperature was 10 degrees warmer).

Overall, Mikulski said the tournament went very smoothly.

"Each year it's just amazing, people come up to us and thank us for a great time they had. Maybe you didn't win anything on the board, but just spending three days out on the water enjoying the outdoors is enough for a lot of people."

MacKinder, Lasky and Hall each also won the port prize for bringing in the biggest fish of the day for each of the tournament's three days.

Marathon expected to draw 1,500 runners

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Just like any runner successfully training for an event, organizers for the upcoming Charlevoix Marathon say the event's numbers continue to show steady improvement.

Ron Suffolk, of Good Boy Events, which will host the Charlevoix Marathon fin its seventh year on Saturday, June 22, said as of Thursday, about 1,200 people had already registered for event's four races — a marathon, half-marathon, and 10K and 5K races. Based on previous years, he expects at least another 300 to register before the races. If Suffolk's prediction holds true, that would be up about 100 participants from last year.

Just like past years, the race will start in the area of Dixon and Petoskey avenues, follow a course through the neighborhoods until reaching the Little Traverse Wheelway at Waller Road and U.S 31. Runners will then follow the path toward Emmet County and will then turn around and re-trace the route back to Charlevoix. The turn around point depends on which race participants are in. The turn around for the marathon is in Emmet County near Townsend Road.

The races will start in this order:

— Marathon and half marathon walkers, 6 a.m.

— Athletes with disabilities, 6:30 a.m

— Marathon, 7 a.m

— Half marathon, 7:30 a.m.

— 10K walk/run: 8 a.m.

— 5K walk/run, 8 a.m

The races will again conclude just north of Memorial Bridge and Bridge Park will again serve as a registration area before the races and the area where runners will gather alter the races for food, hydration, the awards presentations and to enjoy music and other entertainment offerings.

The race will again bring a huge influx of people to Charlevoix and the surrounding areas. Suffolk estimates that each participant brings and average of another one ore two people with him or her.

Among those who have already registered, participants represent 43 of the 50 states and four countries outside the U.S. He noted that last years winners and second-place finishers in both the marathon and half marathon will be back to defend their titles as well.

Suffolk attributed the event's continued popularity to the fact that the area and the course specifically, is well known for its natural beauty, and because, marathon is a Boston Marathon qualifying event, and its relatively flat topography makes it popular with runnings looking to qualify for Boston event.

He also noted that organizers continue to appreciate all the support from the community, especially area law enforcement and municipal officials and area non-profit groups, such as the Charlevoix Rayder track team, the Charlevoix Township Fire Department, and others who man the nine aid stations along the route in exchange for donations from Good Boy Events for their participation.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

Management

ADVERTISING MANAGER

News-Review

The Petoskey News-Review, a media company in northern Michigan, is seeking an Advertising Manager.

We offer a wonderful and well-respected daily newspaper, and also numerous niche and web products. We're looking for someone to lead our advertising retail team, track sales, create and communicate opportunities for sales, provide training and handle major accounts.

The successful candidate will be high-energy, innovative, and motivated with a "can-do" attitude. They will be willing to provide memorable customer service, and be passionate about our print and digital media products. The ability to direct and motivate a sales team, while providing first-class training and leadership, is essential. We're looking for someone with a proven track record of success who embraces new and existing technologies, can make presentations, think on their feet and isn't afraid to roll up their sleeves.

The position offers a comprehensive benefit package and excellent earnings potential.

Our parent company, Schurz Communications, Inc., is a 141-year-old, family-owned organization, with cable, television, radio and newspaper properties throughout the United States

Interested candidates please visit www.schurz.jobs and search Requisition NMR1381

New school board member and more budget cuts

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix Board of Education appointed Charlevoix resident Beau Boss as its new board member after the resignation of longtime president John McLean during its regular meeting on Monday.

The board interviewed and considered Charlevoix residents Alec Amstutz and Bob Jess during a special meeting directly before approving Boss during its regular meeting.

The board wanted to fill the board vacancy before it has to approve a 2013-2014 operating budget, which must be done before July 1. Members of the board expressed concern that the budget that will be up for approval at another special meeting Monday, June 24, does not contain enough tough cuts.

A piece of the 101-year-old Masonic Building in downtown Charlevoix at the corner of Bridge Street and Mason Street fell off and crashed to the sidewalk at around 6:45 a.m. today, Thursday.

The rubble still sat near the front entrance of Subway on Bridge Street as of press time, Thursday, and an area of the sidewalk is taped off. Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix was briefly closed to traffic as well.

"Thankfully no one was hurt," said Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan. "I think it was probably the mortar" around the bricks that was no longer working correctly and allowed them to fall off of the building, he explained.

The fire department will contact the owners of the building, the Charlevoix Masonic Building Association, and let the group make the decision on how to move forward with the repairs, how to remove the bricks from the sidewalk and to call in a professional to evaluate the building, Ivan said.

The sidewalk will continue to be blocked off, he added, until the Masonic association has a professional in to evaluate the building.

Walter Hufford is secretary of the Masonic Building Association.

It was originally constructed in 1912, he said of the historic building which houses small businesses on the ground level.

"We've been doing a lot on it in the last three, four years, here and there and everywhere trying to get it fixed up. I didn't realize there was any problem with the brick," he explained. "I'll have to find somebody to fix it."

> "Thankfully no one was hurt."
> — Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan

Subway is still open for business today, but customers will have to use the Mason Street entrance, said supervisor of the restaurant Netty Allbritton.

She was at work and was starting to get food ready for the day when she heard a loud crash.

"I looked out the window and saw a cloud of smoke," she said.

She said she wasn't sure what it was at first, but then realized a piece of the building had fallen off and called 9-1-1.

"It was pretty scary," she said.

She mentioned a few things she has noticed about the building that may have signaled it needs work. A tree has been growing in-between a few of the bricks up high on one side of the building since she started working at Subway six years ago.

Ivan agrees that the tree may be one sign that the building is not in the best of health.

"It's a tree that's been there for a while. It doesn't bode well for the building," he said.

Charlevoix City Clerk to resign June 28

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

After nine years as Charlevoix's city clerk, Carol Ochs announced she will resign from her position effective Friday, June 28.

"I would like to commend Carol for the work she has done for the city of Charlevoix and express appreciation for her dedication and service," said city manager Rob Straebel after Ochs made the announcement at Monday night's city council meeting.

"My competency has publicly been brought into question," said Ochs, explaining why she chose to resign. "Clearly people feel they can do my job better than I can. It's not worth the fight."

She does not yet have plans for what will come next for her, said the clerk.

In other business, city council discussed the creation of a committee to revise the city's donation acceptance policy and all agreed that a proposed donation of around $1,200 should be rejected.

The donation was offered to the city by E.J. Saenger, Jr. in a letter with conditions.

Most "notable and somewhat alarming" of the conditions, according to Straebel, is that Saenger asked that the city either waive more than $1,000 in Freedom of Information Act fees charged to Julie Roth for a request she filed, or add the amount of the fees to the total cost associated with beginning the

The breakdown:

Payment in Lieu of Taxes Ordinance: The owners of Lake Harbor Apartments would like to set up a Payment in Lieu of Taxes ordinance that would allow the income-adjusted housing unit to qualify for state funding for renovations and reduce the amount it currently pays to the city and state in property taxes. This will be discussed by city officials and the public at a public hearing at 7 p.m. Monday, July 1, at city hall. The owners would no longer pay property taxes and instead pay an annual fee for the next 18 years. In the first year, the payment would be $12,500 compared to about $16,500 that would be paid in taxes. The payment would increase by 2 percent each year of the program. The apartments serve housing needs for low-income residents.

City Zoning Ordinance: Zoning administrator Mike Spencer and the city's planning commission have developed a new city zoning ordinance. The existing ordinance was originally adopted in 1977. The new ordinance includes extensive changes to the city's zoning. The document will be discussed at the Monday, July 1, city council meeting before the public hearing at 7 p.m. Monday, July 15, at city hall. It is available on the city's website and at city hall.

Longtime elementary school aides retire

ANNE KELLY
Courier staff writer

Two longtime Charlevoix Elementary School paraprofessionals, Kay Campbell and Dianne VanGuilder, retired their posts in the Charlevoix Elementary School's Title 1 program as of the end of the school year.

"They will both be missed so much," the school's principal Doug Drenth said. "I can't think of a time when they were not positive. If a problem arose, they always just dug in to find a solution without complaining. They were always there 100 percent for the students with smiles on their faces."

Campbell

Kay Campbell, who was recently honored as an Outstanding Person in Education, at the annual regional awards ceremony at Boyne Highlands, has retired after 35 years of service.

"I started in 1978 and have worked under four different principals," Campbell said.

She served as a personal aid for a student in the beginning and soon afterward acquired a position in the Title I program, a federally funded program that assists children with special learning needs. In this position, she worked one-on-one with students and with small pull-out groups in reading and math to supplement classroom instruction.

"I enjoyed watching the kids grow in the course of the school year," she said. "I believe all kids can learn, even if to different degrees, and it's important that they see the progress they've made. It boosts their confidence when they realize that someone has taken an interest in them. They just need reassurance, and then they become proud of themselves."

Campbell and her husband Larry, have two grown children and reside in Charlevoix. They are looking forward to traveling in their retirement and spending more time with their grandchildren.

VanGuilder

Dianne VanGuilder has worked at Charlevoix Elementary School for 20 years. She started out as a special needs personal aide, then assisted in kindergarten and has been in the Title 1 program for the last eight years. Trained as a teacher with a degree from Trinity College in Deerfield, Ill., VanGuilder couldn't find a teaching job at the time. Over the years she worked as a medical receptionist and later raised her family as a full-time homemaker until she joined the Charlevoix staff in 1993, revisiting her career as an educator.

"I have mixed emotions about retiring," she said. "It's nice to think I'll have a flexible schedule, but I'll miss seeing the kids every day. The interaction with them is very rewarding."

VanGuilider said feels fortunate to have spent time working with two positive principals, Dick Swenor and Doug Drenth, and has enjoyed being part of an educational team.

"It has been great working with a staff that is dedicated to kids. Their dedication and enthusiasm in the classroom and their commitment to their profession transferred over to our program."

VanGuilder's husband, Dennis, a former Charlevoix administrator, preceded his wife in retirement. The couple is looking forward to spending more time with their three grown children and five grandsons.

Could expedition be closing in on the Griffin?

Scientists: Timber found in Lake Michigan is centuries old

JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press

FAIRPORT, Mich. (AP) — A wooden beam embedded at the bottom of northern Lake Michigan appears to have been there for centuries, underwater archaeologists announced Tuesday, a crucial finding as crews dig toward what they hope is the carcass of a French ship that disappeared while exploring the Great Lakes in the 17th century.

Expedition leaders still weren't ready to declare they had found a shipwreck or the long-lost Griffin. The ship, commanded by the French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier de la Salle, was never seen again after setting sail in September 1679 from an island near the entrance of Green Bay, in what is now northern Wisconsin, with a crew of a six and a cargo of furs.

But Michel L'Hour, director of France's Department of Underwater Archaeological Research and a shipwreck expert, said the timber appears to be a bowsprit, which is a spur or pole that extends from a vessel's stem. It also seems to be attached to another structure below the lake bed, he said.

"All the details could be interpreted as part of a bowsprit and there's no details which contract this hypothesis," said L'Hour, who dove to inspect the beam with two French colleagues Monday and Tuesday. "It's why it's the main hypothesis now. A bowsprit which has been buried in the sediment of the lake for many centuries."

> "I think that maybe Steve (Libert) found the Griffin."
> — Michel L'Hour, director of France's Department of Underwater Archeological Research

Commercial divers overseen by scientists last week began excavating at the base of the wooden beam, hoping to determine whether it is part of the Griffin. Steve Libert, a diver and shipwreck enthusiast who has searched three decades for the Griffin, discovered the timber in 2001 and recently obtained state and federal permits to probe beneath the surface.

The beam extends 10.5 feet above the lake bed, and underwater excavators were opening a pit at the base of the post to determine whether it's affixed to anything beneath. In another key development Tuesday, they reported that a probing device had detected a hard surface 18 to 20 feet below the lake bed. It could be a ship's hull or deck.

"In essence, we have found a floor under that exposed wooden timber," said Ken Vrana, the project manager. "We have more excavation to do before verifying what that surface is."

L'Hour said the French archaeologists drew their conclusion about the beam's age after observing differences between the section above the lake floor and the portion below the surface that the pit has exposed. The aboveground section is narrower because of erosion that must have happened over hundreds of years, he said.

Libert said he was excited by the reports and had "no doubt" the beam was part of a ship. But it remained uncertain when the team might be able to positively identify the presumed vessel.

"I think that maybe Steve found the Griffin," L'Hour said at a briefing for reporters. "I can't be sure, which is why I'm waiting and waiting and waiting for the proof."

Although visibly optimistic, the searchers cautioned against expecting quick resolution of a mystery that has thrown numerous hurdles in Libert's path.

After years of research led him to an area near Poverty Island a few miles off Michigan's Upper Peninsula, he literally bumped into the timber during a dive. That touched off years of legal battles between his Great Lakes Exploration Group and the state over access to the presumed shipwreck.

When the excavation finally got underway last Friday, divers expected to find an object similar to the Griffin's reputed size a couple of feet below the surface, based on sonar readings. It's now believed to be perhaps 10 times farther down. Libert, who says he has spent more than $1 million on his long quest and put the excavation's price tag at "six figures," scrambled to obtain equipment that can dig deeper and is better

What's the buzz about?

FAIRPORT — Commercial fisherman Larry Barbeau's comings and goings usually don't create much of a stir in this wind-swept Lake Michigan outpost, but in the past few days, his phone jangles the minute he arrives home.

Barbeau's 46-foot boat is the offshore nerve center for an expedition seeking the underwater grave of the Griffin, the first ship of European design to traverse the upper Great Lakes. Built on orders of legendary French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier de la Salle, it ventured from Niagara Falls to Lake Michigan's Green Bay but disappeared during its return in 1679.

Divers this weekend opened a pit at the base of a wooden beam that juts nearly 11 feet from the lake bottom, believing it could be a section of the vessel, the rest presumably entombed in mud. They picked up the pace Monday with more powerful equipment after a weekend of probing showed that whatever is buried is deeper than sonar readings indicated.

U.S. and French experts insist it is too early to say whether there's a shipwreck — let alone the Griffin. But anticipation is building at the prospect of solving a maritime puzzle that's more than three centuries old.

"After we get done for the day, everybody calls or comes to the house and they're like, 'What did you find? What did you see? Can you tell me anything?' " Barbeau said in a Sunday interview aboard his ship, the Viking, which holds crucial expedition equipment, including "umbilical" cables that supply oxygen to divers. "People are really interested and they're excited to see what it is."

iPad, 'nice' even 'amazing' but not life-changing

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

No one who knows me could accuse me of being up to date when it comes to things electronic. College and later graduate school did not seriously expose me to the idea of computers. They had barely been invented. When I wished to speak to the computer at Michigan State University at that time, I had to carry a half-dozen boxes of very carefully punched computer cards to the second floor of a campus building, which housed a monstrous, vacuum tube-containing machine which could read my punched cards. I have never completely been a child of the computer age, until now.

At the urging of several of our children, who no longer know how to write the sort of letters delivered by the postal service, I acquired an Apple iPad. It is a glorious machine, almost magical. Some of the early computers I have owned, mostly for word-processing, were large and had limited memory capacity. The iPad seems to have an enormous memory for its size, and I have been taking advantage of it to store photos. The digital camera has been my most extensive sally into the electronic age until now.

It is clear that with this device, whole new worlds of potential communication are open to me. I have even Googled a few topics of interest and I have sent my first e-mails. It is kind of like telling people, as did the Whos down in Whoville, "I am here. I am here."

I have some concerns about my continuing relationship with this recent addition to my contact with the digital world. I do not need such rapid communication as a part of my employment, as I am in the fortunate position of not being employed. There are very few things I want to know or need to know as rapidly as Google will provide them. I have a sufficient number of friends, and I have a life that is filled with activities and projects that at present occupy most of the time available. If I am really going to take advantage of this new portal into the world, I will need to eliminate something else that I am already doing. Maybe.

I am just not good at prioritizing, but I have prioritized my life up to now. There are only so many hours in the day. If I have to call up e-mail a few times a week just to delete unwanted messages, there will be even fewer hours. I am beginning to suspect that I am not the only person with this concern.

What of my current life would I like to eliminate to make room for this new toy?

The most ready answer is, "none of it." A few personal e-mails may save me some time, but time is not of the essence for me. I like to write letters, and even more than that, I like to receive them.

I am forced to admit that I am not well equipped to function in the new electronic age. It may be my loss, but that is a price I am willing to pay. As long as I am not a direct part of the workforce, the extra speed available with electronic communication is less valuable to me than it would be to someone with more deadlines to meet. The new iPad is certainly nice and even amazing, but I don't expect it can change my life very much. If it does, I will let you know.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

The Baptist presence began here with the arrival of the Charlevoix Summer Home Association, later known as the Belvedere Club, in 1878, founded by Baptist Church members from Kalamazoo. (The Club will be celebrating its 135th year in Charlevoix this August.) Their presence grew over the next six years from 10 members to almost 600. In August of 1888, the Baptists laid the cornerstone of Charlevoix's third church, after the Methodists (1878) and the Congregationalists (dedicated 1885), all on State Street. In layout and design it was almost identical to the Congregational Church a block and a half away--an L-shaped floor plan with two high gables holding a steeple between them on its right side. Two early 20th century worshipers were summer residents Ransom E. Olds, founder of Oldsmobile, and famed poet Sara Teasdale of St. Louis whose family lived in a house where the Dunes condominium is now on Michigan Avenue. The Teasdales drove downtown to church in a black carriage pulled by two black horses driven by a coachman in full livery. Rather than renovate a badly aged structure in the 1960s, the members decided to build larger out on M-66 where the first service took place in February of 1969. The original bell, presented in 1890, had not been rung for 30 years, so it was rehung in the new tower and finally pealed out again on the church's 120th anniversary on Aug. 5, 1998. Charlevoix's fire hall occupies the site of the original church.

The Rotary Club of Boyne City, Charlevoix, and East Jordan recently donated $3,000 to Leadership Charlevoix County for its fundraising project to purchase Mobi-Mats for Whiting Park in Charlevoix County to make the park and the waterfront more accessible to users with disabilities. Leadership Charlevoix County applied for a grant from Charlevoix Rotary Club and they challenged the other two Rotary clubs in the county to match their grant. The three Rotary Clubs worked together to help Leadership Charlevoix County raise funds to meet its $11,000 goal for the project. BUSINESS

Charlevoix's Pigs Eatin' Ribs has a new home

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff writer

ANNE KELLY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Pigs Eatin' Ribs' owner, executive chef and pitmaster Adam Kline, stands outside the business' new location on U.S. 31 near the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

Pigs Eatin' Ribs Smokehouse, which won the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce's "Best New Business of the Year" award during the organization's annual awards ceremony in March, now has a new home.

Adam Kline, executive chef and pit master of the enterprise which recently moved into the former Mary's Take Out building on U.S. 31 South across from the Charlevoix Municipal Airport, is a Charlevoix born and bred entrepreneur.

"From my earliest years, beginning with watching my grandma bake cinnamon rolls and fry chicken in her kitchen, I have been interested in food and cooking," Kline said.

After graduating from high school, Kline began pursuing his dream. His introduction to the culinary arts was training under Garrett Scanlan, former chef at Charlevoix Country Club and subsequently at Garretts' on Water Street. Scanlon currently resides in Knoxville, Tenn. where he hosts his own culinary TV show on PBS. Kline attended Schoolcraft College in Livonia where he earned a culinary degree at a college that he said he believes has "the best culinary program in the state."

While at Schoolcraft, Adam, along with three other cooks on his team, won the National American Culinary Federation Student Hot Food Competition by preparing a prize-winning four-course meal in an hour: salad, appetizer, entree and dessert. The competition also included a demonstration of knife skills.

With a culinary degree and a competition award under his belt, Kline once again worked with his mentor Garrett Scanlan at Garrett's on Water Street. After three years, Kline, now married, moved to Charleston, S.C. with his wife, Jill. In Charleston, Kline worked as a line cook for S.N.O.B., a Low Country Kitchen downtown, as a private chef, and finally for Al Di La, "the best Italian restaurant in Charleston," according to Kline, where he started as a line cook, advanced to sous chef and eventually was appointed executive chef.

Wanting to move back to Charlevoix to be closer to family and friends, Kline began formulating an idea for an eatery that would bring a new dimension to the Charlevoix restaurant scene. His idea evolved from the acquisition of a smoker, once used by a good friend who taught welding in Ludington.

"I told him if he ever wanted to get rid of the smoker, I'd buy it," Kline said. "I love barbecue and thought it just might come in handy."

And it did.

That very smoker along with a converted school bus bearing the Pigs Eatin' Ribs logo, and a determination to make a go of the barbecue business, led to a formative year doing mobile catering and eventually to procuring the present building where he has found a niche in vending, catering and carry-out. There will be picnic table dining this summer and Kline has plans of expansion. He will be moving a newly renovated barbeque-mobile to be operating in Traverse City this summer as an extension of his enterprise.

"We make everything from fresh ingredients. Our beans and our barbecue sauce are homemade, and of course we smoke our own meat," Kline said.

Kline added: "None of this would have been possible without the support of my family, my staff, and most importantly my wife Jill. She is my backbone."

The couple has three young children ages 5, 3, and 1. Besides helping Kline with the books, Jill maintains an accounting position online which she had in Charleston.

"She's amazing," Kline said.

Pigs Eatin' Ribs is open for business 11 a.m.-8 p.m., Monday-Saturday, and 11 a.m.-3 p.m. Sunday.

Local organizations receive $33,876 in People Fund grants

Great Lakes Energy members continue to lend a hand to local community causes through their voluntary contributions to the People Fund. The People Fund Board of Directors awarded a total of $33,876 in grants in June to the following non-profit organizations in northern Michigan.

The grants include:

— Friendship Centers of Emmet County, Petoskey, $2,000 for a Meals on Wheels vehicle.

— North Country Kids, Harbor Springs, $882 for books, scholarships and art supplies for a children's literacy enrichment program.

— Gaylord Gators Swim Club, Gaylord, $625 for a laptop computer and printer.

— Crossroads Ministries New Life Pregnancy Resource Center, Petoskey, $969 for a computer and camera.

— Otsego Conservation District, Gaylord: $5,000 for an amphitheater at the Otsego County Alternative Landscaping Demonstration Garden.

— Grandvue Medical Care Facility, East Jordan: $6,000 for a wheelchair accessible van.

— Kalkaska Historical Society, Kalkaska: $600 for a laptop computer.

— Compassionate Hearts, Boyne City, $5,000 for emergency assistance for people in need.

— Raven Hill Discovery Center, East Jordan: $10,000 for the Evolving Technologies building.

— Au Sable Institute of Environmental Studies, Mancelona, $800 for improvements to their trails.

— Eta Nu Charities, Boyne City, $2,000 for the Dress for Chill program that provides winter outerwear to children in need.

Grants will be awarded later this month to organizations in the cooperative's central and southern service areas. The People Fund is supported solely by Great Lakes Energy members who allow their electric cooperative to round up their bill each month to the next dollar. Since 1999, more than $2.3 million in grants have been awarded to charitable and community organizations throughout Great Lakes Energy's 26-county service area, which stretches along the western side of Michigan.

Great Lakes Energy members can enroll in the People Fund by calling (888) 485-2537 or visiting gtlakes.com.

Non-profit organizations in the Great Lakes Energy service area can apply for a grant through the People Fund by calling Great Lakes Energy (888) 485-2537, ext. 1313. The next grant application deadline is Oct. 1.

We the People

Since the founding of our nation, the role of newspapers in our democracy has been crystal clear. We have been, and will continue to be, the eyes and ears of the American people. After all, the right of free speech is meaningless if no one knows what's really going on. That's why more than 100 million Americans depend on their hometown newspapers daily and why today's newsrooms are staffed with dedicated, highly trained reporters and experienced editors who bring you the very best journalism found anywhere, in print and online.

OBITUARIES

Julia K. Bobb, 88

Julia K. Bobb, age 88, originally of Charlevoix, formerly of Dayton, Ohio, and most recently of Union, Ohio, passed away on Thursday, June 13, 2013.

Julia was born on April 23, 1925, in Charlevoix to the late John and Katerian (Jainas) Krchak.

She is preceded in death by her husband, Harry E. Bobb, in 1996 and a son, Jeffrey J. Bobb, in 2005.

She was an active member of the North Riverdale Lutheran Church.

Julia is survived by a daughter, Shelley J. Bobb, of Milwaukee, Wis., a son, Christopher, and his wife Jill, of Piqua, Ohio; two grandsons, Josh and Tyler Bobb and numerous beloved nieces, nephews and friends.

The family received friends from 2-4 p.m. on Sunday, June 16, at Baker-Hazel & Snider Funeral Home and at 10 a.m. on Monday, June 17, at North Riverdale Lutheran Church in Dayton until the time of the service at 11 a.m. by the Rev. Monte Stevens.

In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to North Riverdale Lutheran Church in Julia's memory. Online condolences for the family may be sent to www.bakerhazelsnider.com.

Mildred L. (Houts) Speigl, 87

Mildred L. (Houts) Speigl, 87, of Hayes Township, went to be with her Lord June 17, 2013, surrounded by her family. "She has fought the good fight."

Mildred was born on Oct. 11, 1925, in Petoskey, the daughter of Fred and Ruth (Jones) Houts. Mildred, known as Millie, had many talents that she shared. She loved crocheting, sewing, embroidery, cooking, playing bingo, guitar, piano and violin. Most of the things she made she gave away because she had a very generous heart.

Mildred was the Petoskey Eagles cook for years and ran the fair booth. She also cooked and waitressed at the "Famous Chicken Basket." Mildred was the mother to the very popular Road Runners band and often sang with them; she followed them to most of their events. Mildred loved music, her family and helped each one of them in any way she could.

Mildred resided at Boulder Park Terrace the last three years and loved making people laugh there. She pulled on the heart strings of many workers. They will remember Mildred for her singing and looking forward to attending church on Sunday. She loved her Lord and held him close to her heart.

Mildred attended Greensky Hill Indian Church and had many friends there before her Boulder Park Terrace stay. She has a beautiful handmade rug in front of the fireplace she donated for all to see in the fellowship hall. Mildred shared her love of Jesus to everyone she came into contact with. She wanted to make sure everyone had the opportunity to hear the invitation and to accept the Lord so they could be with her in heaven.

She was an amazing woman and will be missed by all.

Mildred is survived by her children, Albert (Debbie) Sadowski, Jerry (friend Bessie Drewanz) Sadowski, Fay (Robert) McKnight-Fagnant, Jim (Diana) Speigl, Andy Speigl Jr. (friend Peggy Cassidy), Anna (Leon) Parker, Steve (Reta) Speigl, Bill (Mary) Werner and Marla Bockman; brother, William A Houts; 25 grandchildren; 37 great-grandchildren and many nieces, nephews and cousins.

She is preceded in death by her parents, Fred and Ruth; sisters, Helen (Robert) Thompson and Betty (George) Speigl; and brother-in-law, John Bockman.

A graveside service was 11 a.m. Thursday, June 20, at the Undine Cemetery in Hayes Township with pastor Timothy Wright officiating.

Memorial donations may be directed to Greensky Hill Indian Church, 8484 Green Sky Hill Road, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720; or Hospice Health, 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich. 49720.

Family and friends wishing to share a thought or memory are encouraged to do so online at www.stonefuneralhomeinc.com.

New Medicare/Medicaid counselors assigned to Charlevoix County

Charlevoix County residents have two new counselors available to help seniors with questions concerning Medicare and Medicaid.

Ron Chapman and Leslie Lake are certified by the Michigan Medicare/Medicaid Assistance Program to provide help with the selection of health and prescription drug plans and other topics dealt with by seniors and the disabled.

Chapman will provide the services at the Eveline Township Hall located on Ferry Road in East Jordan. He will be available by appointment by calling (231) 547-6724.

Lake, the county's Commission on Aging director, now provides the service along with her other duties at the commission on aging facility on West Garfield Street in Charlevoix. She can be reached at (231) 237-0103.

The two counselors join Pat Mahan, who has been providing assistance to Medicare and Medicaid beneficiaries at the Boyne Area Senior Center on East Division Street in Boyne City. The phone number for the senior center is (231) 582-6682.

"When seniors and individuals with disabilities become eligible for Medicare they are presented with a huge number of choices," said Jim Verville, regional coordinator for the assistance program. "Our counselors are trained and certified under standards established by Medicare to provide help to beneficiaries in making these important decisions."

The program's team members are not affiliated with any insurance company and provide a list of plan options that are available to beneficiaries based on their particular set of circumstances. Additionally, help is provided to beneficiaries on billing issues, fraud and abuse complaints, appeals and other areas of concern.

For help outside Charlevoix County, a Michigan Medicare/Medicaid Assistance Program counselor can be reached at (800) 803-7174.

NCMC to offer classes in Charlevoix County

North Central Michigan College will offer college courses in Charlevoix County starting Tuesday, Sept. 3.

The courses will be in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

Boyne City

Beginning/Intermediate Algebra 1 will be 6-7:50 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays at the Boyne City High School. This is the first of two courses designed for the student placing into Beginning Algebra and needing Intermediate Algebra.

Introduction to Sociology will be offered 6-8:50 p.m., Thursdays at Boyne City High School. This course is an introduction to the scientific study of society, examining modern Western societies in terms of social processes, organizations, institutions and problems.

Charlevoix

U.S. History 1 will be offered 5-7:50 p.m., Tuesdays at Charlevoix Public Library. This course is a study of the development of American social, political and economic life from the period of colonial settlement through the Reconstruction.

Knowledge Mining will be offered 10 a.m.-2 p.m. on four Saturdays this fall at the Charlevoix Public Library: Sept. 21, Sept. 28, Oct. 5 and Oct. 12. This course presents an introduction to advanced Internet-based information searching strategies or "knowledge mining." Call (231) 348-6619 for more information.

East Jordan

Introduction to Biology will be offered 6-8:30 p.m., Mondays and Wednesdays at the East Jordan High School. This course is designed for non-science majors and for those students wishing to improve their skills before attempting more advanced studies.

CPR and First Aid will be offered 9 a.m.-5:50 p.m., Saturdays, Oct. 12 and Oct. 19 at the East Jordan EMS Station on Maple Street. Students will practice adult, child and infant cardiopulmonary resuscitation as well as standard first aid.

EMT Basic is offered 5-9:50 p.m., beginning Wednesday, Sept. 4, on Mondays and Wednesdays through Dec. 20 at the East Jordan EMS Station on Maple Street. There are also classes 8 a.m.-4:50 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 21, Saturday, Oct. 5, Saturday, Oct. 26 and Saturday, Dec. 7.

EMT Basic follows the outline prescribed by the National Registry and the State of Michigan to receive National Registry Certification as a Basic Emergency Medical Technician. The course involves classroom, hands-on instruction both in the College lab and clinical sites. All courses are part of the curriculum at North Central Michigan College and are transferable to other colleges and universities.

To register for these classes, one must first enroll as a student at NCMC by going to www.ncmich.edu. Deadline for registration is Sept. 9.

Zonta names Young Women in Public Affairs Award winner

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club recently named Sydney Carlson, a recent graduate of Charlevoix High School, the winner of this year's Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award.

The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award competition is designed to encourage women to pursue decision-making positions in their communities in order to impact the policies that affect the lives of women locally and throughout the world. The Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs program looks to the young women of today who will be the leaders of tomorrow.

Zonta officials said Sydney was chosen as the Charlevoix Area Zonta winner because of her involvement with her community, her focus on her career goals and her understanding of and involvement with global issues and cultures.

"(Sydney) demonstrates her commitment to the community and school through her participation as president of her class, through National Honor Society, varsity basketball and soccer, and her local volunteer efforts," Zonta officials wrote in a news release.

Zonta International is a global service organization of executives and professionals working together to advance the status of women worldwide through service and advocacy. The Charlevoix Area Zonta Young Women in Public Affairs Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta. Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in late fall, 2013.

Kilpatrick, Garrod join Northern Michigan Review ad staff

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Northern Michigan Review welcomed two new employees in June. Rachel Garrod, 24, is a Phone Guide advertising sales representative and Jacqueline Kilpatrick, 27, is an advertising consultant for several of the company's publications, including the Petoskey News-Review.

One part of the new job she is excited about is getting to know her clients, said Garrod.

"I like it for the customer service aspect of it, I love being able to talk to the local people," she said. "You see so much life in these people and their businesses. They have wonderful stories and you can talk to them for hours and not get bored."

Garrod has been the marketing manager at the La Senorita in Petoskey and worked as a waitress and bartender before that.

"Everything in my life kept directing me toward marketing," she said.

Garrod plans to continue to advance her career through higher education.

In her free time she enjoys gardening, fishing and "sand bar Sundays," an informal boating event on Pickerel Lake with live music.

Kilpatrick has job experience in sales and retail and a degree in business marketing that will help her in her new position as an advertising consultant for Northern Michigan Review.

Garrod

Kilpatrick

She enjoys helping others and is excited to help businesses grow through advertising, she said.

"I like to put myself on the other side of things and I can see how consumers see things as well as clients. I try to understand both sides of it to know what people need," Kilpatrick explained.

She believes the company is staying current with emerging technology, which will help her clients do the same, she said.

"We're growing with technology, we're not just staying back and staying with print. It helps to reach more markets that are out there and be able to reach markets that are specific to the client. The fact that we have a lot of options for people is good," she said.

In her free time, Kilpatrick enjoys spending time with her four children, gardening and sewing.

Bradley earns yacht club scholarship

Help keep Charlevoix beautiful

A community weeding will be held from 4-7 p.m. on Tuesday June 25th. There are a few blocks on the south side of town where the petunias have died off where we are planing on replanting new petunias. There will be shovels available at these locations for individuals who would like assist in the replanting. During the weeding process of the petunia beds we would also like to ask everyone to look behind the petunia beds and pull the weeds/long grass from the right of way between the beds and the sidewalks. The appearance of the right of way greatly affects the overall look of petunias. Keep Charlevoix Beautiful would also like to remind everyone that Friske Orchards will be providing all the weeders with a Strawberry Shortcake Social in East Park at 7:00 p.m. following the community weeding.

process of building a decorative fireplace in East Park that was halted after significant push back.

Roth has refused to pay the FOIA fees and the city considered taking the matter to small claims court.

Strachel recommended the council not accept the donation and the council members unanimously agreed.

"I think the city council had made a wise decision at its last meeting to direct staff to take the issue to small claims court," Straebel said. "I also question the ethics of the city taking money in consideration of not taking up a legal matter. It's bad precedence."

"Why don't we suggest the gentleman just pay the fee?" asked councilman Gabe Campbell.

"He should just give it to her," agreed councilwoman Shirley Gibson.

Councilman Lyle Gennet said he believes accepting the gift is a bad idea.

"This is another thing that needs to be addressed in the (city's new) gift policy," he said. "We need to have wording so this cannot happen. This is a prime example of where we should not be."

To date, $5,770 has been raised to replace costs equalling around $20,000 associated with the nixed fireplace project.

GRIFFIN?

able to break through the hard-packed mud.

It probably will take another day or two to widen the hole and reach the hard surface, Vrana said. The excavation permits expire Friday, although the group could seek extensions. But with the French team scheduled to leave by then, the divers were working faster in hopes of confirming at least the presence of a shipwreck.

State officials and Libert's group agree if the Griffin is found, it will belong to France because it was operating under authority of King Louis XIV. Graham Paul, a French consul general based in Chicago, visited the team over the weekend and said his government would favor attempting to recover the vessel.

"It would be a major excavation and very costly," Vrana said.

But the wreckage could be in surprisingly good condition after being encased in cold mud for 334 years because it wouldn't have been exposed to oxygen, which causes wood and metals to deteriorate, said Dave Miller, an archaeologist with Great Lakes Exploration Group.

"That's the best way of conservation for all the artifacts and for the hull," L'Hour said. "One can't imagine something better than this kind of clay and mud."

only curious ones. The roughly 40-member expedition team consists of archaeologists, historians, boat pilots, divers, an underwater salvage crew and assorted helpers. When not on the water, they stay in cottages and tents by the lake in the unincorporated village of Fairport, in one of the most remote corners of Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

Some are relatives or longtime friends of mission chief Steve Libert, who has sought the ship for three decades. While researching the Griffin long ago, Libert ran across Mike Behrens, a Milwaukee sheet-metal worker whose grandfather had searched the lake for chests of gold that legend says smugglers lost during the Civil War.

"I came up here one year to witness what Steve was doing, and I asked if I could dive with him," said Behrens, 54. "Been doing it ever since. ... I've never met anyone as good at research as him, and he's a very ethical guy. If he says it's the Griffin, I absolutely believe him."

Others have come aboard more recently, including three archaeologists from France who arrived over the weekend.

The hands-on excavation work is being handled by a three-man crew from Great Lakes Diving and Salvage, a Michigan company that ordinarily deals with mundane tasks: repairing pumps or scraping zebra mussels off intake pipes.

"We're basically underwater janitors," said Tom Gouin, vice president of operations. The Griffin, he said, is "like a play job for us. We're loving it."

The team has had to adjust its strategy, as the excavation is proving to be a bigger-than-expected challenge.

Sonar scans in years past had suggested that an object similar to the Griffin's reputed size rested about 2 feet beneath the lake floor. But commercial divers on Friday found the bottom caked with a thick layer of invasive, fingernail-size quagga mussel shells.

After tunneling through mussels, the divers began sucking away gravel and sediments, never hitting anything solid. By Sunday night, the hole reached about 8 feet below the lake bed and it wasn't clear how far down the wooden beam extended or what it might be attached to, said Ken Vrana, the project manager.

But as more is exposed, the post appears increasingly likely to be part of a ship, said Michel L'Hour, director of France's Department of Underwater Archaeological Research.

"We never saw a timber standing like this one," he said. "So it's impossible to imagine it otherwise, so one can expect that there is a hull."

Archaeologists Rob Reedy, of Morehead City, N.C., and Misty Jackson, of Leslie, Mich., sit on the Viking and sift through material that was found in the sediment, watching for artifacts, from bronze cannons to axes or knives — "anything man-made" that would help identify a ship, Reedy said. Thus far, the only candidate has been a slab of blackened wood about 15 inches long with characteristics suggesting it might have been fashioned by human hands. Its origin remains unknown.

Visitors inspired by the long-lost ship have drifted into the area during the search, including a 9-year-old who wrote a school paper about the Griffin and men in period costumes and handmade canoes who in 1976 re-enacted la Salle's journey across the Great Lakes and down the Mississippi River.

Carl Behrend, a folk singer and self-described "pretty-soon major movie star" who lives 90 minutes north on Lake Superior, performed an impromptu concert outside the food tent Sunday night. He said he's composing a song about the Griffin.

"It's rattling around in my head," he said.

AP Correspondent John Flesher is embedded with members of the Great Lakes Exploration Group, which is searching for remains of the Griffin in northern Lake Michigan. He is filing periodic updates on the search.

road, every June 17," said board secretary and treasurer Val Snyder. "We don't like this budget, but we're going to pass it because we've got to. I don't look at it as a balanced budget if we're dipping into the fund balance again."

Board trustee Dick Joseph wondered if bigger cuts could be made.

"We haven't looked at reducing the number of varsity sports options," said Joseph, also wondering about whether cuts could be made to the transportation budget. "There are all kinds of areas that aren't popular, that aren't easy. I feel like we're balancing the budget on the backs of kids."

If approved, the 2013-2014 budget would leave just $25,000 in the fund balance at the end of the 2013 fiscal year.

Other board members repeated that shaving down the school's expenses would be an ongoing goal.

"Know that when we approve this, it's not over. We still have to continually look for ways to reduce our costs and look at ways to generate revenue," said district superintendent Bob Gendron.

The board has cut a total of $1.2 million from its operating budget already, said Gendron. That includes closing the middle school for the upcoming 2013-2014 school year.

"We are going to continue to cut costs," said vice president Kevin Pearsall, acting as president in McLean's absence.

Board trustee Glen Catt referenced his experience in business in addressing the school budget.

"I've been in business that's been in trouble," he said. "You take every single line, every single month, and you watch it with as many eyes as you can spare."

The board will host a public hearing at 5:45 p.m. on Monday, June 24, in the former middle school to consider the 2013-2014 budget. The budget is available for public inspection during regular business hours at 104 E. St. Mary's Drive in Charlevoix. The board of education will have a special meeting following the hearing to vote on the budget.

Belvedere Hickory Open tees off June 20-22

The Belvedere Golf Club, just south of Charlevoix, will host the 8th annual Belvedere Hickory Open June 20-22.

The club will welcome 55 hickory golfers from 19 States and Canada to this year's event. Participants have come from as far away as Manchester, England for past Belvedere Hickory Opens.

The two day competition is played with authentic pre-1935 hickory-shafted golf clubs and competitors dress in period appropriate apparel which includes knickers, ties and jackets. The competition takes place under the auspices of the Society of Hickory Golfers, a national hickory organization which celebrates and promotes the hickory game of the 1910s-30s.

Belvedere has been selected as a "major" hickory venue and is now part of the Hickory Championship Series. The Hickory Championship Series attracts hickory golfers to compete at five "major" venues throughout the year, beginning with the Mountain Valley Spring Water Championship at Pinehurst Resort in Pinehurst, N.C. and ending at the Mid-Pines Hickory Open in Pinehurst, N.C. Points are accumulated at these "major" venues and tallied similarly to the PGA Tour's year ending Fed-Ex Cup point system. Belvedere is hosting the third "major" of the year and was preceded by a stop in Birmingham, Ala. and followed by a stop at Seaview, N.J.

The 2013 Championship Series is sponsored by Mountain Valley Spring Water. The five events comprise the most anticipated hickory championship series ever, Belvedere officials said in a news release about the event.

Hickory golfers vary in their aptitude but all have a great passion for the old game. The champion at Belvedere has historically had to put two rounds in the mid to low 70's together to become champion, Belvedere pro Marty Joy said.

Belvedere Golf Club, established in 1925, is the perfect hickory venue as it was built in the heyday of hickory golf, Joy said. All of the greens are accessible in front and the bunkering is laid out precisely were hickory clubs want to send errant golf balls.

Major golf champions Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Horton Smith, Denny Shute, Jock Hutchison and Leo Diegel have all competed at the Belvedere Golf Club with hickory clubs. Tom Watson (a modern day major champion) is an honorary member of the club and still considers Belvedere Golf Club as one of his top three favorite courses in the country, Joy said.

Tee times for both Friday, June 21, and Saturday, June 22, begin at 9 a.m. Spectators are welcome to walk the course and take in the competition at no charge.

Belvedere Golf Club, the "Home of the Michigan Amateur Championship," will host their 40th Michigan Amateur Championship in 2014.

Rayders take 13th at state finals

BATTLE CREEK — The Charlevoix High School boys' golf team concluded its season Saturday at the Division III state finals at Bedford Valley Golf Course as they placed 13th in the 15-team field.

Lansing Catholic won the Division III state title as they shot a two-day round of 311-302—613; while Jackson Lumen Christi was second, 304-314—618; while Alma was third at 312-315—627.

The Rayders, who this season won the Lake Michigan Conference title and also won their regional tournament, finished at 348-335—683.

Sam Weatherhead of Grand Rapids West Catholic was the Division III individual state medalist as he shot 72-68—140; while Lansing Catholic's Brent Marshall was runner-up at 73-74—147. Jackson Lumen Christi's Connor Madalena finished tied for third at 70-78—148; along with Alma's Brett Green, 73-75—148.

For the Rayders, junior Brad Rizzo finished with a team-best 79-87—166; while senior Corbin Turkelson shot 85-86—171. Sophomore Noah Jeakle shot 93-79—172; followed by senior Chandler Novotny, 93-83—176; and senior Tanner Catt, 91-92—183.

Fellow Lake Michigan Conference team Harbor Springs, placed 12 in the Division IV state finals at Forest Akers East on the campus of Michigan State University, finishing with a two-day score of 346-335—681.

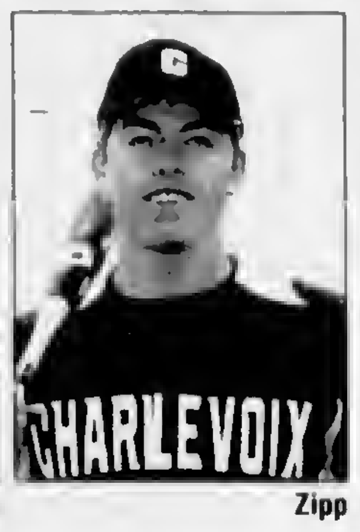
Rayders rack up honors

STEVE FOLEY
Northern Michigan Review

Certa



Zipp

It was a magical season for the Charlevoix High School varsity baseball team this past season.

The Rayders finished a program best 27-3, set a school record for wins in a season, won the program's first district title since 1988 and won their first conference title since 1982.

The Rayders won 13 straight games leading up to their district title before eventually falling to Negaunee in a Division III regional semifinal.

As a result, a pair of Rayders earned Division III All State second-team honors in senior pitcher Tommy Zipp and junior outfielder Noah Certa.

Zipp went 9-1 in 10 appearances for the Rayders as their No. 1 starter. In 51 innings pitched, Zipp struck out 59, walked 14, allowed just 37 hits and 21 runs, 12 earned runs and finished with a 1.65 earned run average.

Offensively, Zipp hit .375 with 27 hits including seven doubles, two triples and one home run with 24 RBI. Zipp also had a .569 slugging percentage.

Certa, who played centerfield for the Rayders, finished with a .424 batting average and led the team with 33 runs scored and had 10 doubles, also a team-best. Certa also finished with 36 hits, 22 RBI and 18 stolen bases. Certa's slugging percentage was .541.

Also earning Division III All State second-team honors was East Jordan junior outfielder Tim Schut. Schut batted .490 for the Red Devils — who finished 8-14 this season — with three home runs and 20 RBI. Schut was also an All-Regional and All-District selection.

Also for the Rayders, Zipp, Certa, Shane Sutherland and Nate Moon earned All-Lake Michigan Conference first-team honors, while J.J. Bottomley, Luke Klinger, Tag McCreadie and Will Telgenhof earned All-Lake Michigan Conference honorable mention.

Earning all-district honors for the Rayders in the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association was Bottomley, Certa, Klinger, Moon, McCreadie, Sutherland, Telgenhof and Zipp, while Certa, Moon and Zipp were named MHSBCA all-region.

Also, McCreadie and Zipp were recently invited to participate in Near-Far All-Star game in Traverse City.

The complete Lake Michigan Conference all-conference team will be published at a later date.

ADVERTISING MANAGER

News-Review

The Petoskey News-Review, a media company in northern Michigan, is seeking an Advertising Manager.

We offer a wonderful and well-respected daily newspaper, and also numerous niche and web products. We're looking for someone to lead our advertising retail team, track sales, create and communicate opportunities for sales, provide training and handle major accounts.

The successful candidate will be high-energy, innovative, and motivated with a "can-do" attitude. They will be willing to provide memorable customer service, and be passionate about our print and digital media products. The ability to direct and motivate a sales team, while providing first-class training and leadership, is essential. We're looking for someone with a proven track record of success who embraces new and existing technologies, can make presentations, think on their feet and isn't afraid to roll up their sleeves.

The position offers a comprehensive benefit package and excellent earnings potential.

Our parent company, Schurz Communications, Inc. is a 141-year-old, family-owned organization, with cable, television, radio and newspaper properties throughout the United States.

Interested candidates please visit www.schurz jobs and search Requisition NMR1381 to learn more about the position and apply

ADOPTION OF A NEW ZONING ORDINANCE AND ZONING MAP

Public notice is hereby given that the City of Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday July 13, 2013 at 7:00 p.m. at Charlevoix City Hall to consider and hear public comments regarding the adoption of a new zoning ordinance and zoning map, in accordance with the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act, Public Act 110 of 2006 (the "Zoning Act"). This ordinance completely replaces the zoning ordinance adopted March 6, 1978. In addition, the official Zoning Map for the City of Charlevoix is also amended to reflect new zoning district names. Numerous properties are proposed to be rezoned based on current or future land use, market changes, or other factors.

This hearing is intended to provide an opportunity for City residents and interested citizens to express their opinions, ask questions, and discuss all aspects of the map and text amendments. Those unable to attend the public hearing are invited to submit written comments to the attention of the Chairman of the Planning Commission at the address cited above.

The new zoning ordinance, which consists of 19 articles, is summarized below:

Article 1, Purpose and Title provides the official title of the ordinance, sets forth its overall purpose and intent, and provides requirements for interpretation, conflicts with other laws, and vested rights.

Article 2, Definitions, defines the particular terms used in the ordinance.

Article 3, Mapped Districts, lists the zoning districts within the City and provides rules for interpreting the City Zoning Map.

Article 4, Residential Districts, establishes the R1 Single Family Residential District, the R2 Single Family Residential District, the R2A Two Family Residential District, the R4 Planned Residential District, and the PC Residential Private Clubs District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific requirements related to multiple family housing are specified

Article 5, Nonresidential Districts, establishes the C-M Commercial Mixed Use District, the C1 General Commercial District, the CBD Central Business District, the CH Commercial Hospitality District, the MC Marine Commercial District, the SR Scenic Reserve District, the PF Public Facilities District, the PO Professional Office District, and the I Industrial District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, and minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific district requirements are listed.

Article 6, Overlay Districts, establishes four overlay districts based on unique land use requirements or conditions. This chapter includes allowed uses and requirements for development within each of these Districts that differ from those of the underlying zoning district.

Article 7, Use Requirements, contains requirements pertaining to specific uses in addition to the development requirements listed for each zoning district. This includes specific requirements for (partial list): accessory buildings and uses, bed and breakfasts, home occupations, uses accessory to hotel/motel, single and two family dwellings, site condominiums, sexually oriented businesses, drive-through restaurants, solar panels, medical use of marijuana, vehicle repair (minor and major), vehicle wash establishments, and wireless telecommunications facilities.

Article 8, General Provisions, outlines provisions that apply generally to all zoning districts. These include (partial list): determining the number of principal uses per lot; determination of uses similar to those listed as permitted or special land uses; fences and walls; allowed projections into required setbacks; maximum lot width to depth ratio, exceptions to height requirements; building grades and lot drainage; corner clearance and visibility; private roads and shared driveways; excavations; essential services; outdoor swimming pool requirements; and temporary uses.

Article 9, Site Development Requirements, provides the requirements for landscaping and buffers, general building appearance and exterior lighting of uses.

Article 10, Off-street Parking, Loading, Access and Circulation, establishes minimum requirements for off-street parking for all uses, including size of spaces, parking setbacks, and provisions for deferring, sharing and modifying the required parking. Minimum design standards are also established.

Article 11, Signs, specifies the type of signs permitted by district and the maximum size and height allowed. Other provisions relate to sign permits, lighting of signs and location.

Article 12, Site Plan Review lists the requirements for site plan applications and outlines the process and standards for consideration of a site plan.

Article 13, Special Land Uses outlines the process and standards for consideration of special land uses within each zoning district.

Article 14, PUD Planned Unit Development District, establishes the PUD Planned Unit Development District. This article specifies qualifying conditions, permitted uses and development requirements (density, open space, etc.) for PUDs. The article also lists the general design standards that all PUDs must meet. Finally, the chapter includes the application requirements and process for review and approval of a PUD and the review standards that must be met for approval

2095 PUBLIC NOTICES

Article 15, Nonconformities, identifies the rights to which all nonconforming uses, structures and lots are entitled and specifies the limitations applicable to expansion and replacement of certain nonconformities.

Article 16, Administration and Enforcement states the duties of the Zoning Administrator, gives the City Council the power to set fees for zoning related requests, allows the City to require performance guarantees, and a declaration that a violation of the Zoning Ordinance is a misdemeanor and that the City has the ability commence appropriate action in a court of jurisdiction.

Article 17, Zoning Board of Appeals, states the membership requirements for the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), the jurisdiction of the ZBA, and the process and standards for consideration of an interpretation, administrative appeal, or dimensional variance.

Article 18, Amendments, defines the process for amending the text of the ordinance and for rezoning of land, and provides a process for conditional rezoning (by which an owner voluntarily places conditions upon the use or development of the land in exchange for rezoning approval)

Article 19, Enactment, establishes the legal adoption of the Zoning Ordinance.

Copies of the proposed ordinance and map are available for public review at the Charlevoix City Clerk's office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, during regular office hours. The ordinance is also available online at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Interested citizens can make comments at the public hearing or written comments may be sent to the City Clerk's Office, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan.

Women can. Women do!

Suzanne Huber (left) and Letty Hulsman, both of Boyne City, have fun opening the party favors included with the table decorations by Linda Burnhan & Associates of East Jordan, at the seventh annual Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan luncheon at Castle Farms in Charlevoix. This year 220 ladies attended the colorful event in Charlevoix.

School board:

Yes to iPads, more robust 2013-14 budget

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

> "(The iPad) was like having a teacher next to him 24/7."
> — Charlevoix resident Stacey Stewart

At a special board meeting Monday, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education passed an operating budget for the 2013-2014 school year more robust than it expected.

During a public hearing that took place before the board meeting, Lori Martinchek, director of finance and administrative services said over the weekend, she learned that the 2013-2014 contribution to the Michigan Public School Employees Retirement System had changed.

Previously, the school projected that it would have just $25,000 in the fund balance at the end of the year. Now, with the change in the cost of the retirement system, the school projects to have $131,820 in its fund balance at the end of the 2014 school year.

"You keep finding hundreds of thousands of dollars," said board trustee Dick Joseph to Martinchek.

That should be about 1 percent of its operating budget.

"I believe after the audit is done, we'll have that approximate 1 percent (of the operating budget)," said Martinchek.

"Ten percent is a healthy number, so we have got some growing to do," said superintendent Bob Gendron. "We have to be continually stabilizing enrollment and look at different revenue sources so we can get ourselves to that point."

The board also voted 4-3 to approve a long-frozen measure to outfit each of its students with iPads. The district approved a total of $411,611 from the 2008 technology bond to purchase iPads and associated technological needs for each of the district's students, but the technology needs will only total $388,795, said technology director Scott Mays. That number includes a rebate grant that would kick back about $70 for each iPad purchased, which would total about $48,000.

Board treasurer and secretary Val Snyder and trustees Mike Pearsall, Dick Joseph and Nancy Allison voted for the spending while trustee Glen Catt, vice president Kevin Pearsall and recent board appointee Bo Boss voted against the measure.

"In 2008, back when we passed the technology bond, iPads were just a thought at that time," said Boss, who was recently appointed to a board vacancy created when John McLean resigned. "I'm a business-owner. I would be paranoid that I was going to go broke if I didn't keep enough money in the checking account."

He pointed to the high school roof, which could need as much as $300,000 in repairs within two years.

"I still want to go 1-to-1 with iPads. I'm just uncomfortable allocating

The Beaver Island ferry Emerald Isle makes its way through the Pine River Channel on its first trip of the 2012 season.

BEAVER ISLAND — The Beaver Island ferry, the Emerald Isle, remained out of service at press time Thursday, after an engine failure forced its crew to abort a trip to Charlevoix and return to the island around 6 p.m. Tuesday.

Barb Schwartzfisher, executive director of the Beaver Island Transportation Authority, which owns the Emerald Isle, said the initial information from Beaver Island Boat Company officials, which operates the Emerald Isle for the transportation authority, was that shortly after the ferry departed the island at 5:20 p.m. one the vessel's

The owners of the 101-year-old Masonic Building in downtown Charlevoix say engineers have determined that the building is in sound structural condition and expect repairs to the exterior brick work, some of which came crashing to the sidewalk early June 20, to begin soon.

Charlevoix-Traverse trail in planning stages

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

A non-motorized recreational trail is being planned between Traverse City and Charlevoix.

The Michigan Department of Transportation has begun scheduling working group meetings between local governments and stakeholders to begin developing ideas for how construction of such a trail might proceed.

"The goal is to connect Traverse City to Charlevoix," thus connecting the Traverse Area Recreational Trail both with the Little Traverse Wheelway and the recreational trail planned between Charlevoix and Boyne City, said Patty O'Donnell, north region planner for the department of transportation.

There has been talk of joining the trails for some time, she said, but the impetus to actually begin scheduling meetings was prompted by a suggestion by Todd Wyett, vice chairman of the Michigan Transportation Commission and Charlevoix resident.

The next meeting on the trail is scheduled for Thursday, June 27, at the Torch Lake Township Hall in Antrim County. It will be the second such meeting and more are anticipated before any solid plans are developed, according to O'Donnell.

In upcoming meetings, the local governments will work together on planning a suggested route for the trail. Current suggestions for segmenting the trail include legs from Traverse City to Elk Rapids, Elk Rapids to East Port and from East Port to Charlevoix.

The department of transportation is not planning to play a large role, O'Donnell said, but is instead convening all involved parties that will have a say. Still, grants may be available for the various segments from the agency.

"(We are) extremely excited about the potential for a new bike/pedestrian trail from (Traverse City) to Charlevoix," said Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel. "Charlevoix would be at the epicenter of many converging trails leading to tangible economic development benefits. We will continue to be part of the trail discussions."

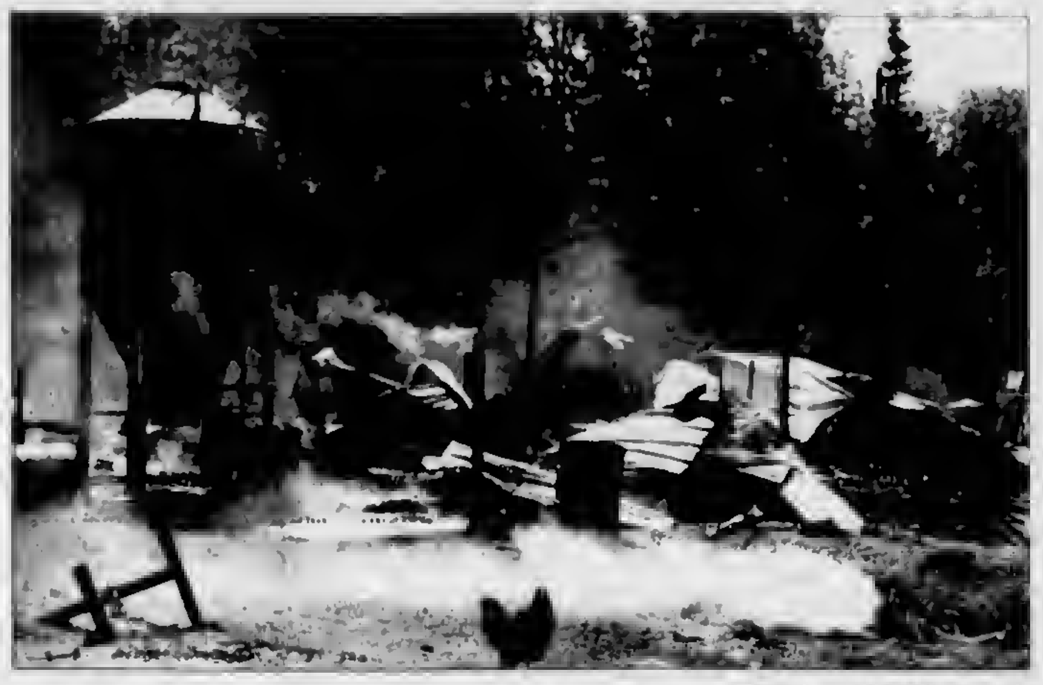
Barn destroyed by fire, animals killed

Heat lamp possible culprit in early morning fire

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review



AEBRA COE/NEWS-REVIEW

All that was left by 11 a.m. Thursday of the Kleiber family's barn was a grain bin and rubble after a fire destroyed it. The fire began at the barn in Norwood Township at around 5 a.m. Thursday morning.

Fire officials will probably never know for sure, but a heat lamp may have been the cause of a fire that destroyed a Norwood Township family's barn and killed some of their animals early June 21.

The Kleiber family awoke around 5 a.m. to the sound of an explosion outside their home just south of Charlevoix on Beck Road.

Marlo Kleiber ran outside and saw that her family's livestock barn was on fire. She called 9-1-1 and within 15 minutes the Charlevoix Fire Department and Charlevoix Township Fire Department had arrived and began fighting the blaze.

The barn was destroyed and although some of the animals that had been in the barn escaped, four piglets and some young turkeys and chickens were killed. All members of the family are safe, as is their home.

"The barn was fully engulfed and on the ground by the time we got there," said William Brodin, a shift commander with the Charlevoix Fire Department.

Less than two hours after crews first responded, the fire was out and most of the firefighters had left the scene.

"We have no clue what happened," said Kleiber later on the morning on the day of the fire. The barn housed horses, goats, pigs, chickens and turkeys. She said that as far as she knows there were only animals in the building, not even a large amount of hay.

By the time she woke up, "It was so engulfed you couldn't get next to it," she said. "But, it could have been worse. It could have reached the house. We have a house and garage still standing. We're thankful we have a home."

But, the family will have to begin work to rebuild the barn to house their animals that were relocated into other fenced-off areas of the family's property and some may be transported to a friend's barn.

It was unclear whether insurance will be available to cover the expense of rebuilding, Kleiber said.

"It feeds the family," she said of the livestock they raise. She and her husband, Lyle, have eight children at home.

On Wednesday, June 26, City of Charlevoix Fire Chief Paul Ivan said because of the extent of the damage to the barn, the cause of the fire will likely remain officially listed as unknown, but believed to be accidental.

"The barn was a pile of tin (from the roof) and rubble by the time we got the call," Ivan said.

However, Ivan noted that the Kleibers reported that they had a heat lamp going in the barn at the time of the fire to keep some young chicks warm overnight.

Council must decide how to fill clerk vacancy

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

At its first June meeting, the Charlevoix City Council briefly discussed the possibility of giving voters the choice to change the city clerk's position from an elected to an appointed post.

Although the earliest that question would be put before voters is sometime in 2014, the council, it appears, will get to try its hand at appointing someone to the city clerk's office much sooner.

> "We need an acting city clerk appointed quickly."
> — City manager Rob Staebel

That's because Carol Ochs, the person who has served as the city clerk for the past nine years, unexpectedly tendered her resignation, effective June 28, at the council's June 17 meeting. In May Ochs announced that she would not be seeking re-election to the city clerk's office in November. At the meeting Ochs explained her resignation saying, "My competency has publicly been brought into question. Clearly people feel they can do my job better than I can. It's not worth the fight."

Ochs' early departure creates two issues for the city, city manager Rob Straebel explained.

First, is the need to have someone in the position to conduct the city's day-to-day business — especially paying its bills. Ochs' signature is one of two signatures needed to authorize checks to be disbursed by the city. Straebel said for the short term, he will be handling that task, but noted it's important for the council to find someone to fill the role quickly.

But just how should the city go about filling the vacancy?

While the city charter discusses the process for filling vacancies on the city council, it does not discuss how vacancies in the office of city clerk should be filled.

Straebel said his research into how recent vacancies were filled showed that in 2000, the council appointed then- and current deputy clerk Stephanie Brown on a city manager's recommendation to fill the post for the remainder of a term. In 2004,

No 4th of July parade this year

Citing declining participation in recent years, officials with the Charlevoix VFW post recently decided to cancel the Charlevoix Fourth of July parade for this year.

Charlevoix VFW Post Vice Commander Ed Linse said the decision was made the post's June 18 meeting.

Linse said the most recent tradition of hosting parade on Bridge Street for Independence Day goes back to around the year 2000 when then-post commander Charlie Butcher championed the idea.

Linse said the parade, which followed the same route as the Memorial Day parade from Garfield Avenue to East Park, enjoyed good participation in its early years, but since then participation has been steadily declining.

County board hires new auditor

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners accepted a bid for auditing services from Abraham & Gaffney for $32,300 at its meeting Wednesday.

The certified public accounting firm has offices in East Lansing, St. Johns and Auburn Hills.

A contract will be drawn up between the company and county for three years of audits. The cost the first year will be $32,300 with that price increasing marginally each year, according to chief deputy clerk Cecelia Borths.

The bid was one of five submitted to the county. Others include Anderson, Tackman & Co. for $23,000; Dennis, Gartland & Niegarth for $26,300; Gabridge & Co. for $32,360 and Rehman Group for $32,000.

The county's long-time auditing firm, Harris Group, declined to submit a bid.

Abraham & Gaffney was recommended by the county clerk and treasurer as their top choice.

"We met with them over a week ago before they submitted the bid," said treasurer Marilyn Cousineau.

"They asked many questions so their bid could be specific to Charlevoix County," interjected clerk Cheryl Potter Browe. The two women also spoke with clerks and treasurers in other counties and came to the conclusion the company would be best for them, she said.

Also at its meeting Wednesday, the board of commissioners approved lease and sublease agreements with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Under the lease agreement, the health department will lease the building it uses at 220 West Garfield Avenue in Charlevoix from the county for $1,000 per month. The health department will then continue to sublease a portion of that same building back to the county for the offices of the Charlevoix County Commission on Aging. The sublease stipulates the county will pay $1,750 per month for that office space.

Both leases run until February, 2016.

The board's vote on the lease was 4-1, commissioner Chris Christensen dissented. The vote on the sublease was 3-2, commissioners George Lasater and Larry Sullivan voting against.

In other news, the board of commissioners authorized the county's land bank authority to purchase a piece of property and historic

DNR: Beaver Island ash won't be cut

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

BEAVER ISLAND — A miscommunication between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Beaver Island residents has been cleared up: No ash trees will be cut on Beaver Island.

Residents worried that a forest management plan would cut all ash trees on Beaver Island state land. The DNR sent out a packet detailing what stands of ash it planned to cut, and it appeared to include that Beaver Island land.

"It was an attempt to be transparent and open, but it wasn't executed real well, and unless you worked in the DNR, you couldn't interpret where these stands were identified," said Brian Mastenbrook, wildlife supervisor with the DNR in Gaylord.

Mastenbrook said the DNR has been doing salvage cuts of ash on state land ahead of emerald ash borer, or in stands of trees that are infested but haven't died yet.

"We're trying to get some value out of these trees before they die in place," said Mastenbrook.

The invasive pest has almost thoroughly infested the Lower Peninsula — but there are some parts of Michigan that could remain free from the ash borer. One of these places is the Beaver Island archipelago. The island grouping lies about 17 miles from the coast of Michigan — too far for the invasive species to fly, said John Bedford, pest response program specialist with the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development.

"It would have to hitchhike on firewood or other ash products from the mainland, or hitch hike on vehicles or the ferry itself," said Bedford. "I doubt they're hanging on to many airplanes."

In fact, Beaver Island archipelago and a handful of other islands are written into a quarantine order, the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development Pesticide and Plant Management Division Emerald Ash Borer Interior Quarantine.

The quarantine stipulates where and what can be moved within the state of Michigan. For example, said Bedford, people can move firewood and other products anywhere within Charlevoix County. That might have included Beaver Island. So when the quarantine was revised in February of 2011, officials wrote in special language to exclude Beaver Island in the quarantine. It is now illegal to move firewood and other products that might transport the invasive bug to the archipelago.

Same goes for other islands — North and South Fox islands, North and South Manitou islands, Isle Royale and Big Charity and Little Charity islands in Saginaw Bay — that are deemed remote enough to be protected from the emerald ash borer.

"If nobody misbehaves, and there are no hitchhikers on the ferry, then I would say it is entirely possible that Beaver Island could remain free from emerald ash borer, if not for a very long time, then, very optimistically, forever," said Bedford.

Pamela Grassmick, a board member of the Beaver Island Association, was initially concerned that the ash trees on state land in the archipelago would be removed, but said conversations with the DNR have addressed that concern.

"They've given us assurances. We flooded the offices with phone calls, but they assured us it was an error, and they will not cut our ash trees," said Grassmick. "We'll continue to work with them with other best practices to keep our forests healthy."

Beaver Island does have 16 ash borer traps in place to monitor for the bugs, which were recently put in place for the season, said Grassmick. Those traps will be checked for "anything suspicious."

The Charlevoix, Antrim and Otsego counties will have the opportunity to learn about the management plan from 3-7 p.m. on Tuesday, June 25, at the Gaylord Field Office, 1732 W. M-32 in Gaylord.

Another meeting for public input about forest management plans in Cheboygan, Emmet and Mackinac counties will take place from 3-7 p.m. Wednesday, June 26, at the Indian River Field Office, 6984 Wilson Road in Indian River.

Are microwave ovens safe?

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

My dad would remind me not to share information unless you know the facts from different points of view and then come to your own conclusion. This lesson was entrenched in me again by Sr. Terenita, my forensic debate coach. So, with this in mind, I'd like to bring up the topic on the use of microwave ovens.

An appliance that I never thought twice about using while raising kids and working full time was my microwave. It was a convenient contraption for defrosting dinner, making popcorn and, most importantly, reheating my coffee. It was all about convenience. I was reminded about it again when I saw a photo appear on my computer regarding the science project of a young lady who watered her plant with water once a week from the tap and another identical plant also watered once a week with water that had been brought to room temperature after it had been microwaved. The plant with tap water is shown thriving and the plant fed water that had been microwaved was toast. Not literally.

I knew breast milk and formula should not be thawed or micro waved as a baby bottle could retain heat and steam could build up and thus scalding the baby. There is also the belief that nutrients are lost by this method. Remember the news reports about not heating any food in plastic containers in the microwave due to carcinogens released from the melting plastic? Yes, I do too, so when I do use the microwave I am certain to use glass or to use items that say they are safe for microwave ovens.

There is an article written in 1996 stating microwaves cause cancer, this according to William F. Kopp, U.S. researcher: "... (P)eople who ingested microwaved food showed a higher incidence of stomach and intestinal cancer." The other view: Koop did not have any other organization to back his claims. He changed his name and vanished believing the appliance industry was out to persecute him. This, according to an article entitled"Microwave Myths" by David Schardt.

Dr. Mercola , an alternative medical physician said, "We should get rid of them (microwaves) because they zap nutrients and you are risking your health." Gary Zeman, a member of the Health Physics Society promoting radiation safety writes, "Sunlight can cause cancer; microwave radiation cannot because it doesn't pack enough power to damage your DNA".

Knowledge that I've acquired with my own usage includes: a change of texture in food, melting plastic and the added excitement that ensues if aluminum is added to the mix. On the flip side; your food is ready when you are, you can use parchment paper, a paper plate or a white paper towel to cover the food and keep the oven clean.

If you do use this appliance, remember to rotate your food if your microwave doesn't turn on its own. I feel that leftovers are safe to heat up but I make certain they are steamy hot. If you partially cook meat in a microwave, quickly finish on a grill or in the oven as half cooked meat does create a breeding ground for bacteria. Also .don't forget that any food left resting on the counter top is up for grabs if you own a dog.

Microwave ovens emit waves considered more powerful than that emitted from a TV and we still seem to be glued to our sets. The oven emits waves considered weaker than sunlight and x- rays and we still sit in the sun and get tests done. Not that it's good, but I'm saying we still seem to do it. Children growing up in the 70s saw this appliance as a mainstay in the home. If they are aware of what they eat and have concerns they will use one only occasionally or not at all while others see no problem.

The choice is yours. I am known to succumb to heating leftovers and my coffee but like anything else I do so in moderation. So I've shared the information on both sides now it's your turn to come to your own conclusion.

LOOKING BACK…

To mark the appearance of the 100th image in the "Looking Back" series of photos from the Charlevoix Historical Society, and as the town enters the summer season, this week's submission offers a look at Bridge Street as it appeared 100 years ago. The pavement was only nine years old at this time. To the right, on the corner, appears a concrete watering trough for horses. The roofline at right marks the commercial Carpenter building, the first structure south of Clinton Street, put up in 1872 when this entire area was still a heavily forested "back woods" south of Clinton. It was easier to reach Carpenter's back door via Round Lake than the front door by way of a path cut through the woods for access to the post office. All that drastically changed in the next few years. This postcard was mailed to a Miss Ditchfield in Birmingham, England in early September of 1914. The person who sent it, named Evie, wrote, "This is the business street at Charlevoix. You see it is just a country town. But there are some lovely summer homes here. It is raining torrents ... Everything is very dear here." "Dear" doesn't mean "cute" in this case. "Dear" is the British word for "expensive."

Library offers activity, state park passes

A new set of statewide partnerships is now offering enhanced access to arts and cultural organizations and Michigan State Parks.

The Michigan Activity Pass program is now available at the Charlevoix Public Library.

The program is a partnership between Michigan's 400 public libraries and 60 arts and cultural organizations, providing reduced cost or complimentary access to the arts across the state. The Michigan Activity Pass is a partnership between The Library Network, the Institute of Museum and Library Services, the Library of Michigan, and CultureSource.

"The Charlevoix Public Library is pleased to be a part of this program this year, especially since Castle Farms and the Charlevoix Historical Society are participating," said library director Valerie Meyerson.

To obtain a pass, visit the library at www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

The Charlevoix library is also participating in the MI Big Green Gym initiative, a partnership between the Michigan Recreation and Park Association, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

The program is designed to promote overall well-being and a healthy lifestyle through use of parks and recreation facilities.

Thanks to support from Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and the Library of Michigan, free passes into MI Big Green Gym are available through nearly 500 libraries around Michigan. More than 100 state parks are available to explore, including Young State Park, Fisherman's Island State Park and Petoskey State Park. Passes are valid for seven days after check-out and are good for one free day into any state park or recreation area.

For more information about either the Michigan Activity Pass or the MI Big Green Gym program, call the library information desk at (231) 237 7340.

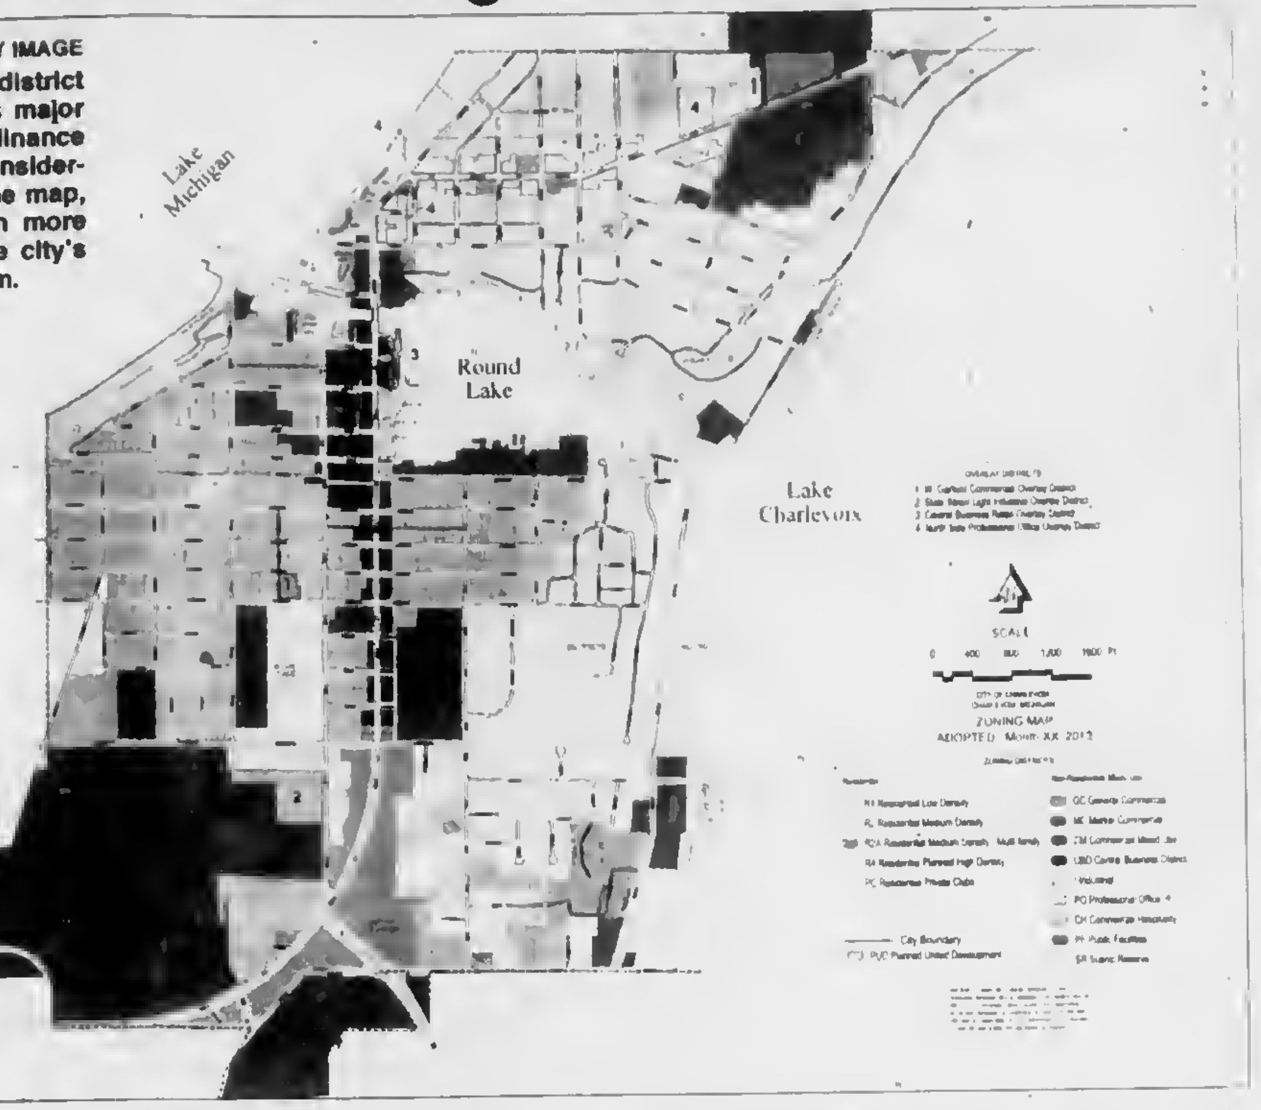
Council to consider new zoning ordinance soon

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor



COURTESY IMAGE

This map shows the revised zoning district map proposed under the draft of s major overhaul for the city's zoning ordinance which the city council will be considering soon. To download a copy of the map, which allows users to zoom in on more detailed areas of the map, visit the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.com.

After several years of work, the Charlevoix City Council will soon be considering adoption of an overhauled city zoning ordinance — the first of this magnitude since the current ordinance was adopted in 1977.

Earlier this year the city's planning commission approved a draft for the council to consider. The planning commission's recommendation for approval came after many months working with city planner Mike Spencer and hosting several public hearing on the new ordinance.

The council's first official public hearing on the ordinance is set for 7 p.m. on Monday, July 15. However, Spencer said it will also be on the council's agenda at its Monday, July 1, meeting.

Spencer said that the reason for the ordinance being on the agenda for the July 1 meeting is that a few issues have cropped up since the planning commission approved passing the ordinance on to the council for its consideration.

Spencer didn't expect any of the matters would prompt the council to send the ordinance back to the planning commission.

One of the issues, Spencer said, came out of additional review of the ordinance by city attorney Jim Young. He said Young is suggesting some language changes that would make conditions of approval for various projects more consistent throughout the ordinance.

A second change Spencer will be discussing at the July 1 meeting has to do with making changes to setback requirements in the R-4 zone (high density). Spencer explained that the current setbacks were designed with large condominium projects in mind, but he noted, that today townhouses and clustered homes are becoming more popular and the city may want to adjust the setback allowances in the high-density residential zone to allow for these types of developments.

Finally, Spencer said he will ask for the council's direction on ordinance language pertaining to use of outside spaces in front of retail shops in the downtown to display merchandise for sale. He said he's recently heard a number of complaints from some people who don't like the look of such displays. He said currently the ordinance would allow enforcement only if it became a matter of public safety.

The ordinance makes a number of changes to the city's zoning, some properties would be re-zoned — some in newly created zones. One example of this is a new mixed-use commercial district for properties along bridge street roughly from Hurlbut to Carpenter. He said the new zone allows for many of the small businesses that currently exist in this area, such as small professional offices, to reasonably use the small lot size and not be in conflict with residential uses of neighboring properties.

The complete draft of the new ordinance, along with corresponding maps and an explanation of the major changes in the ordinance is available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Crozier named Veteran of the Month

Crozier

The "Veteran of the Month" for June 2013 is Howard Edwin Crozier.

He was born Feb. 22, 1925, in Muskegon and in 1934 moved to the family farm, in the Boyne City area, north of Deer Lake on Crozier Road. Crozier graduated from Boyne City High School in the class of 1943 and went to work for the Michigan Tanning and Extract Company in Boyne City while working on the farm to help support their family following the Great Depression.

On April 25, 1944 Crozier was inducted into the U.S. Army entering into active service at Fort Sheridan, Ill. and following basic training, where he qualified as sharpshooter with the M1 Garand rifle, he completed additional training as a light truck driver. On Oct. 12, 1944 Crozier departed the U.S. arriving in the European Theater of Operations on Oct. 17, 1944 and was assigned to Company L, 142nd Infantry Regiment, 36th Division participating in battles and campaigns in the Rhineland and Central Europe. On Dec. 4, 1944, during operations in France, Crosier and his unit came under enemy machine-gun fire and Crozier took cover behind a wooden shed but was wounded in the leg by a 50 caliber round that came through the building requiring two months hospitalization after which he returned to his unit. On about April 20, 1946 Crozier departed the European Theater of Operations arriving in the U.S. on April 25, 1946 and at The Separation Center, Camp Atterbury, Ind. he was awarded an Honorable Discharge having attained the rank of private first class and received the following decorations and citations: The European-Asian-Middle Eastern Theater Medal with Two Bronze Battle Stars, The Good Conduct Medal, The Purple Heart Medal, The Distinguished Unit Badge, The Combat Infantry Badge and The World II Victory Medal.

Returning stateside, Crozier did odd jobs for a while and went to Grand Rapids working in the automotive manufacturing industry for General Motors until March of 1948 when he returned home.

On March 27, 1948, in the Boyne City United Methodist Church, Crozier married Lou Ann (Peg) Erickson making their home southeast of Boyne City. Crozier worked for the Charlevoix County Road Commission for five years and in 1953 he went to work for Consumers Power Company as a lineman where he worked until he was forced to retire in 1985 following a stroke.

Crozier served his community as a volunteer firefighter for more than 20 years, was involved in coaching boys baseball and served his fellow veterans as a Life Member of Ernest Peterson American Legion Post 228 by being active in the drill and funeral squads. Crozier enjoyed hunting, annual fishing trips to Canada with his friends, bowling, golfing, working in his garage, snowmobiling, gardening, traveling with his wife and being active in his church. But what he loved most was interacting with his grandchildren in their sports of basketball, baseball and soccer. On Jan. 3, 2013 Howard Edwin Crozier answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Peg, his children and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

WATCH seeking 'Idle Free' summer

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

WATCH is advocating for another year of the "Idle Free" campaign — asking that people turn off their cars so that the vehicles don't idle unnecessarily.

WATCH — Water and Air Team Charlevoix — has advanced the campaign for about 10 years, and has placed banners on lamp posts in downtown Charlevoix for the last five years, said the organization's executive director, Michelle Rick-Biddick.

"The whole idea is to get people to turn off their engines, especially while waiting for the bridge," said Rick-Biddick. "Typically, leaving your car on for more than a minute or two is a waste of gas, and, of course, you're dealing with the energy issue as well as the emissions we're getting from the car exhaust."

Rick-Biddick said downtown businesses are on board with the campaign, as they like to keep their doors open during the summer months.

"As a business operating in Charlevoix, I think we're all always concerned about the environment and therefore support any efforts to enhance our environmental awareness," said Margo Marks, president of the Beaver Island Boat Company. "We try to run as green of an operation as we can. We support the city of Charlevoix and any efforts to help our environment, and therefore we support the Idle Free campaign."

Heather Biddick, owner of One Ounce Design, a Charlevoix graphic design company, holds the 2013 Idle Free banner, which Biddick designed. The banners will be placed on Charlevoix's downtown lamp posts.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, a "light-duty gasoline-fueled vehicle" of up to 6,000 pounds can emit 4.72 gramps of nitrous oxides per hour of idling in the summer, and 339 grams of carbon monoxide per hour of summer idling. They can emit 16.1 grams per hour of other volatile organic compounds, which, according to the EPA, are hydrocarbon compounds from the "incomplete combustion" of gasoline.

"We have been actively involved with an Idle Free Charlevoix campaign for over 10 years. We have talked to many storefront owners who applaud our efforts since many keep their storefronts open in the summer but choke on the emissions from idling cars waiting for the bridge to open and close," said Rick-Biddick in a press release.

When the organization presented its mission to city council three years ago, the city council declared Charlevoix an "Idle Free City," and pledged to turn off city vehicles if they had to idle unnecessarily — except emergency and police vehicles, said Rick-Biddick.

This week, the city of Charlevoix will install more than 20 banners encouraging visitors and residents of Charlevoix to turn off their engines. Rick-Biddick hopes drivers will see the banners while waiting for the bridge in Charlevoix to lower.

The banners were designed by Heather Biddick, owner and manager of One Ounce Design, a graphic design company in Harbor Springs.

For more information or to sponsor or dedicate a banner to family or friends, contact Rick-Biddick at (231) 330-7946.

the council chose to solicit applications for the appointment from outside the city government. In that case, Oehs applied for, and was appointed to the position and then went on to be elected to the office.

Straebel said although a person must be a city resident to be elected to the clerk's office, he's unsure if residency is required to be appointed to the post to fill a vacancy.

He said the matter will be on the council's agenda for discussion at its next meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 1.

"We need an acting city clerk appointed quickly," Straebel said. "There are some legal things we can't do otherwise."

In other business during its June 17 meeting, the council approved creating a new "community economic development director" position to take the place of the downtown development authority executive director position.

Since its creation in 2006, the downtown development authority director's position was held by Keith Carey. However, when Carey stepped down from the position recently to accept another job, the authority's board decided to take a closer look at its needs and budget constraints as it considered if or how to fill the vacancy. The authority's board came to a less-than-unanimous consensus that its needs and budget called for only a part-time person to fill the position. Thinking that better candidates might be attracted to a full time position, the board proposed to the council that it split the new economic development position with the council, wherein the person would spend 30 hours per week working on development efforts specifically for the downtown and 10 hours per week doing similar work, but for the entire city. The cost of the position will be split by the same proportions between the authority's budget and the city's general fund.

Straebel said the city has just begun its recruitment efforts for the position and an application deadline has been set for 5 p.m. on Tuesday, July 16.

The general description of the position listed in the city's recruiting document reads: "Under the general direction of the City Manager and DDA Board, this position plans, organizes, and implements an economic development program to promote the growth and development of the City's economic base, assists in the retention and expansion of existing businesses, secures funding for economic development activities and programs, and vigorously seeks out new businesses for the City and community. The position has considerable interface with all departments of the City, Downtown Development Authority Board, City Council, and the development and business community."

The the listed annual salary range for the position is $42,000-$47,000.

The Joshua Davis Band will perform at the C5 Arts benefit dance for the Charlevoix Circle of the Arts on Friday, July 5, in Bridge Park, downtown Charlevoix.

The evening will start at 6 p.m. with an opening act and gourmet barbecue from Pigs Eatin' Ribs of Charlevoix. Drinks will be available from Scovies Gourmet, featuring a variety of Short's Beer and Traverse City wines.

At 7 p.m., the Joshua Davis Band will take the stage playing its own brand of American roots music with gritty rock 'n' roll and vintage soul.

The band features front-man Joshua Davis, winner of Best Album at the 2012 Jammies. Davis is also the lead singer and songwriter for the band Steppin' In It and Shout Sister Shout.

Tickets are just $16 in advance and $20 at the door. Proceeds from the event will support the visual and performing arts in the Charlevoix area. For more information or tickets, visit the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce, Ga Ga for Kids, J. Phillips, or the Charlevoix Circle of the Arts. Tickets are also available online at www.charlevoixcircle.org.

Expedition fails to find the Griffin beneath beam

JOHN FLESHER
Associate Press

Editor's note: The Courier has been following the efforts of seasonal and soon-to-be year-round Charlevoix resident Steve Libert and his Great Lakes Exploration Group to find the shipwreck of the French sailing vessel the Griffin. After recently obtaining a permit from the State of Michigan, Libert lead an expedition to Northern Lake Michigan last week in hopes of uncovering the long-lost ship. The Associated Press story that appeared in last week's edition was current at press time on Thursday, June 20. What follows is the story AP writer John Flesher filed late June 20 followed by an update filed Wednesday.

FAIRPORT, Mich. (AP) — After nearly a week of searching the muddy Lake Michigan bottom, a research team failed to find the wreckage of a 17th century ship last week— but leaders said Thursday, June 20, they weren't giving up.

The mission to locate the Griffin, which was commanded by the French explorer Rene Robert Cavelier de la Salle and disappeared in 1679, was buoyed earlier last week as French underwater archaeologists inspected a wooden beam protruding 10.5 feet from the lake bed. They said it appeared to be a bowsprit — a spur or pole that extends from a vessel's stem — that was hundreds of years old.

But there was no ship below, only hard-packed claylike sediment extending to bedrock 20 feet down. The scientists and divers searched a wider area Thursday, June 20, near Poverty Island, a few miles offshore of a remote section of Michigan's Upper Peninsula, with equipment that probes beneath the lake bed for signs of buried objects.

Again, no Griffin. With their permit from the state Department of Natural Resources to excavate the lake bottom about to expire and rough weather forecast, they didn't plan return to the site Friday, June 21, but said they might next (this) week.

Ken Vrana, the project manager and one of four U.S. archaeologists participating in the expedition, said he expected the group would have no trouble getting a new or extended permit.

Team leader Steve Libert admitted there was growing frustration, but the retired intelligence analyst who has sought the Griffin for nearly three decades remains convinced the ship is there and said he had no intention of abandoning his quest. He discovered the timber — which was loosened from the pit this week — while diving in 2001.

"What other ship out here in the Great Lakes is 300 years old? There's only one that it could be," Libert said. "I'm extremely disappointed that we haven't found it yet ... but it's just a matter of time."

Libert

Vrana said the goal wasn't just to find the Griffin, but to determine whether the location was a shipwreck site.

"We have definitely found the component of a shipwreck," Vrana said. "It was not attached to any underlying hull, but that doesn't mean that 100 feet or even several hundred feet away there isn't a shipwreck. So, the search continues."

The team based its search location on both the timber and sub-bottom sound wave scans by an independent contractor that suggested a field of objects covering an area about the estimated size of the Griffin — more than 40 feet long, 18 feet wide — might lie just beneath the lake bed.

Turns out, the sonar readings apparently had picked up a thick layer of invasive quagga mussel shells and distinct layers of sediment, Vrana said.

"This is one time that science is just not working right," said Libert, who spent about $80,000 on the surveys and says he has pumped more than $1 million into the quest. "There's something wrong, either with the machinery or the interpretation or the way it was used."

Michigan's state archaeologist, Dean Anderson, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Wednesday, June 19, he believed the expedition was worthwhile — regardless whether the Griffin is found.

"This is the sort of investigation that really needed to happen ... to get an answer one way or another," Anderson said. "I would say it is leaning toward the indication that a vessel is not there. I just don't see any evidence that makes it look like there's a wreck."

The group submitted a proposal to Anderson on Thursday, June 20 to remove the wooden beam and take it ashore for further study and eventual public display. It calls for wrapping the nearly 20-foot-long timber in protective cloth and taking it to a secure facility for treatment to prevent deterioration after possibly being submerged for centuries, Vrana said.

Anderson told the AP on Wednesday, June 19, that recovering it would be "complicated and difficult." But Libert said leaving it could invite vandalism or theft.

"After everything we've been through, to take this piece and rebury it and have even the slightest chance of someone finding it — I just don't want to take that risk," he said.

UPDATE

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Scientists and divers who combed the bottom of Lake Michigan last week for a 17th-century shipwreck have retrieved a wooden beam that could belong to the long-lost Griffin.

Expedition project manager Ken Vrana tells The Associated Press the team removed the timber Saturday but waited until Wednesday to announce it. The team was completing arrangements for its temporary storage.

He says the group will submit a proposal to the Michigan state archaeologist's office for experts to study the beam in hopes of determining its age and origin. Those would be clues that could help determine if it's the bowsprit of the Griffin, as expedition leader Steve Libert believes.

Speaking to the Courier Thursday, Libert said for now the beam remains in a secure location, submerged in a tank of specially treated water until a decision is be made as to how it will be studied.

Libert said he remains convinced that the Griffin is somewhere near the location where the beam was recovered. He said his team plans to contact the company that did the earlier sub bottom scans to see if the equipment can be re-calibrated to account for the layer of quagga mussels. If that can be done, Libert said he hopes to return to the site for further searching later this summer.

Reception planned for retiring fire chief

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Charlevoix Township officials will host a retirement reception for outgoing Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Curt Thompson from 2-6 p.m. on Sunday, June 30, at the Shanahan Field pavilion, located near the corner of Waller and Old Orchard roads.

Picnic foods and refreshments will be provided.

Thompson is retiring on Sunday after serving 39 years on the department, most of them as its chief.

Summer Solstice Art Show set for June 29-30

The 15th Annual Summer Solstice Art Show will take place from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturday, June 29, and 10 a.m.-4 p.m. Sunday, June 30, in East Park, downtown Charlevoix.

The Summer Solstice Art Show will offer paintings in oils, watercolors and acrylics, as well as sculpture, photography, pottery, jewelry, clothing and more. Many of the artists will be work. More than 70 artists will be displaying their work during this two-day event.

Representatives from the Charlevoix Circle of Arts have volunteered to judge the booths and present the 2013 Best in Show Award to a Summer Solstice Art Show exhibitor on Saturday morning.

For details, contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at (231) 547-2101 or visit www.charlevoix.org.

Secretary of State's office moving

The Charlevoix branch office for the Michigan Secretary of State is moving to a new location, but it's not moving far.

According to a posting on the door at the former location at the corner of M-66 and Loeb Road just south of Charlevoix, the office will be relocating to 185 M-66, which is the farthest south (closest to Rite Aid) unit in the Captains Corner Shopping Center near the corner of U.S. 31 and M-66.

The office has been closed this week while crews move equipment from one location to the other. The new office is expected to be open on Monday, July 1. Office hours will be 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and 11 a.m.-7 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Petunias need more community pull

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

It seems as though the Charlevoix community may like to plant more than pull.

That's what officials with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful could take away from the low turnout of volunteers for the organization's first-ever petunia weed-pulling event that took place from 4-7 p.m. on Tuesday.

Aaron Wilkin, president of the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board said he was both surprised and disappointed that the participation was so low, especially in light of the hundreds of people who turn out to help plant petunias the Thursday before Memorial Day each year.

This year marks the 31st year that the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has over seen the Operation Petunia effort to plant and maintain petunias along the five-mile stretch of U.S. 31 from one end of the city to the other, and it's the first time the organization has asked the community to come back out to help weed the flower beds.

In years gone-by, the organization paid groups to handle the weeding chores. When the budget got tighter several years ago, the organization switched to using inmates from the Charlevoix County Jail to take care of the weeding. That move saved the organization a lot of money, but recent changes in the laws governing work release for inmates, has made that labor source no longer feasible.

Faced with this obstacle, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful officials came up with two possible solutions: Switch to using baskets to line the route instead of the curb-side flower bed, or organize weeding events similar to the planting day operation.

And similar to the post-planting community appreciation picnic planting day, organizers even offered a little incentive for weed-pullers: Free strawberry shortcake courtesy of Friske's Farm Market.

Wilkin said just 30 strawberry shortcake tickets were redeemed in East Park Tuesday. He said he's sure there were a few more than that out pulling weeds Tuesday, including a number of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board members, but weed pullers were few and far between along many sections of the route.

Despite the low turnout, Wilkin said a lot of work was accomplished.

"We got lucky," Wilkin said. "We got all of the bad areas and we were able to replant 25-30 flats that were leftover in areas where some flowers had died. Most of the town was in pretty good shape. If it had been a typical year, and we hadn't had the new dirt and used the pre-emergent weed control, we'd be in big trouble. We're definitely going to need more help in August."

Wilkin was referring to the organization's second planned weeding event for the season, set for 4-7 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 2.

"We really need the community to help support this or we're going be forced to change the plan," Wilkin said.

That other plan, Wilkin said earlier this year, could include placing petunias in baskets about every 50 feet along the route. He said the organization has recently finalized a design for basket hanging posts and is awaiting approval from the Michigan Department of Transportation to place six prototype baskets at the top of the south Bridge Street hill.

On behalf of the organization, Wilkin offered thanks to those who did show up to help weed the flower beds, to Friskes for providing the strawberry shortcake, and to Revolution Bike and Board who loaned bikes to board members to help get around on the street during the weeding event.

$388,000 today," said Catt.

Discussion sparked, particularly after several teachers and community members attended the meeting to give their support of the iPad initiative during public comment.

"I have two incoming juniors, and last year, they were lucky enough to be part of the iPad roll-out," said Charlevoix resident Stacey Stewart. "They're twins, but they're individual kids and especially learners. The iPads let them learn the exact same lesson at the level and style appropriate to them. It gave instant access to learning tools and teachers."

She said one of her sons received the best grades he has ever earned.

"He uses special education services and the growth I saw in him this year was amazing," Stewart said. "(The iPad) was like having a teacher next to him 24/7."

Julie McLean, a third-grade teacher, was part of the team that helped develop a plan to integrate the technology in the classroom.

"It was phenomenal, the things these kids were able to do," said McLean. "They were able to do our take on project-based learning, which is a lot of work on our part. But it was so worth it to see, every day, the kids' computation and math go up, and they weren't losing it on the way home."

In 2008, the bond was divided into different budgets, including $400,000 for buses; $1.5 million for energy reduction and building retrofits; $2.4 million for academic, building and facilities upgrades; and $2.1 million for technology, according to a presentation by Mays. As of June 20, the school had spent about $1.5 million on technology needs, leaving a balance of $612,075 for just the technology portion of the bond.

After spending $388,000 on the iPad initiative, "that will leave about $223,280 on the table to spend on non-technology items," said Mays.

The board will meet next for a regular meeting at 6 p.m. on Monday, July 15, at the former middle school building.

that engineers inspected the structure of the building on Monday and deemed it to be sound. What's not sound is some of the exterior brick work, especially along the Mason Street side of the building.

"We've got some major work to do there," Hufford said. "We're going to do it as expeditiously as possible."

Hufford said the bulk of the problem appears to be with the corbels, or the brick structures that jut out from the main wall. He said the tentative plan is to remove the corbels, and replace them with a flat brick surface. He said the same work was done on the Bridge Street side of the building several years ago.

> "We've got some major work to do there."
> — Walter Hufford, Masonic Building Association secretary

Charlevoix firefighters were called to the building around 6:45 a.m. on Thursday, June 20, when a number of bricks from the second story of the building fell to the sidewalk at the corner of Bridge and Mason streets. The sidewalk in the area of the building has since been cordoned off with temporary chain-link fence sections, however, both businesses on the first floor of the building, Subway Restaurant and Revolution Bike and Boards are open for business.

Hufford said Wednesday, he's not sure yet exactly when the work will start, but it will be "as soon as possible." He said engineers told him waiting until the end of summer is not an option. Hufford also said that the Bridge Street portion of the work probably will be completed fairly quickly, but the Mason Street portion could take some time to finish.

two engines failed. She said boat company crews took the island's other ferry, the Beaver Islander, out to meet the Emerald Isle and escorted it back into the harbor as it returned to the dock under the power of its remaining working engine.

Schwartzfisher said she did not know the exact nature of the problem with the engine, but said there were no injuries in the incident.

She said once both boats were at the dock, boat company crews moved passengers, luggage, vehicles and other freight from the Emerald Isle to the Beaver Islander, which departed for Charlevoix at about 7:40 p.m. She stated everything and everyone that had been on the Emerald Isle made it on to the Beaver Islander except one semi trailer and a few passengers who chose to fly back to the mainland because of scheduling issues.

Schwartzfisher offered high praise for the Beaver Island Boat Company staff, both for how they handled the incident while underway, but also for the quick turnaround from one boat to the other at the dock.

"Tonight was another perfect example of their expertise. It could have been much worse," Schwartzfisher said.

As of 3 p.m. Wednesday, U.S. Coast Guard officials had been to the island to inspect the vessel and mechanics were still assessing the extent of the problem with the faulty engine, Schwartzfisher said. At press time Thursday, Schwartzfisher said repairs had begun, but no estimated timefrime was yet available on when the repairs might be complete.

Until the Emerald Isle is repaired, island residents and visitors will have to rely on the Beaver Islander, which marked its 50th year of service last year, for water-based transport to and from the mainland. The Beaver Islander typically serves as the secondary ferry in the island's transportation system, seeing the bulk of its use during busy summer weekends.

"Tonight is a perfect example of our need for a backup boat," Schwartzfisher said Tuesday night referring to the authority's move in February of 2012 to commission design work for new ferry to replace the Beaver Islander as the island's second ferry.

On Wednesday Schwartzfisher stressed that the Beaver Islander could adequately handle the island's transportation needs for the time being and that Beaver Island Boat Company crews will do their best to keep the ferry schedule with just the one boat.

"Beaver Island is still open," Schwartzfisher said.

For more information on any changes to the ferry schedule call the Beaver Island Boat Company at (888) 446-4095.

Joy again wins Belvedere's Hickory Open

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

For the eighth year in a row, the clocks at the Belvedere Golf Club of Charlevoix were turned back, give or take 80 years, on Friday and Saturday for the annual Belvedere Hickory Open.

The two day golf tournament drew 54 golf competitors from 18 different states, as well as Canada and Washington D.C.

An attire of knickerbockers, patterned socks and newsboy caps mixed with hickory-shafted golf clubs and leather golf bags, brought in a 1930's feel to celebrate the tradition and history of the sport.

Belvedere golf professional Dennis 'Marty' Joy won the 59-under Open Championship Division for the second straight year, finishing with a two-day gross score of 156, after shooting 78 on both days.

"Its a really fun event. It's a lot of work, but it's well worth it. It's kind of like a fraternity," Joy said. "It's a unique way to play golf and a tough way."

Joy was one of four Charlevoix members playing in the event, which entered its third year as a major in the Society of Hickory Golfers, one of six around the country.

"It starts at Pinehurst (North Carolina), goes to Alabama, then here, then this year it goes to the U.S. National Open in New Jersey, then it goes back to Pinehurst," Joy said.

Joy loves playing with the old style hickory so much right now that the hickory tournaments have over taken regular golf tournaments.

Roger Andrews of Jenks, Okla., watches his driva on hole No. 17 Saturday at the Belvedere Hickory Open Tournament. Andrews finished runner up in the 59-under Open Championship Division.

"It's all I play right now," he said. "I play a modern game in the spring and one in the fall, the rest are all hickory's. It's fun, these guys are old golf historians from all over the country and love hickory golf."

Finishing second in the 59-under Open Division, Rugger Andrews of Jenks, Okla., turned in a score of 158, while third went to Hugh Cameron of Corunna, Ontario.

Andrews made the trip from Oklahoma for the second straight year, a trip he doesn't see himself missing for a long time.

"Every time I come up here I have fun," Andrews said. "I wouldn't miss it. It is so wonderful, so gorgeous. Obviously I'm not from this part of the country, but I totally understand why people come from all over the country to vacation here."

After a third place finish in 2012 and a second place finish this year, Andrews will keep on coming until he takes the top spot.

"I'm going to keep coming until I win it. I don't know how many hundreds of years that will be, but one day I'll learn to chip and put on these greens," he said.

In the 60-69 Senior Division, Richard Bullock of Clearwater, Fla., shot a 152 to take the top spot, while Chuck McMullin of Williamsburg, Va., took second with a 155 and David Brown of Omaha, Neb., finished third with a 162.

In the 70-over Super Senior Division, Bob Sippell of Ft. Myers shot a 171, while Barry Markowitz of Sanford, NC., shot a 176 for runner up.

For local golfers in the tournament, Jeffrey Porter of Charlevoix shot a 186 in the Senior 60-69 Division and Jim Gels of Charlevoix turned in a two-round 167 in the same division.

Paul Fiedorek of Charlevoix turned in a 165 in the 60-69 Open Championship Division, while Dick Weller of Torch Lake brought in a score of 190, but finished with a net score — weighted with handicap — of 144, good for first place in the 70-over Senior Division.

HONORS

Host of Rayders earn post-season soccer honors

Carolena Elowsky earns All State honorable mention

The Charlevoix Rayder girls soccer team claimed a Division IV district title this season by beating Harbor Springs, in large part thanks to the strong defensive play and leadership of senior Carolena Elowsky, who brought in honorable mention All-State for the 19-6 Rayders in voting by members of the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association.

"She had a great year, she had a great four years really, Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "She has just been the difference-maker defender for us for four straight years."

Elowsky helped the Rayders tie a school record with 19 wins, which included 17 shutouts, a school record. Her leadership on the field could often be heard from the stands.

"She's the constant communicator too," Scholten said. "She's very positive but she's directing and coaching out there. That's what good defenders do. That's a really big reason why we broke a school record with 17 shutouts this year."

The award wasn't the only one for this season for Elowsky and several of her teammates. Elowsky was also named to the All-Region team.

Other team member awards included:

All District, First Team

Carolena Elowsky, Anna Way, Sydney Carlson, Ellie Way, Leah Davis, Kylee Scholten, Hannah Herholdsheimer, Gloria Greene, Coach Pete Scholten

All District, Honorable Mention

Katie Kiteley, Kaitlin Hinkley, Kelsey Engstrom, Shelby Robinson

Lake Michigan Conference, First Team All Conference

Carolena Elowsky, Anna Way, Sydney Carlson, Hannah Herboldsheimer

All Conference, Honorable Mention

Leah Davis, Gloria Greene, Ellie Way

The team also earned Academic All State Team honors with a combined 3.64 grade point average.

Earning individual Academic All State Honors, for posting a 3.5 grade point average or higher over four years were: Maura Brandi, Sydney Carlson, Carolena Elowsky, Hannah Herholdsheimer, Katie Paramo, Bailee Stevens

The team members also voted for Players' Choice awards from among their ranks for special recognition including:

Defensive Player of the Year, Carolena Elowsky

Offensive Player of the Year, Kelsey Engstrom

Most Improved, Olivia Storm

Team Spirit, Sydney Carlson

REC SOFTBALL

Slo-pitch softball scores

Recent results from the City of Charlevoix Recreation Department's Slo-pitch softball league include:

Monday, June 24

In game one, Double Eagle Metals beat Ace Hardware/St. Mary's, 12-7.

Brandon Brimacomb had three doubles in the game.

In game two, Carlson's Home Improvement beat Stitch N Lyds Embroideries, 26-0.

For Carlson's Home Improvement, Cliff Jones had two doubles and Kristopher Bartling two doubles and a triple.

In game three, Wojan Window & Door beat RGM Services, 14-3.

The league standings following Monday night's games were:

9-0 - Carlson's Home Improvement
7-2 - Wojan Window & Door
4-4 - RGM Services
3-4 - Double Eagle Metals
2-6 - Ace Hardware/St. Mary's
0-9 - Stitch N Lyds Embroideries

Wednesday, June 26

In game one, RGM Services beat Double Eagle Metals, 5-3.

For RGM Services, Clayton Mitchell had a home run.

In game two, Wojan Window & Door beat Stitch N Lyds Embroideries, 17-0.

For Wojan Window & Door, Eddie Waldron had two doubles.

In game three, Ace Hardware/St. Mary's Cement beat Carlson's Home Improvement, 16-12.

For Ace Hardware/St. Mary's Cement, Kevin Fitzpatrick hit for the cycle while Colin Green added a home run.

For Carlson's Home Improvement, Bret Erskine homered.

Rayders' Herriman, Hybl receive All State softball honors

Charlevoix freshmen Skylar Herriman received first team All State honors this season for her duties as a designated hitter for Charlevoix as selected by the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association.

"She's definitely the best freshmen athlete that I've coached," Hoffman said. "She was mostly DH and for someone to come off the bench, not playing and to hit like that, that high, it says something for her. She's a natural softball player."

Herriman batted .578 on the season with an on base percentage of .620, while also hitting three home runs, 15 doubles and 30 singles.

For the past four years, Charlevoix catcher Katie Hybl has had the goal of one day making All State.

That goal for Hybl recently became a reality, as the four-year varsity catcher became an honorable mention Division III All State selection.

"Since she was a freshmen, that's been her dream, to be All-State, so it finally came true and she's really excited about that," Charlevoix coach Ken Huffman. "

Hybl, a natural catcher for the Rayders team, also pitched this year as the Rayders No. 1 starter, while leading Charlevoix to a 20-10 record and Lake Michigan Conference title.

"She's just had an outstanding career for us," Hoffman said. "She's batted right around .400 all year for us. She has been a leader of the team for the last three or four years and always came through in the crunch."

For Hybl, the senior batted .485 with a .528 OBP and one home run. She had 26 singles, 15 doubles and five triples.

With each batting over or around the .500 mark on the season, both Hybl and Herriman led to a potent attack in the middle of the Rayders lineup.

"We batted Katie third and Skylar fourth so you couldn't pitch around Katie," Hoffman said. "It was just fun to watch them."

Hybl's softball days are far from over as she'll play in the Michigan High School All-Star game on July 24th at Michigan State University and continue to play next spring at Alma College.

Marathon draws record numbers

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Organizers with the Charlevoix Marathon said this year's event on Saturday, June 22, drew a record number of registrants and participants.

Ron Suffolk, with Good Boy Events, the company that runs the marathon, said this year's event drew 1,700 registrant and 1,500 actual participants for the four races which include a marathon, half marathon, 5K and 10K events. That's up about 100 runners from last year. (His races typically have about that many no-shows among registrants)

Suffolk said the race continues to see steady growth.

cessful event so far in Charlevoix," Suffolk said. "We are always concerned about everyone being happy and not overwhelming the community."

Suffolk said although the weather was ideal for long-distance running — cool (55 degrees at 7 a.m.) and overcast no course records were set in any of the races.

"It was a beautiful day for running," he said. "It doesn't get any better than that. I thought we'd see some really fast time, but we didn't. But everyone was saying how nice the runners and crowds were, and that probably had something to do with it not being overly hot."

In fact, he noted that last year's winners in the marathon and half marathon events returned to this year's race, but neither was successful in defending their title.

Suffolk noted that while all four races were up in numbers, the half marathon was up the most.

In fact, he said he and other race organizers are considering placing caps on how many participants will be accepted into the race in coming years. He said the reason is not that it's been getting to crowded on the course (which is mostly on the non-motorized trail from Waller Road to Emmet County), but rather, organizers to want the event to become too large, to the point where it overwhelms the community and becomes a burden upon it.

For a list of results of this year's races and more information about the event, visit www.charlevoixmarathon.com.

Marathon highlights

Dressed in a Superman cape, Jacob Maben, 3, of Gaylord blows a train whistle, as his sister, Emma, 5, rings a cowbell to cheer on their mom, Beth Maben, running the 10K Saturday morning during the Charlevoix Marathon.

Michelle Ziegler, #1555, wins the 5K with a 18:32 minute time and a 5:58 minute per mile pace Saturday during the Charlevoix Marathon. Ziegler was best of 140 in her gender and first of 243 overall.

Representing the East Jordan varsity and JV cheer team, (from left) Katie Huckle, 16, Stephanie Buckholz, 16, Brielle Healey, 14, and Kayly Zimmer, 16, all of East Jordan, volunteer to hand out medals as the runners come through the finish line Saturday during the Charlevoix Marathon.

Ben Keller grabs a water bottle as he crosses the finish line on Bridge Street before the 23-minute mark. Keller placed in the top 20 in the 19 and under category Saturday during the 5K race portion of the Charlevoix Marathon. The annual marathon totaled roughly 1,400 runners this year in four main categories: marathon, half marathon, 10K and 5K.

Thorp named new fire chief

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees recently named Dan Thorp, a 12-year veteran of its fire department to be its next fire chief.

The board approved Thorp and his slate of officers at its regular monthly meeting in June to replace retiring long-time chief Curt Thompson, whose last day in the position was June 30. Thompson retired after nearly four decades with the department, many of those serving as its chief.

Thorp, 36, has lived in the Charlevoix area most of his life and is a 1996 Charlevoix High School graduate. He owns his own business, Charlevoix Sewer and Drain Cleaning and has a 15-year-old daughter, Carli, who will be a sophomore

Is Mount McSauba protected enough?

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

There's little doubt most Charlevoix residents would agree that the city's Mount McSauba Recreation Area is one of the city's jewels and that it is worthy of protecting from developers.

But just how far the city should go to provide that protection might be a matter for wider debate.

City residents are expected to have a chance to weigh in on the discussion later this year now that a proposal to place a conservation easement on the property has resurfaced.

Resident John Campbell brought the idea to the council in 2010, but that council said it wasn't interested in pursuing the matter, saying the site is already adequately protected and that granting such an easement could tie the hands of future city council who may wish to explore other recreational uses at the park.

Campbell was back before the council at its regular meeting Monday to again float the idea of the conservation easement.

A conservation easement is a legally binding document, often granted to a nonprofit organization such as a land trust or conservancy in which case the grantor (in this case the city) agrees in perpetuity not to develop or improve a property beyond a very limited scope allowed in the document.

On Monday and in a memo to the council, city manager Rob Straebel reiterated many of the same concerns about the easement that were addressed back in 2010. Straebel noted that the city charter still prohibits the city council from selling off any park land without a vote of the people. He further noted that not only is the city bound in its use of the property by Charlevoix Township's "scenic reserve" zoning of the property (the city owns the Mount McSauba property, but it is located in Charlevoix Township), but the dunes and shoreline area are further protected by a state designation as a "critical dunes" area.

> "Government used to protect us from nature, now government needs to protect nature from us."
> — John Campbell, Charlevoix resident

In fact, Straebel noted that city attorney Jim Young has opined that the same prohibition in the charter against selling or "disposing" of park lands without a vote of the people, would also require a vote to enact the conservation easement.

Young said that's because giving away some of the city's rights to control the property would amount to "disposing" of a portion of the city's park.

Straebel said he's concerned about giving away some of city control of the property and potentially tie the hands of future councils.

"The thing that I struggle with is how can we crystal ball what's going to happen on the back side of that hill 20 years from now," Straebel said.

Campbell agreed with Straebel on the notion of it being difficult to predict the future, but his concerns center more around possible future changes in government entities, such as the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality or even among future city councils who might be less concerned about conservation.

Failed ferry engine sent out for repairs

Timeline for Emerald Isle to return to service still unknown

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

BEAVER ISLAND — Officials with the Beaver Island Boat Company and the Beaver Island Transportation Authority say the broken-down engine that has left the island's main ferry, the Emerald Isle, out of service has been removed from the vessel and shipped to the mainland for repairs.

During a conference call press conference from the island shortly before noon Monday, transportation authority director Barb Schwartzfisher said late last week crews removed the faulty engine from the island's main cargo, passenger and vehicle ferry and on Saturday it was shipped it via barge and sent to Michigan Cat in Kalkaska where it will be repaired. Schwartzfisher did not have a timetable for when the Emerald Isle might be back in service. However, she noted that once the engine is repaired, it will have to be shipped back to the island, re-installed, tested and inspected by the U.S. Coast Guard before the Emerald Isle can return to service.

"The mechanics working on it 24-7," Schwartzfisher said. "The Coast Guard inspection will be coordinated with when the repairs are done so hopefully there will not be any lag time. We have a Coast Guard inspector assigned specifically to us and this situation."

In the meantime, she said, the island will continue to be served by its much older, secondary ferry, the Beaver Islander. The 51-year-old Beaver Islander typically only operates on the busiest summer days to augment the Beaver Island Boat Company schedule, however it has been serving as the island's main ferry since one of the Emerald Isle's two engines failed shortly after departing from Beaver Island on Tuesday, June 25.

Until the Emerald Isle is fixed the Beaver Island Boat Company has modified its schedule and made arrangements with a local barge operator, St. James Marine, to help meet some of the Island's transportation needs as the Beaver Islander is a smaller vessel and cannot carry as many or as large of vehicles as the Emerald Isle can. She said the barge worked well on Saturday to not only move the damaged engine, but also a large number of cars on what is typically the island's busiest car transport day of the week.

Annual Ellebration! set for July 5-6

COURTESY PHOTO

Festival-goers at last year's Ellebration enjoy the annual pig roast meal at the pavilion in the Ellsworth Community Park.

ELLSWORTH — The third annual Ellsworth Ellebration, set for July 5-6, will continue the tradition of a small town celebration of food, family and fun with the majority of events free.

'Ellebration' kicks off Friday, July 5 with the 50s "Drive-in" dinner at 5 p.m. at the Ellsworth Elementary School.

At 6 p.m., the Ellsworth Community Park will be a site for a party that's all wet. For the second year two 100-foot hillside water slides will provide fun for all ages. Bring your super soaker and a beach towel and join the fun.

The main festival day, Saturday, July 6, brings a full slate of events kicking off with the Ellebration! bike tour which will leave from the Ellsworth High School parking lot at 8 a.m. After the ride and before the parade, a pancake breakfast will be offered from 9-11 a.m. at the Banks Township Hall. Also beginning at 10 a.m. are the always-popular historical trolley tours. Additional tours are offered throughout the day. At 11 a.m. the grand parade begins featuring floats galore, antique cars, tractors, queens and more.

Following the parade fun more fun will be available at the Ellsworth Community Park grounds including Cirque Amongus from noon-3 p.m. presenting a free circus show and circus arts stations; big top fun for the whole family. Children will have the opportunity to take part in 10 circus stations including: acrobatics, barrels and globes, cycles, equilibristics, hoops, ropes and silks, magic, manipulation and toss juggling, tight wire and trapeze. Also from noon-4 p.m. are three free kids Inflatable obstacle courses and new this year, the lava flow rock climbing wall. This 25-foot-high wall with 200 square feet of climbing area can accommodate five climbers at a time.

The event people look forward to all year is the famous roast pork lunch under the Ellsworth Community Park pavilion from noon-2:30 p.m. or supplies run out. The meal includes roast pork, bun, cold slaw, baked beans and applesauce, beverage and dessert all for $8. Seniors and children under 12 are $7. The Jordan Valley Community Band will play for diners during the lunch.

At 1 p.m. Duane Amott will give an archery demonstration at the archery range in Ellsworth Community Park, then the kids can give it a try. At 1 p.m. a the free kids fireman's games will take place right next to the archery range, where kids get to be the firemen and have a waterball competition. At 2 p.m. the Ellsworth Farmers Exchange horse pull will take place at the grandstand on Main Street between the elementary and high schools.

At dusk the boat parade begins on St. Clair Lake. At dark, the fireworks begin. Seating at Ellsworth Sports Park offers the best viewing with plenty of free parking. Both the boat parade and fireworks are sponsored by Ellsworth St. Claire Fireworks Committee.

To support Ellebration, organizers will be selling from a booth at the festival. Raffle proceeds fund all Ellebration! events. Raffle prizes include half a processed pig, 15 pounds of bacon from the Ellsworth Market or a gourmet gift basket featuring items from local specialty food producers. Ellebration T-shirts will also be on sale at the festival. For complete details, go to www.ellebration.com, follow the event on Facebook at Ellsworth Pig Roast or call Alana at (231) 360-0676.

at Charlevoix High School in the fall.

Thorp said he has no history of firefighting in his family, but he'd long had a casual interest in it and for many years was among those curious folks who follow fire trucks to see what's going on.

He said after meeting up with the department's long-time assistant chief Dave Christiansen at fire scenes and work sites, Christiansen eventually convinced him to join the department.

Thorp said he was surprised by the amount of training involved in becoming a firefighter, but he took to it quickly had has enjoyed it.

Several years ago, Thorp joined the ranks of the department's officers, spending two years as a lieutenant and the last four years as a captain.

"Once I got into it, I found myself really getting dedicated to it," Thorp said. "After a while people were coming to me for answers to questions. Curt really took me under his wing."

He said his time with the department, and moving into a leadership role has also helped him grow personally.

"I wasn't always comfortable being the center of attention, but the fire department has helped me overcome that," Thorp said.

It might sound strange to some people, but Thorp said he expects one of the most difficult aspects of his shift to the chief's position will be the fact that he'll be spending less time going into burning buildings.

"I will miss being able fight the fires. The job for the chief is to run the scene, and I love to do interior attacks. That's the best part of the job," he said. "I enjoy fighting fires. I like giving back to the community and feeling like we are making a difference in the community."

Looking ahead, Thorp isn't envisioning any major changes to the department.

"Curt will certainly be missed. It's a big set of shoes to fill," Thorp said.

Thorp said he hopes to continue to lead the department in a positive direction, and looks forward to doing some additional community relations and fundraising work and working with township officials on the possibility of constructing a new north side station for the department near its current station.

Joining Thorp in leading the department's 23 members are Christiansen, the assistant chief, captains Greg Seese and Fred Parsons, lieutenants Gary Loper and Corey Wells and administrative assistant Steve Paterka.

Bureau seeking donations for fall Pure Michigan ad

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

After a successful radio advertising campaign with the well-known Pure Michigan program last summer, the officials with the Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau decided last winter to spend another $25,000 on a campaign for this summer.

In fact last year's campaign was so successful, organizers wanted to see if a fall campaign might be equally successful.

The problem is, the bureau doesn't have enough money in its budget for the second ad buy.

The Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau is a nonprofit organization whose mission is to positively impact the area's economy by promoting Charlevoix as a travel destination. The organization's budget is spent promoting Charlevoix to people outside the region for overnight travel. All of the bureau's funding comes from assessments charged on overnight stays at Charlevoix lodging establishments.

"Pure Michigan has been an enormous success for the entire state of Michigan and the convention and visitors bureau is very proud to have brought Pure Michigan to Charlevoix," the organization's board wrote in a recent letter soliciting donations for the fall ad buy.

Bureau officials said the Charlevoix page was in the top 20 most visited pages on Michigan.org (previously it was not even in the top 300), which has been the leading state tourism page in the U.S. for the last six years.

"The Charlevoix Pure Michigan radio commercial was listened to by over a million people. Last year many businesses in Charlevoix reported substantial growth, if not their best year ever, and credit the Pure Michigan campaign with some of this success," the board wrote.

State officials reported that last summer the Pure Michigan campaign attracted 3.8 million people: 2.3 million from the Great Lakes region and 1.5 million from distant national markets. Spending by visitors to Michigan generated $79.1 million in state tax revenues, or $5.76 for every dollar spent on out-of-state Pure Michigan advertisements.

This summer's radio commercial is available online at www.michigan.org/hot-spots/charlevoix.

The bureau board said its primary goal is to help make Charlevoix a year-round destination.

"We feel that the best way to keep the momentum going is by running a fall 2013 Pure Michigan campaign at a minimum cost of $25,000. Travel Michigan matches our contributions dollar for dollar, so for every $25,000 campaign, we are receiving $50,000 in marketing value," the board wrote.

However with $25,000 already committed to the summer campaign, the bureau doesn't have enough money for the fall campaign and, which has prompted its plea for help to the community.

Anyone interested in contributing to the fall advertising campaign effort may do so by writing a check to: Charlevoix Convention and Visitors Bureau, 109 Mason St., Charlevoix, MI. 49720. For more information, call the organization's director, Amanda Wilkin, at (800) 367-8557.

Catholic high school to have 9th grade class

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy will open this fall with a ninth grade class housed in an interim site in the Petoskey area.

With on-track ninth grade enrollment and a substantial monetary commitment from an anonymous donor and others, St. Michael's will be the first Catholic High School to open in the region since 1972.

"We're actually opening a year earlier than our original timeline, but eighth grade parents felt strongly that they wanted a Catholic education for their children. So we've worked very hard in the last three months to get to the point where we are able to open this fall," said Jeff Bacigalupi, co-chairman of the St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy Committee. "We've reached our minimum enrollment goal, but we're hoping to add more students once we finalize our interim site."

St. Michael will be the first independent regional school under the Diocese of Gaylord, which means that it is not financially tied to any one parish.

St. Michael officials said Fisher More Academy and The College of Saints John Fisher and Thomas More will provide a core curriculum that is both academically strong and authentically Catholic taught in real time through a live webinar format, in which St. Michael students can interact by texting and speaking with both the classroom teacher and students from all-over the country. Class sizes are limited to under 30 nation-wide per class.

"It is a great opportunity for students from this area to have discussions with students from all over the country," Bacigalupi said.

School officials said students will receive a classical education which uses a progression of grammar, logic and rhetoric. Each morning students will learn from, and interact with, Fisher More instructors in real-time through a "live webinar" format. Fisher More teachers have master's and doctorate degrees in their fields. For the balance of each day, on-site faculty will conduct science, math, humanities and composition/writing labs. Adjunct faculty will instruct music, PE, foreign languages, fine art, faith enrichment and more.

"I want to stress that the students will interact with the core curriculum teachers in real time, not just view videos or answer questions online," Bacigalupi said.

A full-time local teacher will be on site, monitoring classes, providing tutoring, helping students transition between classes and providing additional support.

"We've been looking for a teacher with secondary credentialing, who has expertise in both English and science, as writing and labs will be done to support the core curriculum. We have received many qualified applicants for the teaching position. Once we hire the full-time teacher, we plan to add part-time faculty to complement the teacher's expertise. We're fortunate to live in a unique community with people, whom we can hire part-time, with the talents to augment the core curriculum," Bacigalupi said.

"Our curriculum will infuse a Catholic view into all the subjects. Latin and religious studies will be required subjects. Instead of the secular relativism taught in public schools, students will be taught that there are absolute truths that guide everyone through their lives," Bacigalupi said. "Students will learn to determine right from wrong in every subject, situation and circumstance."

More details on the curriculum can be found at stmichaelrea.com/curriculum.

"We have enough committed enrollment and substantial financial support, both for the near-term and longer term commitments," Bacigalupi said.

Initially, St. Michael's will be located in an interim building, in the Petoskey area, while the committee continues its search for land to accommodate a scalable facility. Committee members have toured several possible interim sites and expect to have a decision on this facility in early July.

Fall enrollment is open and on-going throughout the summer.

St. Michael's has the possibility of gaining a $50,000 matching grant. Anyone interested in donating toward the match should contact Bacigalupi at (917) 597-1672.

Both donation and school enrollment forms can be downloaded at stmichaelrea.com. Application documents on the school's website indicate tuition for the 2013 school year will be $2,500 with a 10 percent discount offered for multiple students in the same family.

Health department offers swimmer's itch warning

As the weather heats up, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan is reminding people about the dangers of cercarial dermatitis, commonly known as "swimmer's itch."

The condition can occur after swimming or wading in local lakes and rivers. It appears as a skin rash and is caused by a reaction to parasites that infect some birds and mammals. These microscopic parasites are released from infected snails into the water. If the parasite comes into contact with a swimmer, it burrows into the skin.

According to Dr. Joshua Meyerson, medical director for the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, swimmer's itch doesn't usually require medical attention, but can be uncomfortable.

"Swimmer's itch is common throughout the world," Meyerson said. "A topical hydrocortisone cream, an antihistamine like Benadryl, or cool baths with baking soda or oatmeal can help soothe the itch. It's important to avoid scratching the itchy rash, to prevent a secondary infection."

Swimmer's itch can occur in any of Michigan's lakes, rivers or ponds, and is not a sign that a swimming area is unsafe. While the health department monitors public beaches in Northwest Michigan for the presence of E.coli bacteria — a much more serious threat that can lead to beach closures — beaches are not closed based on reports of swimmer's itch.

Meyerson added that swimmer's itch is not contagious, and it does not occur in swimming pools that are properly maintained and chlorinated. He recommends that lake swimmers towel off quickly and thoroughly after leaving the water, to minimize any possible effects. Showering upon leaving the water is also helpful. Children may need extra help with toweling and showering to avoid swimmer's itch, health officials said.

Cheap shirt tales: Power, money can still corrupt

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

It used to be said that compassion varies considerably with distance, and that we were likely to feel more compassion for a head of cabbage in our kitchen than we would for a human being on the other side of the world. Among the things that all sorts of instant communication and global commerce might have accomplished is the easing of that constriction on our compassion.

Buying inexpensive clothing from Sears or Wal-Mart is currently likely to raise the thought that the workers who made them, often people living in Bangladesh, are being subjected to conditions that we have not tolerated in this country for a century or more. Hundreds of workers have died in accidents that were almost certainly caused by the negligence of factory owners.

It is not that we are so moral that we have never tolerated the mistreatment of factory workers. The history of early labor movements in this country, when workers had few or no rights and were regularly threatened, beaten or even killed by police who were supporting the owners of factories, should help us to understand the striving of workers in places like Bangladesh for safe working conditions and living wages.

Legal recourse for Bangladeshi workers who are suing or trying to sue factory owners seems almost nonexistent. Such owners have not been subject to any penalties up to now. This is much like our own industrial past when workers were abused or simply fired if they objected to their working conditions. While such mistreatment certainly continues in our country, we are likely not to tolerate it, and pass laws that prohibit it, and punish the perpetrators. Agricultural workers here are even now particularly vulnerable, and many of their stories sound like echoes from our long past.

In Bangladesh, power, money and their combination in politics are mostly at fault for the dismaying conditions workers are subject to.

Maybe we could take a lesson from our own country. The combination of money and political power is a dangerous trend. It is something to be wary of. We are not Bangladesh, nor are we likely to become such. But the danger of increasing economic and political power being limited to only a tiny proportion of the population is clear. Power does corrupt. It could even corrupt Americans.

Perhaps if we look seriously at history, we will not have to relive it in any part of the world. Seeing and knowing the conditions and circumstances of workers and citizens anywhere in the world, as we now do, must lead us to consider people as more important than the head of cabbage in our kitchen.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LOOKING BACK…

COURTESY PHOTO

Morris J. Stockman, his wife Lottie, Morris's sister Eliza and her husband Seth Mason arrived together from downstate in 1857. Morris (in photo) and Seth had scouted out locations throughout the north in September and settled on little Pine River where they fixed up a small abandoned Mormon house on the north side of Round Lake. Then they returned to collect their families, our third and fourth permanent settlers. The families shared the little house for a time before each found its own dwelling. Morris obtained land at the southeast corner of Round Lake on which the town's first schoolhouse was erected in 1861, with Lottie as teacher. In 1878 he sold 25 of his prime acres to a Baptist church group from Kalamazoo for $625, the beginnings of the Belvedere Club resort. Morris also built the first brick structure downtown, in 1880, his hardware store across from today's Central Drug Store on the southwest corner of Clinton and Bridge Streets. It stood there until 1946. And Morris and Lottie were two of our first residents to become snowbirds, spending much time in Florida during the winter. The pioneer born in 1833 whose frail health had forced him to come north to find a more bracing climate must have found the right spot, because he lived to be an old, quite hale and hearty man and one of our most highly respected citizens.

Street etiquette

Editor's note: In addition his usual "Looking back" weekly historical photo submission Charlevoix Historical Society museum co-director David Miles provided a bonus glimpse back to the days when Charlevoix was in its infancy. These excerpts from a book in the society's collection might help us have a more civilized summer season. Enjoy.

— Steve Zucker

With the summer season now in full swing, the Charlevoix Historical Society thought that this would be a good time to remind residents and visitors alike about proper decorum and behavior while contending against the crowds on Bridge Street. The information is from "Hill's Manual of Social and Business Forms," a 349-page self-help volume containing instructions on varied forms of communication, both written and verbal, in the society's collection. The book was published in Chicago in 1879, the year Charlevoix gained its official name and became a chartered village. The following are a selection of the helpful rules concerning proper street etiquette:

—Ladies should avoid walking rapidly upon the street, as it is ungraceful and unbecoming.

— Running across the street in front of carriages is dangerous, and shows want of dignity.

— No gentleman should stand on the streetcorners, steps of hotels, or other public places, and make remarks about ladies passing by.

— A gentleman may take two ladies upon his arms, but under no circumstances should the lady take the arms of two gentlemen.

— Allowing the dress to trail on the street is in exceedingly bad taste. Such a street costume simply calls forth criticism and contempt from the more sensible people.

— A gentleman walking a lady should accommodate his step and pace to hers. For the gentleman to be some distance ahead, presents a bad impression.

— Should protection on the street be necessary, it is customary for the gentleman to give his right arm to the lady; but if more convenient, he may give the left. (Some authorities claim that it is most sensible for the lady to walk always at the right of the gentleman, whether on the street or indoors, her right hand being thus free to hold trail, fan, or parasol.)

— Staring at people, spitting, looking back after they pass, saluting people across the street, calling out loudly or laughing at people as they go by, are all evidences of ill-breeding.

— A gentleman will assist a lady over a bad crossing, or from an omnibus or carriage, without waiting for the formality of an introduction. When the service is performed, he will raise his hat, bow, and pass on.

— When crossing the pavement, the lady should raise her dress with the right hand, a little above the ankle. To raise the dress with both hands, is vulgar, and can be excused only when the mud is very deep.

— Swinging the arms while walking, eating upon the street, sucking the parasol handles, pushing violently through a crowd, very loud and boisterous talking and laughing on the streets, and whispering in public conveyances, are all evidences of ill-breeding in ladies.

— A true lady will go quietly and unobtrusively about her business when on the street, never seeking to attract the attention of the opposite sex, at the same time recognizing acquaintances with a courteous bow, and friends with pleasant words of greeting.

Schulman Paddleworks moves downtown

JL SUMPTER
Northern Michigan Review

With a year under their belt, Schulman Paddleworks owners Jack and Bill Schulman are glad they stayed with their roots in Charlevoix.

The business, specializing in gear for paddle sports, recently relocated to 204 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix.

The business got its start last year at Camp Sea-Gull along Lake Charlevoix. The Schulman family had operated the camp since 1955, but it is currently not running as Hayes Township looks to finalize a deal to buy the property and turn it into a township park.

Schulman Paddleworks was established when the owners realized the enormous amount of opportunity one may have paddling the Northern Michigan waters.

"We have a full line of all your paddling needs," said Jack Schulman. "We also sell custom paddles that look so nice they could be hung on a wall."

Schulman Paddleworks carries a wide variety of brands such as Naish, Whiskeyjack, Quickblade, Betsie Bay, Mitchell, Grey Owl, Sanborn, and Bending Branches, among others. They also offer many different brands of stand-up paddleboards and canoes.

"We are seeing a sharp increase in the number of paddlers in this area," Jack noted. "This year so far has gone exceptionally well."

Along with its sales location downtown, Schulman Paddleworks also offers rentals from a site at Charlevoix's Depot Beach.

The Charlevoix City Council approved the Ferry Beach operation at a meeting earlier this year.

"We offer kayak and paddle board rentals for Lake Charlevoix and Round Lake," Jack said. "We ask to please call ahead to reserve your board."

For more information about Schulman Paddleworks, call (231) 437-3157 or go to www.schulmanpaddleworks.com. The business can also be found on Facebook.

Students explore careers in health care

Several area students recently had the chance to get a crash-course in what a real medical career would be like when Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District and North Central Michigan College teamed up with Charlevoix Area Hospital to give students up-close and personal interactions in a variety of health-related fields.

MCSI, which stands for Medical Career Scene Investigation, invites students in grades 6, 7, and 8 to explore their futures in the fields of nursing, pathology, radiology, patient simulation, geographic information systems and medical decisions, EMT/paramedics and wilderness medicine.

Sessions took place at North Central Michigan College and Charlevoix Area Hospital over the course of two days and included ambulance and hospital tours, health screenings, dissection, and chemistry demonstrations. At the hospital, students had first-hand experiences with scrub techs, sleep studies, vein finders, ultrasounds and other medical equipment.

Interactive groups encouraged students to ask questions and speak directly to college students and professionals in the field.

"We really want the students to get engaged and ask questions," said Charlevoix Area Hospital Community Health Director Kathy Jacobsen. "This is their chance to learn more about potential health careers and to see if it is something they may want to pursue in the future."

For more information on Charlevoix Area Hospital, visit the hospital's website at www.cah.org.

Oncology care now available at hospital

Charlevoix area patients will find oncology care closer to home as the result of a renewed partnership between Charlevoix Area Hospital and local medical oncologist, Dr. Ervin A. Hire Jr., hospital officials announced recently.

"We are thrilled to have Dr. Hire back in the area," said Charlevoix Area Hospital CEO, Lyn Jenks. "Our patients can benefit from not only Dr. Hire's care and expertise, but from being able to receive that care so close to home."

Dr. Hire travels to Charlevoix several times a month for patient consultation, evaluation, testing and follow-up care. He sees patients at the Charlevoix Surgeons office located next to the hospital at 14695 Park Ave.

Guild awards scholarships

Stevens

Keane

Zipp

The Charlevoix Area Hospital Guild named its 2013 scholarship recipients.

Casey Keane of East Jordan High School, Bailee Stevens of Charlevoix High School and Thomas Zipp, also of Charlevoix High School, each received scholarships this year.

The scholarships are awarded to graduating high school seniors who are interested in an education in the field of medicine and who reside in the area that the hospital services.

The guild first awarded scholarships in June of 1956.

Circle to present 'Poe's Last Night'

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts will present a live theater production of "Poe's Last Night" featuring professional stage and film actor David Crawford in the Gothic atmosphere of the King's Indoor Chapel at Castle Farms on July 9, 10 and 11.

Performances will be at 7 p.m. on July 9 and July 11 and 4:30 p.m. on July 10.

Crawford developed the solo play "Poe's Last Night" portraying Edgar Allan Poe. The play debuted at the 2012 Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival Fringe. During the production, Crawford presents seven of Poe's poems and stories that connect to his life and fascinating mind – ending in his last hours on the streets of Baltimore Md.

Following his death, Edgar Allan Poe, father of the modern mystery, was idolized by the French symbolists for his romantic poetry. He brought depth to the tale of horror and was a literary critic and editor.

The show's is about 1 hour and 20 minutes in length and includes an intermission.

Tickets are $15 in advance and $18 at the door.

Advance ticket sales locations include: Charlevoix Circle of Arts, at 109 Clinton St., Elements, 211 Bridge St., The Clothing Company, 339 Bridge St., and Castle Farms, 5052 M-66.

For additional information or ticket purchase, contact Charlevoix Circle of Arts at (231) 547-3554.

About the actor:

David Crawford has been a professional actor since 1980 when he earned his Actors' Equity card playing First Murderer in a production of Macbeth.

He then played Friar Laurence in Romeo and Juliet at Three Rivers Shakespeare Festival, followed by nearly 200 other roles in American regional theater. Most recently he played Selig in August Wilson's Gem of the Ocean at the August Wilson Center in Pittsburgh, Pa.

His film work reached a peak early on, with the role of Dr. James Foster in George Romero's zombie masterpiece Dawn of the Dead. That assignment, along with roles in several subsequent horror movies, have earned him appearances as a guest at horror conventions, where the talk often turns to such masters of horror as Edgar Allan Poe, and where Crawford was inspired to develop a solo show portraying Poe.

The result was a 50-minute production called Poe's Last Night, which debuted at the 2012 Edinburgh, Scotland, Festival Fringe. It was later expanded to an hour and 20 minutes.

Crawford

During part of the year, Crawford teaches acting at Civic Light Opera Academy in his home town of Pittsburgh. The Academy is a training ground for musical theater performers. Crawford has worked in regional summer stock playing Fagin in Oliver, Pickering in My Fair Lady, Polonius in Hamlet, Shakespeare.

For the past 12 years, he has worked as a coach and judge for Pittsburgh's Public Theater's Shakespeare performance contest.

Crawford will also be teaching classes at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts later in the month. See page A7 for more information.

This porch garden is just one of the many gardens that guests of the Charlevoix Area Garden Club's annual Garden walk will have the chance to view on July 10.

Annual garden walk set for July 10

Advance tickets $10, on sale now

The Charlevoix Area Garden club is inviting area residents and guests to see what people can accomplish tucked into small in-town gardens, in classically summer vintage home settings, on a huge expanse of property or on a rise above the Lake Charlevoix shore as it prepares to host this year's garden walk.

From 10 a.m.-4 p.m. on Wednesday, July 10, rain or shine, Charlevoix Area Garden Club, through the cooperation of area homeowners, will offer the community entrance into each of six gardens during its 15th annual Garden Walk. Tickets are $10 in advance or $15 on July 10.

Organization officials ticket holders will have the chance to "spend the day exploring, appreciating and learning from these unique, delightful gardens and our informed docents."

Proceeds from ticket sales pays for most of the work the club accomplishes around town in its 11 civic gardens and through its multiple community projects.

Tickets are on sale at: Castle Farms, A Touch of Spring, Charlevoix Country Club, Christian's Renolda Greenhouse, Clothing Company, Esperance, Marion Schoolhouse Gardens, Mary's of Boyne, Pine Hill Nursery & Landscape, Round Lake Bookstore, Petals-Custom Floral Design, Round Lake Bookstore or by calling (231) 547-2119.

Landscape tips offered at workshop

Proceeds benefit Manna

Rob McCartney, horticulturist and designer for Castle Farms, will present a workshop titled "How Does Your Garden Grow?" at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 16, at the Castle.

McCartney will present ideas on how to make the home landscape more sustainable by reducing expenses and labor without compromising presentation. He'll be discussing a variety of topics such as water reduction, fertilizer and pesticide use, mowing and pruning methods, and how to select plants that take less maintenance without affecting the appearance of your garden.

McCartney is a nationally recognized authority on superior plant selection, and an expert in compost technology and eco-friendly gardening. A featured speaker at national conferences, seminars, radio and television, McCartney served six years as director of horticulture for The Frederik Meijer Gardens in Grand Rapids, and for 10 years directed the horticulture department at SeaWorld where the gardens were once voted, "Best Landscaped Theme Park in America." An alumnus of Ohio State University, McCartney holds bachelor degrees in horticulture and education, as well as a master's degree in horticulture. His list of current clients includes Castle Farms of Charlevoix, Linden House Gardens (The Estate of Christel DeHaan) of Indianapolis, Ind., Wellfield Botanical Gardens of Elkhart, Ind., and the City of Grand Rapids.

Cost for the workshop is $5 per person, or $3 with a canned food item donation. All proceeds benefit the Manna Food Project. Reservations are required; RSVP to Larissa at Castle Farms, (231) 237-0884, extension 236 or Larissa@castlefarms.com.

Beaver Island Boat Company crew members make final preparation for the ferry the Beaver Islander to depart from Charlevoix at 2:30 p.m. Monday.

FERRY

On some days the revised schedules have called for nearly round-the-clock ferry operations, with the trips departing from the island at 11:20 p.m. and from Charlevoix at 2:30 a.m.

See the Beaver Island Boat Company's website for updated schedules at www.bibco.com. The modified schedule available as of press Tuesday went through July 11.

Schwartzfisher said Monday that she and boat company officials are not expecting any problems handling passenger and cargo transport to and from the island, but officials are working on backup plans for providing additional capacity should the need arise.

In a recent press release, boat company officials asked that passengers, especially with vehicle reservations, take note of the Beaver Islander's vehicle restrictions. The main height of the vessel's cargo area is 6 feet 4 inches.

"BIBCO is asking that vehicles try to avoid traveling with car top carriers and other items on top of your vehicle. Also, if you have a vehicle above 6-foot-4-inches in height, please try to bring a smaller vehicle if you are able to do so, as it will be difficult for them to guarantee passage of vehicles taller than 6-foot-4-inches. Trailers will be taken on a case-by-case basis and may need to be unloaded as water levels make it very difficult to load and unload trailers."

Company officials noted that some vehicles will be sent to and from the island on the barge, but noted that the travel time of the barge is approximately four hours and it cannot take passengers.

The company offered its thanks to its customers for their patience.

"We fully understand the inconvenience this may cause to you and your travel plans. Our main priority is the safety of our passengers and vessels and we will continue to work as diligently as we can to return to our normal operations as soon as we are able," the release read.

On Monday Schwartzfisher noted that while the Emerald Isle is out of service, mechanics are giving its other engine a check-over, too, to look for any possible problems with that engine.

Schwartfisher said there have been no cost estimates for the repairs to the damaged engine because she believes the cost will be covered under a warranty. She explained that both of the ferry's engines were overhauled during the past winter's off season and a specification of the bids for the work was that it come with a warranty.

from nature, now government needs to protect nature from us," Campbell said.

Campbell hinted that his renewed effort to seek the easement for the property, may have been prompted, at least in part, by the recent East Park fireplace controversy.

In a letter to the council about the easement, Campbell wrote, "As we have learned recently in Charlevoix, political winds can blow in different directions and they do not always carry us in the right direction. Government needs a certain amount of flexibility, but it also requires discipline."

He added: "The creation of such a conservation protection should be viewed not so much as a restriction on the property (but) as the appropriate exercise of visionary leadership. It would exclude the developed area of the property, leaving plenty of room for the ski hill and other developed recreational uses. Flexibility would thus be retained."

At Monday's meeting, Campbell was eager to get the ball rolling on the discussions and asked for a public hearing on the matter to be scheduled for next week. At least some of Campbell's rush had to do with his initial hope to get the question of the easement on the ballot for the upcoming November general election. The deadline to have all the necessary procedures completed is Aug. 13.

However, city planner Mike Spencer voiced concerns about moving that quickly. Spencer noted that city staff has a great deal on its plate right now, with the recent resignation of the city clerk, pending city zoning ordinance overhaul final approval, discussions about a policy for which city projects the planning commission should review and the general busyness of the summer season.

"Rushing the process and trying to get something on the ballot would be a mistake," Spencer said. "I would hate to see a hasty decision by council."

After some discussion, the council agreed by consensus — as did Campbell — that the best course of action would be to postpone the discussion and public hearing to the fall. The council said the discussion should start at the planning commission, to which Spencer replied, the commission would begin looking into the proposal as soon as the zoning ordinance and city project review policy is completed.

Dry Harbour Marine takes 2nd in tourney

Dry Harbour Marine, a 16 and under travel baseball team with players from Charlevoix, Harbor Springs, Alanson and Central Lake took second place in the Buddog Invitational in Boyne Falls last weekend.

Against Mount Pleasant in pool play, Isaac Mortensen of Central Lake drove in the only Dry Harbour run as Dry Harbour lost 4-1. Nate Moon and Hunter Cox, both of Charlevoix, had the only hits.

Dry Harbour rallied for four runs in the bottom of the sixth to pull out a 9-8 win over Midwest Lightning of Livonia on a Brett Williams (Alanson) two-run walk-off double. Moon had three hits, including two doubles. Chase Lepird of Harbor Springs had two hits. Charlevoix's Will Telgenhof, Adam Michaud and Jake Cox all had singles. Cox's single started the sixth inning rally. Williams was the winning pitcher in relief.

Charlevoix's Shane Sutherland threw a one-hit shutout to beat Boyne City, 1-0. Telgenhof doubled in Lepird with the only run of the ball game. Lepird had reached on a bunt single and stole second.

Moon threw a complete game against Huron Valley Rebels (Milford) in an 11-1 mercy rule win. Telgenhof's three-run home run was the big blow in the game. Charlevoix's Noah Certa had two hits. Moon singled and had two RBI. Moon, Sutherland, Lepird, Hunter Cox and Michaud all singled.

In the tourney championship game, Mount Pleasant defeated Dry Harbour, 7-3. Dry Harbour rallied to score three runs in the bottom of the seventh and had the bases loaded as the game ended. Certa had the only Dry Harbour hit. Charlevoix's Spencer Stewart reached base twice for Dry Harbour.

Pickleball offers a new twist on several games

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Looking for a summer sport that offers a social aspect as well as a good physical work out? Pickleball, a relatively new sport played on the city of Charlevoix tennis courts in Charlevoix, is gaining momentum.

Although primarily a senior court game in snowbird states such as Arizona and Florida, Pickleball is the kind of game that invites all age groups to give it a whirl ... or whack.

On any Tuesday, Thursday, or Saturday morning, that's just what can be heard at the city courts: the whack of paddle on plastic. Usually the four courts are filled with doubles play and others are waiting in the wings for a turn. Many adults bring their kids or grandkids on other days to introduce them to the fast-paced game which regular players say is easily learned and played.

Pickleball evolved from humble origins. Conceived in 1965 on a backyard asphalt badminton court on Bainbridge Island in the Puget Sound area of Washington State, Pickleball is 48 years old this year. The game has its origins in two dads trying to lure their bored kids into a new game.

According to the story relayed on the the USA Pickleball Association's website, the game got it's name form "Pickles," the dog, that kept running off with the ball. The association was formed in 1984.

Pickleball is a combination of badminton, tennis and ping pong. It is played on a hard surfaced court approximately the size of a badminton court, which is why enthusiasts are taping or painting additional boundary lines on existing tennis courts in order to play the game. The net is lower than that of badminton, closer to the height of a tennis net. Existing tennis nets already in place serve the purpose. An area marked 7 feet on either side of the net is fondly referred to as "the kitchen." Staying out of this "no-volley" zone is one rule converts from tennis must learn. The game is played with solid wooden racquets that are slightly larger than ping pong paddles. The balls are hard, plastic whiffle balls. Pickleball is usually played as doubles, though in tournaments there is a singles category. All the rules can easily be learned in one session and then improved upon with practice. Although competition is inevitable, the game is primarily player-friendly.

"It's the fastest growing sport in America," said Kay Baldwin of Charlevoix. Baldwin is a USA Pickleball Association Ambassador. She has fanned the flames of the sport in both Charlevoix where it is played on the outdoor city tennis courts and in Petoskey, where it is played at various locations outside in the summer and inside at the athletic complex courts at North Central Michigan College.

"I like Pickleball because it's a fast moving game," Baldwin said. "There's a frequent rotation of partners and opponents. It's inexpensive, and multi-generational. Both men and women can excel at the sport because it's a game of strategy, not power."

"When I joined the National Pickleball Association, I noticed they had an ambassador program for the purpose of promoting the sport of Pickleball. So I volunteered for the position and offer support locally. My role is to encourage participation and to keep players in our area informed of playing times and tournaments."

Baldwin is also the contact on the national website which lists places to play all over the country.

"I frequently receive e-mails and phone calls from visitors looking for a game," Baldwin said. She herself has played in five states while traveling.

"We are beginning our third season in Charlevoix," said Baldwin. Pickleball will be played in Charlevoix on the city tennis courts, across from the Charlevoix Golf Club, from 9 a.m.-noon each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, through fall, weather permitting.

The city of Charlevoix Recreation Department is in the process of repainting boundary lines and getting the courts cleaned up soon so the action can begin in earnest.

"Pickleball players are a friendly group, always welcoming guest players and newcomers. Baldwin said."

Free lessons are available upon request.

For further information, contact Kay Baldwin at (517) 402-1243, or via e-mail at kaybaldwin@gmail.com

Eight area youth golfers recently learned they will reap the benefits of receiving scholarships offered by the Charlevoix Junior Golf Association to attend the Ferris State University golf camp. Only junior golfers who had attended over half of last season's sessions and are at least 12 years of age were eligible to apply for the award.

Applicants for the scholarships had to provide a written expression of why they would benefit from the experience and provide a character reference.

Prorgram director Dean Davenport, in announcing the recipients, noted the experience each youngster will receive through the camp.

"For a week they will be on a beautiful campus at a fine institution of higher learning, mixing with students attending the summer semester. The camp is one of the best as Ferris was the first university to design a curriculum to prepare graduates to become golf professionals, so they will receive excellent instruction. The University's' teaching facilities are second to none and they use the most up to date electronic equipment to give students the real picture of the fundamentals they need to learn. Katke Golf Course is one of the best among colleges that have their own courses. This year's golfers will bring the total number junior golfers who have been sent to the camp with scholarships during the history of the program to 110. The major fundraiser for this effer is Belvedere Golf Clup pro Marty Joy's "Hickory Hundred," Davenport noted.

This year's Hickory Hundred event is scheduled for Aug. 19, during which Joy will again use clubs from 1935 as he plays 100 holes in a day for pledges made by supporters of the junior golf program.

Davenport noted the recipients of this year's scholarships to attend the Ferris State camp are: Andrew Baten, Kevin Edick, Jared VanMeter, Payton Novotny, Madison Olach, Abby Scholten, Rylynn Sladek, and Jacob Simmons.

Basketball camp set for July 10-11

The Charlevoix High School basketball programs will host a co-ed basketball camp on July 10-11 at the Charlevoix High School gym.

Camp sessions will be 8 a.m.-noon for grades 4-7 and 1-5 p.m. for grades 8-12.

The camp will cover ball handling and shooting skills and will be run by Jason Otter of Jason Otter's School of Basketball.

The cost of the two-day camp is $90 per person.

"We are lucky to have a top-quality coach running a camp here," Charlevoix girls basketball coach Liz Shaw said."

Anyone interested in participating in the camp should contact Shaw via email at lshaw@rayder.net for registration form and to make payment arrangements.

2012 VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

Charlevoix Venetian Festival

As the season in Charlevoix draws ever so near, so too does the 83rd Annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival. Our Venetian homecoming celebration and its amazing array of activities has become a fabric of life in Charelvoix, thanks in great measure to the Venetian Burgee Club, whose ranks consist of those individuals, businesses and organizations who faithfully and generously contribute funds, goods and services to Venetian. Please join us in thanking the members of the 2012 Venetian Burgee Club.

If you or any of your friends or family have ever enjoyed any Venetian activities, please consider the fact that all of the major events and entertainment of Venetian are absolutely free. Yet it still costs the Venetian volunteer organization upwards of $250,000 to stage the premier festival. Which is why your help is needed to maintain the quality entertainment and activities of Venetian.

This year's Festival, which will take place from July 20 through July 27, 2013 will again be shaped by your donations. Please don't look away when it is time to contribute, and otherwise take this opportunity to enlist and/or re-enlist in the Burgee Club, by forwarding your 2013 donation with the Enrollment Form located below. Best wishes for a summer season filled with the kind and generous spirit of Venetian.

Rayder scores tops among area results

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

The percentage of 11th graders in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District who demonstrated proficiency on the 2013 Michigan Merit/ACT exam exceeded the state averages in every subject tested. However, in comparing scores of individual districts, there are wide variations in these percentages.

Scores from Charlevoix Public Schools were at or near the top among scores in the Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School district in nearly every subject tested.

The MME/ACT test is given annually to 11th grade students to measure their mastery of the Michigan Merit Curriculum and the college/career readiness of students. Districts are required to test at least 95 percent of their 11th graders in math, reading, science, writing and social studies.

The assessment takes three days and is made up of questions from three separate exams — the ACT, the ACT Work Keys, and the Michigan Merit. The ACT test is used by colleges to measure readiness for college entry. ACT Work Keys assesses job readiness skills. The Michigan Merit Exam questions are added to ensure the test covers mastery of the Michigan Merit Curriculum.

School personnel analyze test results to see the numbers and percentages of students who test in each of four categories, below basic, basic, proficient and advanced. They track the percentages of their 11th graders who demonstrate proficiency by scoring proficient or advanced each year. In addition, the test gives them feedback on the types of questions students miss. The goal of looking at the testing data is to weigh curricular improvements that might be made in subsequent years to help increase the percentages of proficient and advanced students.

Four local districts have higher percentages of students who demonstrated proficiency than the state averages in all subjects area tested. These districts are: Charlevoix Public Schools, Harbor Springs School District, Public Schools of Petoskey and Concord Academy of Petoskey.

"We put an extra emphasis on math and science and show improvement in both areas. In reading and writing, we are slightly down from last year, but we are emphasizing reading and writing across the curriculum. We are above the state and Char-Em ISD averages in all areas. The MME/ACT is just one snapshot of student scores," said Lynn Slanec, director of teaching and learning with Public Schools of Petoskey. Slanec said that teachers also look at other standardized testing results, as well as Petoskey's own common assessments across grade levels when they talk about curricular improvement efforts.

Char-Em ISD-wide scores show 36 percent of students demonstrating proficiency in math, compared with 29 percent state-wide. In math, Charlevoix Public Schools has the highest percentage of 11th graders scoring proficient or above with 55 percent. Alanson Public Schools, East Jordan Public Schools, Concord Academy of Boyne, and Northwest Academy have lower percentages of 11th graders demonstrating proficiency in math than the state average.

In reading, scores show that 60 percent of Char-Em ISD 11th graders demonstrating proficiency compared to 54 percent state-wide. Concord Boyne, Concord Petoskey and Charlevoix have the highest percentage of proficient students in reading with 75 percent. All the districts in Char-Em ISD show a greater percentage of reading-proficient students than the state averages, except Alanson and East Jordan.

In science, scores show 33 percent of Char-Em ISD 11th graders demonstrating proficiency compared with 26 percent state-wide. Charlevoix has the highest percentage of science-proficient students with 44 percent. Local districts, except Alanson, Boyne Falls Public Schools, Pellston Public Schools and Concord Boyne, meet or exceed the state average of proficient students in science.

Alanson's percentages of science-proficient students have fluctuated from 4 percent to 33 percent. It is not uncommon for schools that test low numbers of students to have wide fluctuations in the percentages of proficient students. If, for example, a school tests 10 students, each individual's score represents 10 percent of the total.

"Alanson's scores in three areas, math, reading, and social studies, are slightly up from last year, and two areas, science and writing, are down," explained Jeff Liedel, Alanson superintendent. "The number of students who take the MME in our school is so small statistically, that we look for trends over time."

In writing, scores show 55 percent of Char-Em ISD 11th graders demonstrating proficiency compared with 26 percent state-wide. Harbor Springs has the highest percentage of students who demonstrate proficiency in writing with 79 percent. All the local districts exceed the state percentages of students demonstrating proficiency in writing, except Alanson and Boyne Falls.

In social studies, scores show 43 percent of Char-Em ISD 11th graders demonstrating proficiency, compared with 39 percent state-wide. Charlevoix has the highest percentage of proficient 11th graders in social studies with 55 percent. All districts except Alanson, Concord Boyne, Boyne City Public Schools and Pellston meet the state average percentage of 11th graders proficient in social studies.

"For Boyne City the scores are somewhat of a mixed bag in regard to comparing this year's with last year's results as well as comparing Boyne City's performance with the total number of juniors who took the MME assessment throughout the state," said Boyne City superintendent, Peter Moss.

For 2013, Boyne City outperformed the state in most content areas in reading, writing, math and science, showing significant gains in math and science, while the state showed no growth in those two areas.

"Although we see several positives with these scores, we at Boyne City are not content with them. We believe we should and can do better to insure student achievement in our district. Currently, school improvement plans are in place and ready to be implemented this fall to address all curricular areas," Moss said.

Boyne City High School principal Karen Jarema said she uses the MME/ACT results as one measure of how the curriculum is working.

"I'm fairly pleased with our scores, but we're not done growing," she said. She pointed out that, in addition to test scores, she gets feedback from the community to determine if students are prepared for their next step, whether it be trade schools, continuing their education in a university or a community college, or going right to work.

"I think that whether or not we are doing a good job graduating students with the skills they need shows in community support of the school. The message we get from our community is that our students are successful," Jarema said.

"When reviewing the scores each year since 2007, Alanson is showing small, steady, sustained improvement. I feel we are headed in the right direction, but, as in many districts, I would like to see greater gains faster," Liedel added.

Liedel added that he would like Alanson to "embrace new technology and the latest methodologies," but said that finding adequate funding is a challenge with state aid value decreasing and changing state requirements that require shifting resources to meet those.

"This leads to cuts in programs, preventing the ability to sustain the technology we already have, let alone keep up with the new technology," he said.

Intermediate school district helps local districts fill budget gaps

JAMIE BAUMANN
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix-Emmet Intermediate School District recently approved a budget that will dip into its fund balance once again in order to help the local districts make up gaps in per pupil funding from the state.

When in 2009, the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act awarded $2.4 million to the Char-Em ISD, the district's administrative team decided to spend that federal money, but save an equivalent amount of the local resources for, what they foresaw, as an economic downturn, with property values falling, and state funding to schools decreasing.

"Other districts spent the money, but we decided to be conservative and use it to help over what we projected as a five-year economic dip," assistant superintendent Jeff Crouse said.

The administrative team, with the Char-Em board approval, increased the ISD cash reserves and hatched a plan for Char-Em ISD to reallocate some discretionary resources back to the local districts each year to try to mitigate the effects of lower property values on those districts funded primarily by local property taxes, and of lowered state revenue per pupil on those districts which are subsidized with per pupil allocations from the state. The ISD team put together a plan to help the local districts get through, what they projected to be a five-year economic downturn. This plan started in 2010-2011.

"We're right on target with that plan," Crouse said. "We thought in years four and five, the property values might recover, and we'd have to spend less to help the local districts. That did happen, as the inflationary index rose 2.5 percent overall in the area we serve, but there were carry-over tax tribunals and settlements from big businesses that were settled, which made property tax monies to the ISD a net loss of almost 1 percent. Hopefully, we now have a new baseline and revenues from property taxes will slowly begin to rise."

According to Crouse, "The declining property tax values in the ISD from 2010-2013 have resulted in a cumulative loss of $3.5 million in potential property tax revenues for the ISD and districts we serve."

In addition to saving the equivalent of the federal Recovery and Reinvestment Act money, the Char-Em ISD also moved from a model of buying health insurance for its employee to a self-funded model that pays the actual medical costs incurred. This arrangement coupled with an employee wellness program has saved the ISD an estimated $2 million over the course of six years versus a comparable insurance program. This has helped the ISD maintain its services and programs for students in a declining revenue period, while lending a hand to the local districts.

Annually, Char-Em ISD has been passing about $2 million in special education millage money. $300,000 from the special education fund balance, $150,000 in vocational education indirect cost monies through to local districts. Char-Em board has complete discretion over the use of all of these funds.

"This money has been used and at times increased to local districts to equate to their shortfalls in state aid," Crouse said.

In 2013-2014, Char-Em ISD has budgeted $28,774,478 for programs, services and resources to the region's 10,000 students. With revenues anticipated at $26,821,500, the ISD has budgeted to utilize fund balance for the difference, bringing the anticipated fund balance to 26 percent of expenditures.

2090 BIDS WANTED

Official Notice

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS
CITY OF CHARLEVOIX
2013 INFRASTRUCTURE IMPROVEMENTS

Sealed Proposals will be received by the City of Charlevoix (Owner) at the office of the City Clerk, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, until 2:00 P.M., prevailing local time on July 17, 2013, and then publicly opened and read aloud, for the construction of the above referenced project.

The work generally consists of reconstructing Garfield Street between State and US 31, Lewis Street between Dixon Avenue and US-31 and accompanying alleys off of Lewis Street. There is approximately 1,200 LFT of asphalt surfaced roadway with curb and gutter, approximately 1520 LFT of 12' wide alleys. The project includes approximately 450 LFT of new 8-inch DIP water main, 1500 LFT of new RCP storm piping, and drainage structures, 1,400 LFT of new sanitary sewer and manholes, 2,100 LFT of 2" conduit, and the removal and replacement of curb and gutter, driveway approaches, some concrete sidewalks, and grass surfaces to complete the construction. The anticipated construction schedule for this project is between August 1st and October 18, 2013.

The drawings and specifications under which the work is to be done will be available by July 3, 2013, at 11:00 A.M. and may be examined at the Office of the City Manager, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Michigan, 49720, phone (231)547-3270, and at the office of Performance Engineers, Inc., located at 406 Petoskey Avenue, in Charlevoix, Michigan 49720, phone (231)547-2121. Bidders also should take into consideration the City of Charlevoix's local bidder preference policy, which is available at the City's website www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

Drawings and Specifications may be obtained from Performance Engineers by submitting a non refundable fee of Fifty Dollars ($50.00) per set. The purchaser must supply the telephone number, fax number, and street address of the individual or firm to whom addenda (if any) can be directed.

A certified check or bidder's bond for a sum not less than five percent (5%) of the amount of the bid will be required with each proposal.

The right is reserved by the Owner to accept any Proposal, to reject any Proposal, and to waive irregularities in Proposals.

No bids may be withdrawn after the above date and time for receiving bids for a period of thirty (30) days.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR DRINKING WATER
State Drinking Water Monitoring Requiremtns Not Met For City of Charlevoix

The City of Charlevoix is required to monitor your drinking water for chemical contamination on a regular basis. Results of regular monitoring are an indicator of whether or not our drinking water meets health standards. The City of Charlevoix was required to collect a minimum of 10 lead and copper samples from residential sites by September 30, 2012. The City of Charlevoix failed to collect the samples resulting in a violation of Michigan's Safe Drinking Water Act, 1976 PA 399, as amended, and the administrative rules promulgated thereunder.

The violation does not pose a threat to the quality of the supply's water.

What should I do? There is nothing you need to do. This is not an emergency. You do not need to boil water or use an alternative source.

The table below lists the contaminants we did not properly test for and when follow-up samples were required to be taken. The only violation was taking the samples late. All samples have now been analyzed and all are acceptable.

Contaminant	Required sampling frequency	Number of samples taken	When all samples should have been collected	Date additional samples were collected
Lead and Copper	Ten samples every three years	0	June thru September 2012	June 2013

Lead/Copper	MCLG	AL	90th%	Range of Detections	Sample Date	Violation	Typical Source of Contamination

City, townships discussing fire, ambulance authority

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Officials from the city of Charlevoix and five of its surrounding townships have begun preliminary talks recently about considering the creation of an authority that would oversee fire and/or ambulance service for the western end of the county.

On Monday, officials from the city and the townships of Charlevoix, Hayes, Norwood, Marion and Eveline got together for the second time for an informal discussion to gauge interest among the municipalities in creating some kind of authority to oversee emergency services.

Currently the city provides ambulance service for the city and — by contract — for all five townships. Some of the townships — Eveline and Norwood — also contract with the city for fire protection. The townships of Charlevoix, Marion and Hayes are covered by the Charlevoix Township Fire Department. Generally, the ambulance service contract calls for the townships to reimburse the city for a share of the actual net costs to operate the service. The cost is divided up among the municipalities based on run volumes and townships that do not also contract for fire services with the city pay a higher rate than those who do contract for fire services, fire chief Paul Ivan explained.

The city is already in the process of doing some re-evaluation of its emergency services departments independent of the discussions with the townships. Looking ahead to the expected retirement of city fire chief Ivan sometime next year, city manager Rob Straebel will at the next city

It's well known that summer is the busy season in Charlevoix and it's been no different for the Charlevoix City Council, which had a full agenda leading to a three-plus hour meeting on July 1 and another full agenda awaits it for its July 15 meeting.

At its July 1 meeting, in addition to discussing a proposal from resident John Campbell about placing on conservation easement on the city's Mount McSauba Recreation Area, the council did the following:

— The council conducted a public hearing, and then approved a Payment in Lieu of Taxes ordinance with TJ Acquisitions, the company which owns the Lake Harbor Apartment Complex — an affordable housing apartment complex on the city's north end. Company representative Jeff Gates said the agreement will save the company about $4,000 a year in taxes — about $900 of that from city taxes. The 18-year agreement, Gates explained, will allow the company to take advantage of a low income housing tax credit program, which will in turn allow it to spend around $1 million in upgrades and renovations to the complex.

— Completing a process that began in 2010, the council approved

Lighthouse restoration moving into final phase

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Officials with the Charlevoix Historical Society recently began the third and final phase of restoration work on the Pine River Channel south pier light.

Historical society representative Mike Bergeon said last week crews from Mihm Enterprises, a contracting firm that specializes in restoration of historic structures and the same firm that has done the previous two phases of restoration work, began working on scraping and painting the interior of the lighthouse. Workers will also be replacing a couple of brass vent covers.

BEAVER ISLAND — Officials with the Beaver Island Transportation Authority and the Beaver Island Boat Company are hopeful that — if all goes according to plan — the island's main ferry boat, the Emerald Isle, will be back in service just in time for the start of this year's Venetian Festival.

The Emerald Isle has been out of commission since one of its two engines failed shortly after departing from Beaver Island at 5:20 p.m. on June 25. The ferry was able to limp back to its berth on the island under the power of its other engine and no injuries resulted from the incident.

A few days later the faulty engine was removed from the ferry and on June 29 it was shipped to the mainland via barge to be repaired at a facility in Kalkaska.

Updating the Courier on the situation on Wednesday, transportation authority executive director Barh Schwartzfisher said weather permitting, the repaired engine is expected to be back on the island sometime late this week.

She said once the engine is on the island, work will commence to reinstall it in the Emerald Isle. The repaired engine is tentatively scheduled to be realigned with the other engine on Tuesday, July

Arizona man dies in Lake Charlevoix

The body of a 56-year-old man was discovered in Hayes Township Saturday, July 6, a couple of hours after the man was swimming with family members near a Boyne City-Charlevoix Road residence.

In a news-release issued Monday, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said the death appeared to be a accidental drowning, but the incident remained under investigation. The body of Philip Boal of Arizona was transported to Charlevoix Area Hospital after the 5 p.m. discovery and was turned over to a medical examiner to determine the cause of death.

On Wednesday, Schneider said the medical examiner's reports were not yet in, however, in Boal's obituary, the family listed his cause of death as a heart-attack.

According to Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office release, first responders from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office, Charlevoix EMS and Charlevoix Township Fire responded to a report of a deceased male that had washed up on the shoreline of Lake Charlevoix near the address of 9224 Boyne City-Charlevoix Road in Hayes Township at 5:17 p.m. on Saturday. Efforts by first responders to revive Boal were unsuccessful.

"For the first responders, it was a very difficult situation," Schneider said "It was a very steep location to get down to the beach. They worked on him for 40 minutes to try to revive him, but were obviously unsuccessful."

County plans to purchase Butler Property for Whiting Park expansion

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

ADVANCE — Charlevoix County is hoping to expand recreational opportunities at its Whiting Park in the near future.

A $91,800 grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources will aid the county in acquiring a 72-acre piece of property adjacent to the park valued at approximately $305,000. The acquisition would expand the size of Whiting Park by one third.

The county board of commissioners unanimously approved a grant agreement for the Michigan Department of Natural Resources Trust Fund grant at its meeting on June 26.

"This property is a perfect addition to the Charlevoix County parks system," said parks and recreation director Ross Maxwell. "The acquisition of the Butler Trust property will greatly increase and enhance the public's use and enjoyment of this incredibly beautiful (area) on Lake Charlevoix."

The Butler property shares an approximately 2,700 foot border and many topographical features with Whiting Park and provides unobstructed views of Boyne City across Lake Charlevoix.

This map shows the location of a piece of property Charlevoix County plans to purchase next to Whiting Park.

The parcel matches up with the existing park trail system and would likely add another three-fourths of a mile or more of trails to the system, according to Maxwell.

"At some future point in time there may be additional campsites, including toilet and shower facilities, for the campers staying in this portion of the park," he explained, adding that specific plans are still in the works.

The park director expects the property purchase to be completed within "a few months."

Whiting Park is located on the southwest shore of the main arm of Lake Charlevoix midway between Boyne City and Ironton just west of the unincorporated village of Advance.

The park has 11 universally accessible electric campsites and 48 rustic sites as well as a community complex for events and meetings.

A portion of the park is comprised of wooded wetlands that have been left in a natural state and are used as a nesting site for loons.

"With the addition of the Butler Trust property, recreational opportunities and protection of the natural areas are greatly increased," Maxwell said.

Court high school headed to Charlevoix

Now-vacant middle school to house about 15 students

AEBRA COE AND MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

The Great-Lakes Academic Center, a high school located in Boyne Falls that serves court-placed students and those involved with substance abuse treatment, will likely part ways with the Boyne City Public School district after a nearly 18-year cooperative relationship. The school is slated to be relocated to the now-empty Charlevoix Middle School building for the upcoming 2013-14 school year.

The break also means that Boyne City's alternative high school, which had been run concurrently with Great Lakes and which serves students in the district who have fallen behind academically, will be relocated to the upper level of the district's Early Childhood Education Center in downtown Boyne City.

Gendron

The relocation of the court school means a drop in funding for the Boyne City district, but an even larger drop in expense as the alternative high school program is absorbed into an existing building, according to superintendent Peter Moss.

At least one teacher will likely be laid off by the district, a bus route to Boyne Falls will be eliminated and it is unclear whether the program director's responsibilities will be maintained, said Moss. The total savings for the district could be as much as $25,000, he reported.

And, he says, the move will likely be positive for the students in the court program.

"They'll be closer to the court, the treatment centers are all there in Charlevoix, probation officers, therapists, and they will be able to cut down on transportation costs," he explained. "I think that's the direction they've decided to take."

Charlevoix superintendent Robert Gendron says the move will bring funds to the Charlevoix school district, and hopes those funds will have a positive impact on the Charlevoix school budget.

"We've been working on it," said Gendron. "The board has been informed that we're moving this direction, and we'll be giving them another update on Monday night."

Gendron estimates the Charlevoix district will receive about 15 extra students.

Charlevoix's budget has been ailing the past several years, and the board of education recently voted to close the middle school building. Gendron has been working with various organizations, including Baker College, to make use of the space.

Boyne City's change is also an opportunity to rethink and improve the district's alternative high school program, Moss added.

"It's going to be a blended approach," said Moss. The students will be closer to Boyne City High School and will have the opportunity to take part in some vocational education and elective classes there, but will take all core classes online, with the help of the existing teachers. The program will be individualized to each student, made possible by the online instructional approach.

"It might serve as a model for what we can do and expand later down the line for all students," Moss said.

There is no danger in having the alternative high school located in the preschool building, he asserted.

"They are not bad kids, they're students who have lost a credit or two," he said. "Our hope is that we get these kids redirected and hopefully back in the mainstream."

While the relationship between the district and the court school was long and positive, the move isn't negative for either party, Moss explained. "We'll adjust. I think we can make things even better."

Second petunia weeding event changed to Aug. 7

Officials with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the organization whose Operation Petunia has kept U.S. 31 through Charlvoix lined with petunias during the summer months for more than three decades has rescheduled is next community weeding event for 4-7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 7.

Organization officials are asking members of the community to turn out during this time to help pull weeds from the five miles of petunia beds along U.S. 31 through the city.

The weeding event will work much like planting has for years in late May. During the weeding the outside lanes of U.S. 31 will be closed, to allow people to work a safe distance from traffic.

When the weeding is done, volunteers will be giving a coupon for a to-be determined treat in East Park.

This is the first year the organization has turned to the community for help with the very big task of weeding the petunia beds after 30 years.

Organization board president Aaron Wilkin said the board is hoping for better participation in this second weeding effort than the sparse turnout for the first one on June 25.

Library to host NLEA class on business start-up skills

The Northern Lakes Economic Alliance will offer a class entitled "How to Really Start Your Own Business: Practical Information From Those Who Have Done It." from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, July 18 at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Attendees will evaluate the potential of their business idea and learn the process of putting a business plan together. Other topics covered will be: Ways to Start a Business, Business Legal Structure, Importance of the Business Plan, Permits & Licensing, Marketing, Goals and Objectives, Operations, Communications, Resources and more.

This program is presented by Tip of the Mitt SCORE and the alliance, in conjunction with northern Michigan Business Resource Centers and local Chambers of Commerce. The cost is $20 per business. For questions, or to reserve a space, call the alliance at (231) 582-6482.

Police warn of thefts from unlocked vehicles

Police in Charlevoix are warning area residents to beware of thieves who have been stealing items from unlocked cars in the city in recent weeks.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said the thefts have been happening during overnight hours for about the past month. He said his office has had about a dozen reports of the thefts in the past two weeks alone.

Doan said all of the thefts have involved vehicles that were left unlocked and parked either on the street or in driveways. He said the thieves are making off with whatever valuable items they can quickly grab, such as wallets, cash and electronics.

He said officers have no leads on the thefts at this point.

Doan recommends that people lock their car doors, refrain from leaving valuable items inside vehicles and asked the residents report any suspicious activity or possible thefts as soon as possible by calling 9-1-1.

Look for the signs of depression and listen

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

A sad topic for summer reading but one I felt worth addressing is the increase in deaths due to suicide.

The year was 1973 and I was volunteering at a 24 hour Crisis Center in the heart of Ypsilanti. My involvement was encouraged by my instructors as I was a newbie in the profession of counseling and field experience was the best teacher. As it turned out, it was. I was a crisis phone counselor focused on listening to students from the university setting who were depressed and thinking about suicide. It was a hotline that kept me on my toes and taught me to listen intently: validating their potential attempt and giving the high sign to a team at the center to intervene and physically spend time with the caller as I traced the site of the call.

Many clients were students who were about to be sent to Vietnam, or felt they were not living up to their parents' expectations academically or individuals wanting to share with their family that they had chosen a same sex partner for their lifetime mate.

Now, 40 years later, my heart breaks to see the scenario of suicide fulfilled in veterans returning home and especially the rise in deaths among our youth feeling such a deep sense of hopelessness. Clinical depression is real, but taking away that diagnosis and just looking into ourselves we all feel depressed at different points in our lives. When reflecting back on those times in our lives when we felt that nothing we could do would make things better, we usually spoke something aloud that clued someone in to what we were feeling or something occurred that broke the pattern of thought.

When those feelings pass we realize how grateful we are that we are still here and become aware of what may trigger those feelings and adjust our lifestyle or thinking process. For some this is difficult because stressors can be overwhelming and if there is lack of support or if mental illness with depression genetically runs in the family suicide seems like the only way out.

If someone you know talks about feeling hopeless, feels tired all the time, sleeps a lot, has difficulty concentrating, and has unexplained aches and pains be there to listen to them. If they no longer enjoy the things they used to do and are withdrawing from friends and family they are probably depressed. Communicate that you care about them and you are available to talk whenever they want to or refer them to someone who can.

Mental health professionals and physicians can make an official diagnosis and medication may help. For those not genetically inclined to depression but are overwhelmed with events like failing school, death of a family member, loss of work, a relationship that ends, this depressed feeling can pass. Some things to do that will bring you back to yourself include: exercise, biking, walking, and talking. All of these increase endorphins and elevate your mood. When I look at teens, I look for disturbing amounts of drinking or binge drinking, reckless behavior, violent behavior such as punching walls or driving recklessly. Sometimes I find myself in debates with owners of guns. I am not opposed to hunting, but when guns are easily accessible in the home and depressed individuals are aware of it there is no going back. On rare occasions I have met with individuals who botch their death with a gun and now live with a physical disability. They continue their lives but with regret for the choice they made and the fortunate ones are leading lives that help others.

So I am writing this with hopes of helping you to listen and watch the signs and not to ignore them because the next life you save may even be your own.

The 172-foot Keuka (pronounced "kyoo-ka") was built as a three-masted freighter in 1889 and later served as a lumber barge with her middle mast removed until lumbering died out in the early 20th century. Then she was converted to a Lake Charlevoix floating dance hall and casino, known as a "blind pig" during Prohibition, and acquired a reputation for wild parties. Her last one resulted in a near-fatal shooting in late December of 1930. At 3 a.m., a Petoskey man became upset with an East Jordan man who apparently was ignoring his date. He "called" him on his ungallant behavior and a quarrel erupted. A man named Latham, one of the boat's co-managers, stepped in to break it up when the Petoskey man whipped out a pistol and shot Latham in the stomach. He was rushed to the hospital in critical condition but survived. The gunman escaped but was apprehended. The Keuka was locked down. While being towed to Charlevoix from Boyne City on Aug. 14, 1932, she mysteriously sank half a mile off Ferry Beach, probably from old age, although sensational rumors flew as to the supposed reason. Her masts, which stuck above water, had to be dynamited off, and the sunken Keuka is now a favored destination for scuba divers.

Art show award winners announced

The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce this week announced the winners of the Best in Show award for the 15th annual Summer Solstice Art Show which took place Saturday and Sunday, June 29 and 30.

More than 70 artists from around the country were chosen to display their work in East Park over the warm and sunny weekend.

Representatives from the Charlevoix Circle of Arts were tasked with judging the booths and choosing the winner of the 2013 Summer Solstice Art Show's Best-In-Show Award.

"We were honored to be asked to judge the show," said Charlevoix Circle of Arts President, Nancy Suzor. "It was not an easy task to undertake. Because we reached a tie vote, we were especially pleased to be able to recognize two outstanding artists with original, quality work and excellent booth presentation."

The winners were:

Serge Hung with Impression Jewelry from Clermont, Fla. with his hand painted, ceramic, wearable art and Harry Welsch with Wellman & Welsch Pottery from Lutz, Fla. with his stoneware.

The winners of the award were chosen based on excellence in originality, execution and presentation, organization officials said.

The date for next year's Summer Solstice Art Show will be June 28-29, 2014.

For more information contact the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce at 231-547-2101 or visit www.charlevoix.org.

Library to host historical series

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a series of programs highlighting the history of Charlevoix. The series will be take place at 6:30 p.m. on three upcoming Tuesdays.

Kicking off the series on July 16, David Miles, co-director of the Charlevoix Harsha House Museum, will feature "The History of Charlevoix's Business and Industry." Miles will present a chronological history of the industries and businesses that made their home in Charlevoix from 1869-present. Channels were cut to connect Lake Charlevoix to Lake Michigan in 1869 and it blossomed into one of the most important commercial venues in northern Michigan due to its proximity to the Lake Michigan shipping lanes as well as being blessed with one of the most protected natural harbors on the Great Lakes.

Charlevoix was the conduit through which flowed most of the business of this region when fishing, lumbering, and iron ore smelting ruled the commercial sector. At the end of the 19th century, Charlevoix handled more maritime tonnage than any other port on the east Lake Michigan shore outside Chicago.

Then, on July 30, Linda Mueller, the owner of Castle Farms, and Kathleen Paterka, Castle Farms staff writer will present "An Evening with Castle Farms." Attendees will journey back in time as the origins of Northern Michigan's very own fairy-tale castle will be traced. Built in 1918 by Albert Loeb, acting president of Sears and Roebuck Company, Loeb Farms was originally designed based on the architecture of the castles in France, and was constructed as a working model dairy farm to showcase farm equipment available in the Sears catalog. In later years, the property was used as an artist's studio, and for a 20 year period was rock-n-roll venue.

Purchased by Linda Mueller in 2001, the Castle property has undergone a complete restoration, and is now listed on both the National as well as State of Michigan Historic Registries. Castle Farms was recently named by the American Association of Retired People to its prestigious list of one of the "Top-Ten Must See" Castles in North America. The evening's presentation will include a brief pictorial overview featuring rare black and white archival photos and contemporary color images accompanying a historical narration by Paterka, followed by a question and answer period with Mueller. Co-authors of the Castle's recently published biography, Paterka and Mueller will be autographing copies of For the Love of a Castle following the presentation.

To round off our history series, "Michigan's Vanishing Railroad Stations: Architecture, History and Sense of Place," will be presented by Michael H. Hodges on Monday, Aug. 5. In his new book, "Michigan's Historic Railroad Stations," Detroit News art critic Michael H. Hodges photographs and profiles 31 depots across the state, from Detroit to Three Oaks to Charlevoix and Petoskey. In this lecture and slideshow, Hodges traces the evolution of the train station and the range of styles architects employed to both tame and exalt rail transportation. Touching on news accounts, literature and film, Hodges also considers the central role the Charlevoix Depot once played as the nation's principal crossroads — a much-used, much-loved public space that has no real analog in American life today. Round Lake Books will be selling copies of the book that Michael will autograph.

GLE members to receive ballots

Great Lakes Energy members will soon have the opportunity to elect directors to serve on the board of the member-owned electric cooperative. Members will receive the July/August issue of Michigan Country Lines magazine that contains a mail-in ballot for voting for directors.

Five candidates are vying for the two open positions on the board of directors of the member-owned electric cooperative. Incumbents Robert Thurow of Scottville and Richard Walsworth of Mears are being challenged by Mary Brower of East Jordan, Mike Hayes and Kara Wasylewski, both from Elmira.

The mail-in ballot is part of a cover wrap attached to the magazine. Candidate profiles appear inside the issue.

Cooperative members must return their completed, postage-paid ballots by no later than Aug. 15. Miller & Cook, LLP, a Gaylord CPA firm, will receive the ballots and tabulate the votes.

Results will be announced Aug. 21 at the electric cooperative's annual business meeting in Boyne City.

Great Lakes Energy serves more than 125,000 member consumers in 26 counties in western and Northern Michigan.

Library features weekly jazz concerts

The Charlevoix Public Library presents the seventh season of JATL: Jazz@the Library live concerts.

Concerts take place at 7 p.m. each Wednesday beginning now through August, except Venetian week, in Grandma Geri's Children's Garden. A special soloist joins the JATL Trio of Steve Stargardt, Andy Evans and Chris Ames each week to bring the music alive.

The kick-off event on July 10 highlighted the jazz standards with vocalist Janice Keegan.

This year JATL: Jazz@the Library is also planning a feature event, Big Band Dance Party, where attendees will get a chance to learn a few dance moves and then dance to the music of the Razor Entertainment Dance Band. The big band event will begin with lessons at 6 p.m. Wednesday, July 31, followed by the concert at 7 p.m.

The free jazz concerts will continue each Wednesday through August. Weather permitting, performances will be in the garden; bring a chair. For inclement weather, concerts will be moved to the library's community meeting room. For more information, contact the library at (231) 237-7340.

Frederick W. Bechtold Sr., 89

Frederick W. Bechtold Sr., 89, of Bellaire, died Friday, July 5, 2013 at Munson Hospice House.

He was born Oct. 12, 1923 in East Jordan, the son of Dr. George W. and Gladys I. (Kenney) Bechtold.

Frederick was a proud member of the U.S. Marines, serving in WWII at Iwo Jima, Guam, Guadalcanal, and Bougainville. He received several distinguished military awards including a Purple Heart. He continued his devotion to the Marines after he was discharged in 1946. He belonged to the Marine Corps League and continued to support individuals serving our country. He became a member of the VFW and American Legion and for the last 67 years proudly marched in the Memorial Day Parade.

A banker by trade, Frederick began working at the Bellaire State Bank in January of 1947 and worked there for 40 years. During his banking career he testified before congress to secure financing for the development of Shanty Creek. He was also on numerous state banking committees. Frederick was a past member of the Bellaire Board of Education, and a life member of the Bellaire Lions Club. He served on the Bellaire Village Council and the Bellaire Industrial Fund. He was also a long standing member of St. Luke Catholic Church where served as an usher and on the finance council.

On April 19, 1947, in Petoskey, Frederick married Pauline Behan who survives. Also surviving are his children Frederick W. (Kathryn Knoff) Bechtold Jr., Paula (Gary) Griffith, Mary (Tom) Lane, James (Cynthia Chambers) Bechtold, 11 grandchildren, and 3 great grandchildren. He was preceded in death by his parents, son Mark and sisters Jean Hudnutt and Louise Jackson.

A Memorial Mass will take place at 11 a.m. Friday, July 12 at St. Luke Catholic Church with Fr. James Gardiner officiating. The family will receive friends from 10 a.m. until the time of Mass. A time of fellowship will also follow Mass in the luncheon hall. Interment will take place in the family plot at St. Francis Xavier Cemetery, Petoskey. Memorial donations may be made to St. Luke Church and Antrim County Baby Pantry.

Arrangements have been handled by the Bellaire Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes. Please sign his online guestbook www.mortensenfuneralhomes.com.

Rev. Fr. Philip Seraphin Zorn

Aug. 15, 1825 — April 14, 1900

Remains of 19th Century missionary returning to Emmet County

The Rev. Fr. Philip Seraphin Zorn was born in Bernfeld, Germany, on Aug. 15, 1825. He entered the Franciscans in Germany in 1848 and after coming to the United States, became a member of the Benevolent, Charitable and Religious Society of St. Francis, founded by Rev. Fr. John B. Weikamp, in 1855 in Chicago.

The whole Weikamp community moved to Harbor Springs in late 1855 and in 1856 moved to Cross Village where they operated a large monastery until Weikamp's death in 1889.

Brother Seraphin had been studying for the priesthood and the Ven. Bishop Frederic Baraga ordained him to the priesthood at Holy Childhood of Jesus Church, Harbor Springs, on Jan. 20, 1856. Fr. Zorn remained in Harbor Springs as an assistant to the pastor for about a year during which time he learned the local Indian language.

In 1857 he was made assistant at the Cross Village Church and in 1861 he became pastor of Cross Village. In 1862, Fr. Zorn was made pastor of Holy Childhood of Jesus Church in Harbor Springs, and remained here until 1884. During these years, besides being pastor of Holy Childhood of Jesus Church, Fr. Zorn was in charge of some four missions and nine stations. These included such churches as St. Mary's, Cheboygan, St. Mary's, Burt Lake, St. Ignatius, Middle Village, St. Ignatius, Beaver Island, Sacred Heart, Garden Island, St. Francis Solanus, Petoskey, St. Mary's, Lake Leelanau, and St. Michael's Suttons Bay. He was also responsible for starting parishes such as St. Mary's, Charlevoix, and St. John Nepomucene, Praga.

In 1883, the Diocese of Grand Rapids was founded and new bishop, Bishop Henry Richter, asked the Franciscan Fathers from St. Louis, Mo., to send a group of men to work in the new diocese.

They arrived in 1884 and were given Holy Childhood of Jesus Church and Fr. Zorn was made pastor of St. Joseph Church in Elbridge (in Oceana County). He remained here until his health began to fail in the late 1880s. He was then made chaplain of the Catholic Hospital in Big Rapids and later, chaplain of the Catholic Hospital in Manistee where he died on April 14, 1900, and was buried in the Catholic Cemetery in Manistee.

Fr. Zorn was in Manistee only a little over a year and it has always seemed sad that his body hadn't been returned to his last parish for burial. Elbridge was closed as a parish some years ago so a few people have worked to bring his body back to Harbor Springs where he labored for so many years.

In 2012, Bishop Bernard Hebda of the Gaylord Diocese gave his permission for this move. Fr. Zorn's body was exhumed last November and will be reburied in Harbor Springs this July.

The Mass of Christian Burial will be celebrated by the Most Rev. Bishop Bernard A. Hebda at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 12, at Holy Childhood of Jesus Church, Harbor Springs, assisted by the priests of the diocese.

The Stone Funeral Home of Petoskey is handling the arrangements.

Virginia M. Jarvis, 97

After a journey of 97 years, Virginia M. Jarvis has been called home to be with her Lord.

In April of 1916, she was born in Zanesville, Ohio, to Benjamin and Mayme (Spring) White. Later in the 1920s, she and her family moved to Detroit.

In 1934, she married Walter "Turk" Jarvis. They moved to Charlevoix in 1943 and have made Charlevoix their home ever since.

Virginia spent many years working as an aide at Charlevoix Area Hospital. She also worked at Charlevoix schools as a cook but finally returned to the job and people she loved at the hospital. After retiring, she continued to be active with her church, her friends and family, and found part-time work "just to keep busy."

Virginia loved to knit. She made sure her family and friends always had a ready supply of everything from booties to afghans. A knitting bag was always found by her side. "Wait until I finish my row," was a most common phrase from her.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Walter; her son-in-law, Thomas McInnis; and her niece, Karen Christie.

She is survived by her sister, Evangeline "Betty" Inman, of Charlevoix; daughter, Barbara McInnis, of Westminster, Calif.; son, Jeffrey (Janice) Jarvis, of Petoskey; niece, Beth (Mitch) Simmons, of Scottsdale, Ariz.; grandchildren, Michele (Sean) Butler, Heather (Chad) Ambler and Jeff McInnis, all of California, Janna (Justin) Baker of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., Jessica (Nick) Strong of Fayetteville, N.C., and Jacqueline Jarvis of Petoskey. Virginia left behind 10 great-grandchildren.

There is no doubt she'll be missed from this earth, but the fellowship will just be starting with "Ginny" back in her circle of friends. We're sure she's having coffee and laughs with Mike and Rachael, Rev. and Mrs. Majors, Joanie and Jock, Clem, Ike and Lucille, Tom and Hazel, Dorcus and so many others she shared this life with.

A memorial service will take place at 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 17, at Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. After a brief graveside service, a celebration of her life and family get-together will be at Ferry Beach in Charlevoix.

Monte M. Korn, 93

Monte M. Korn, 93, of West Bloomfield and Boulder Park, Charlevoix, died on Saturday, Feb. 23, 2013.

Korn received his law degree from Wayne University and passed his bar exam in April, 1942 prior to completing law school. Shortly thereafter, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps. He graduated Quantico with the rank of second lieutenant and then was stationed on the island of Midway where he proudly served his country.

When he returned from the war, he opened his law practice in south Oakland and Wayne Counties. He was a member of the State Bar of Michigan since 1942, and was a member of the Probate and Elder Law Sections of the State Bar. He practiced law for more than 70 years. In addition to his practice, Korn was the radio talk show host of Open Line with Monte Korn and he co-hosted Money Wise on TV2 Detroit.

Monte loved to read, write, and recite poetry, but his greatest love, was his wife, Eleanor. Over the course of their 65 year "love affair" they were blessed with seven children, 14 grandchildren, and two great-grandchildren.

Monte and Eleanor traveled the world together, but their home away-from-home and favorite domestic locale was Charlevoix, where they owned a cottage. He loved watching the picturesque sunsets as well as listening to the sounds of the waves crashing against the shores of Lake Michigan.

Monte lived his life, defying expectations and transcending limitations. He truly practiced what he preached, living every day as though it were his last.

Monte is survived by his beloved wife, Eleanor of 64 wonderful years; sons and daughters-in-law, Larry Korn and Marge Clarke, Dr. Howard and Lynne Brooks-Korn, Stephen Korn, Rabbi Richard and Shuli Korn; daughters and son-in-law, Linee Diem, Joanne and Dr. Michael Rowe, Nancy Korn Zelch, and 16 loving grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Work crews construct scaffolding along the north wall of the Masonic Building Wednesday as thay prepare to repair brick work along the top edge of the north wall.

Repairs under way

Work expected to be completed by July 19

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Motorists in downtown Charlevoix can expect the eastern-most portion of Mason Street at Bridge Street to be intermittently closed for about the next week as crews work to repair damage to the exterior brickwork at the Masonic Building at that intersection.

On Tuesday, crews began dismantling temporary scaffolding put in place as a safety precaution after bricks from the northwest corner of the 100-plus-year-old structure fell to the sidewalk around 6:30 a.m. on June 20. Although no one was injured in the incident, the building's owners blocked off the sidewalk on the north side of the building and put up temporary scaffolding to allow patrons to Subway and Revolution Bike and Board safe passage to and from the building.

Following the incident, the building's owners brought in engineers who determined that the building is structurally sound, but that the mortar around the bricks near the top of the building's north wall in the decorative corbels (sections of brick that jut out slightly from the rest of the wall) was loose.

On Wednesday crews began setting up the scaffolding that will allow workers to repair the brickwork. When repairs are complete, the north wall will have all flush bricks just like the east wall.

Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said Tuesday that officials with Site Planning, the company that is overseeing the project, have said the work is expected to by completed by July 19, the day before the Venetian Festival begins.

Straebel said initial information from Site Planning officials is that they'll need the entire end of the street to be blocked off during the project. Straebel said, however, after the project gets started, he's going to speak with Site Planning officials to see if there is a way that the street can be at least partially open during the project to reduce impacts on traffic and nearby businesses.

On both Tuesday and Wednesday, the east end of the street was closed for most of the day, but crews reopened it when the work day was complete.

Both Subway and Revolution Bike and Board are expected to remain upen while the work takes place.

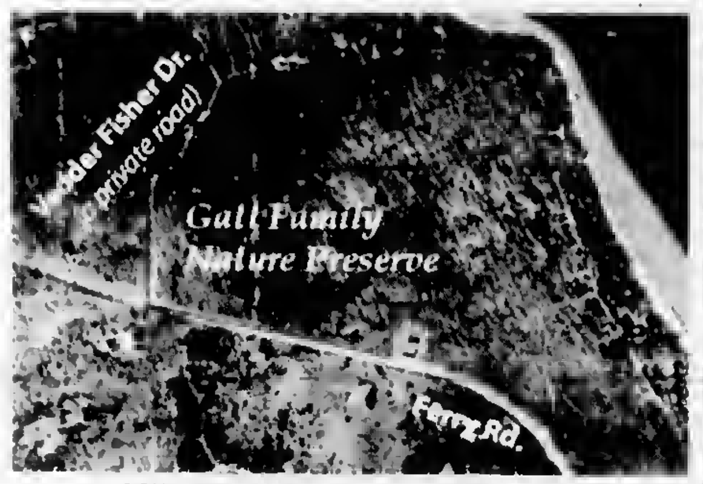
Gatt Family Nature Preserve established east of Ironton

A new 22-acre tract of land near Lake Charlevoix was recently acquired by the Little Traverse Conservancy and is now known as the Gatt Family Nature Preserve. The new preserve fulfills the objectives of Jim and Joan Gatt and some of their neighbors to see the permanent protection of the land's natural features, conservancy officials said in a news release.



COURTESY IMAGE/LITTLE TRAVERSE CONSERVANCY

This arieal image shows where the newly-established Gatt Family Preserve is located east of Ironton.

According to the release, the Gatts first acquired the land in the 1970s from the previous owner, a farmer. After Joan (2011) and Jim (2012) passed away, their family began working with Dr Arnold Bauer and a dozen other neighbors to protect the property. As it turned out, connecting with Conservancy Land Protection Specialist Ty Ratliff was the link that brought the neighbors and the Gatt family together for a common goal.

"The Conservancy is always interested in protecting more land within the Lake Charlevoix watershed," Ratliff said. "This new preserve lies in an area where (the conservancy) had hoped to establish a nature preserve as well."

Ultimately, 13 neighbors to the property contributed to make the purchase and protection possible.

"Having this many neighbors amicably agree to make this preserve a reality is a wonderfully unique situation," Ratliff said. "Dr Bauer and all the contributors deserve huge kudos for their grassroots efforts.

In the end, all parties noted that this is exactly what Jim and Joan Gatt would have wanted for this land, conservancy officials said.

Plein-aire exhibit opens July 20

A selection of "Plein-Aire" art will be displayed for the July 20 Art Exhibit at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts (CCA). Not all work will be rendered in the open air. Work will represent something that one might see in Northern Michigan, and are depicted on canvas in oil, acrylic, watercolor, pastel or multimedia. Guests can expect the exhibit to be vibrant in color and present something unique and exciting for everyone who enters the gallery. Many paintings will have scenes and views that will touch the heart of all who love this beautiful and inspiring Northern Michigan area.

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts exhibit "Colors-Views of Northern Michigan" will open with a reception from 6-8 p.m. on Saturday, July 20 at the organization's building at 109 Clinton St. in Charlevoix. The exhibit will remain on display through Aug. 25.

The curator of the exhibit is artist Diane Mittenthal, and it will showcase the work of many Jordan River Arts Council and Charlevoix Plein-Aire artists, as well as other prominent area artists.

The two plein-aire groups each meet one day a week in "open air" at a pre-determined site to create their renderings of beautiful Northern Michigan scenes and views. Gatherings are open to everyone. There is no cost, all media (oil, pastel, watercolor, acrylic, pen and innk, etc.) are welcome. Visitors to the area will enjoy seeing plein-aire artists at work when they sight-see along our beaches, woods and countryside.

We have selected a few of the paintings shown here for you to enjoy the talents of these artists. Diane Mittenthal, Curator, Emilie Braun, Barbara Eisenberg, Beverly Eby, and Jeannie Putman are amongst the many artists entered in this exhibit. Plein-Aire artists groups enjoy life lasting friendships and share learned painting tips from each other. The "Colors" exhibit will be like a gift you gave to yourself. The Charlevoix Circle of Arts cordially invites all area residents, travelers and local artists to the Opening Reception on Saturday, July 20th.

For additional information, visit the Charlevoix Circle of Arts website at www.charlevoixcircle.org or call (231) 547-3554.

Auto enthusiasts in Charlevoix are busy waxing and polishing up their vehicles for the upcoming 21st annual Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Up North Cruise and Car Show on Friday, July 19th and Saturday July 20th. The weekend tradition is action packed with fun for friends and family to enjoy. The Charlevoix Street Legends Car Club will host the annual event in its continuing effort to raise money for local charities and nonprofit organizations in the Charlevoix area.

The Up North Cruise begins on Friday when participants will meet at the Bethany Lutheran Church parking lot (11906 U.S. 31 North, Charlevoix). The scenic cruise around Round Lake and Lake Charlevoix will begin at 4:30 p.m. and then will return to Charlevoix for a special parking space at the Downtown Cruise-In from 6-9:30 p.m. to kick off the 21st annual Street Legends Car Show.

The 21st annual Classic Car Show in Downtown Charlevoix will take place on Saturday, July 20 in East Park. Vehicle registration for the show is from 9 a.m.-noon. Goody bags and dash plaques will available to the first 150 registrants. Door prizes will be awarded. A will be 50/50 drawing along with hoola-hoop, bubble gum and limbo contests will also be offered. A silent auction with items and gift certificates donated by local businesses will take place until 1 p.m. The Street Legends awards ceremony will take place at 3 p.m. Drawings for cash prizes for registered participants with grand prize of $500, second prize of $300 and third prize will be $200 will take place. The National Street Rod Association will be on hand to provide free car inspections. Preregistration is $15 and $20 the day of the event.

"It is a privilege to be a member of the Charlevoix Street Legends Classic Car Club and to join efforts with the club membership to raise funds that will in turn, help promote and support our community programs. Our club membership represents many walks of life and careers that a share love and appreciation of classic cars. It is out hope that bringing 150 plus car show will provide a weekend of fun for all ages, while raising funds to distribute to charitable community programs later in the year," said club member Claudia Bost.

The Street Legends Classic Car Club was formed by local car enthusiasts in the Charlevoix area in 1992 and has been helping the community with more than $120,000 in donations proceeds during the past 20 years.

FERRY

16. The car deck that was disassembled to remove the faulty engine will then need to be reinstalled, followed by lake testing and U.S. Coast Guard inspection.

"If everything goes perfectly, it could be back in service by the weekend of July 20," Schwartzfisher said.

Since the Emerald Isle went out of service, the island has been served by its much older, secondary ferry, the Beaver Islander. The 51-year-old Beaver Islander typically only operates on the busiest summer days to augment the Beaver Island Boat Company schedule, however it has been serving as the island's main ferry since the Emerald Isle went out of service.

Schwartzfisher said island transportation officials have made arrangements with a local barge operator, St. James Marine, and operators of the Kewenaw Star to help handle the excess freight, vehicle and passenger loads during the busy summer season.

Schwartzfisher spoke with pride as she talked about how the island community has pulled together to overcome the challenges presented by the reduced ferry capacity in the past two-plus weeks.

She pointed to the boat company crews, many who have worked through the nights on weekends to accommodate schedules.

"These men and women are my heros," Schwartzfisher said. "They have worked tirelessly to make this work for community."

"We had a great Fourth of July. It's been amazing, to see everyone pulling together, the camaraderie, the dedication. I wish everybody could feel how it can be when everyone works together — to know when the chips are down, your neighbors are standing there next to you," Schwartzfisher said. "I don't think I have been hugged so much in my life."

look over ownership of the lighthouse from the U.S. Coast Guard, the historical society has overseen the restoration project. Funded largely through grants and fundraising, the roughly $183,000 project is expected to wrap up this summer.

The first phase in 2008 involved stabilizing and weatherproofing the structure, including rewelding and repairing some plates, and replacing some cross braces. The second phase, completed in 2009, was scraping the old white paint from the exterior of the structure and repainting it to its historic red color.

Bergeon said crews will work on the project for the next several week, taking a break during the upcoming Venetian Festival week.

council meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 15, be asking the council for its approval to hire a consultant to study the feasibility of combining the fire chief's duties with that of the police chief to create a public safety director position. (The fire chief's position also oversees the city's ambulance services, which is part of the fire department.) Straebel said it's important to get started on the preliminary work on the possible change because such a move would require a vote of the city's residents to modify the city's charter. The charter spells out specifically how the city's police chief and fire chief are to be hired and the city attorney has recommended that a vote take place for such a change. In the future, the city may also look at consolidating the two departments into a public safety department, Straebel said.

Straebel said the group of city and township officials is next scheduled to meet at 1 p.m. on Monday, July 15, with the same consultant to see if the municipalities would support a study to evaluate the feasibility of a fire and/or ambulance authority.

In general terms, an authority would probably work something like this: The authority would be overseen by a board made up of representatives from each of its member municipalities. Members could be appointed or elected. The authority would likely be supported by a millage and its board would oversee how the authority operates.

Reporting to the city council following the first meeting, Ivan said there has been mixed initial reaction to the authority idea. Ivan said the townships were generally agreeable to the ambulance authority, but Marion and Charlevoix townships were not initially interested in including fire service in the authority.

Charlevoix Township Supervisor Chuck Center confirmed that initial discussions he's had with representatives from his township show little or no interest in the fire element of the authority.

Straebel said Wednesday, "The city still strongly endorses looking at fire and EMS as a stand alone authority (and) to move forward with a study regarding the actual impact, not only financial, but on operations, from a response time standpoint, to see if there is a better way to do things."

Ivan also said an authority approach could offer cost savings — especially in fire services — by avoiding some duplication of equipment and administrative costs. He noted that an authority would also give all member municipalities some say in how the services are run.

a new master plan for the Charlevoix Municipal Airport. The consultant that has been working with the city on the project explained that the document is integral to the city's obtaining grant money from the Federal Aviation Administration, and lays out tentative plans for future improvements and expansions at the airport. The master plan is available on the city's website at www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

— The council approved a motion to recognize that the deputy city clerk will fulfill the duties of the city clerk until a new clerk is elected in November and takes office on Jan. 1. The action was necessary after former city clerk Carol Ochs resigned from her elected post effective on June 28 — six months before the end of her term. City manager Rob Straebel recommended the option in light of the fact that the city charter is silent on the issue of how a vacancy in the city clerk's office should be filled. Straebel recommended using Brown as an acting clerk citing the impracticality of appointing a person to fill the post in a short time frame and the need for the city clerk's responsibilities to be carried out on a regular basis. The council has previously said it is interested in pursuing a measure that would change the clerk's position from an elected to an appointed position. Such a move would require a vote of the people to amend the city charter. Such a vote is not expected until sometime in 2014.

— The council voted to appoint a five-member committee to re-evaluate and make recommendations for the city's recently adopted donation acceptance policy. The committee members appointed are: Kay Heise, Birdie Whitley, Tom Ochs, Dave Robinson, and Robert Kline.

— Among the items waiting for the council at its next meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 15, are a public hearing on an overhaul to the city's zoning ordinance, more discussion on pursuing ballot language for changing the clerk's position from elected to appointed and a presentation from Keep Charlevoix Beautiful on a prototype for hanging petunia baskets along U.S. 31.

Adam Wood named Harbor Springs athletic director

Rayder alumnus, basketball coach to lead Rams athletics

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Wood

HARBOR SPRINGS — The Harbor Springs Public Schools Board of Education unanimously approved the hire of a new athletic director Adam Wood for the upcoming 2013-2014 school year at its regular board meeting Monday.

Wood previously taught in the Charlevoix school district. He worked for the Charlevoix district for three years, where he also coached the varsity boys basketball team.

"He understands the educational climate in which we exist and the importance of athletics to education," said Harbor superintendent Mark Tompkins.

Tompkins also noted the experience Wood had as a coach, with its requirement of communicating with students under pressure.

"I'm pretty much convinced we got the right guy," said Harbor school board president Gary Morse.

Harbor's search for an athletic director began in the spring, after its former athletic director Dave Iafolla resigned. A Harbor Springs committee assembled to hire a new athletic director combed through more than 70 applications for the position, before landing on Wood. Tompkins, said the committee was also unanimous in recommending Wood.

Wood said he is looking forward to the position.

"I'm just really excited. I appreciate Mark and his committee and the process they have gone through to get to this point," said Wood. "They have shown a tremendous commitment to excellence and to me, that's an exciting thing to be a part of."

During his tenure with Charlevoix schools, Wood, 31, ranged from a part-time position to full-time position, and taught first grade, second grade, computers and, most recently, physical education at the high school. He also taught for two years at St. Mary's School in Charlevoix. He was laid off from his position at Charlevoix during a recent round of budget cuts.

In addition to Wood's Charlevoix teaching duties, he coached Wood coached middle school girls basketball and volleyball and worked as a junior varsity football assistant. He was also the freshman boys basketball coach for three years and worked the last three years as Charlevoix's head boys varsity basketball coach.

Wood played under longtime Charlevoix basketball coach Keith Haske, until he graduated from Charlevoix in 2000. He played basketball for a year at Hope College, then transferred to Grand Valley State University. He graduated from Grand Valley in 2006 with a teaching degree in physical education and elementary education. He coached at Kenowa Hills Public Schools in Grand Rapids for a year before moving back to Charlevoix.

Woods says his experience as a coach will inform his duties as an athletic director.

"My background with younger ages gives me a different perspective on how our athletes are coming up through our youth programs," said Wood. "I believe my experiences with being a head coach helps me understand the kinds of things coaches go through."

Those experiences include communicating with parents and players, as well as understanding the time commitment head coaches dedicate to their teams.

Currently, he does not have solid plans to coach at Harbor Springs.

"That will be taken care of at a later date," said Wood. "We are focused right now on the athletic director position and making sure that things are taken care of on this end. What the future brings is yet to be determined, but I look forward to any opportunities, when they arise, on top of everything I can do as athletic director."

Charlevoix All-Stars fall in final

Charlevoix catcher Elise Stuck gets the ball just a second too late to tag out a Boyne City runner who scored on a delayed steal during the teams' district final game.

EAST JORDAN — After defeating West Branch 11-10 in a district semi-final game on July 3, the Charlevoix 11-12 Girls All-Star team fell to Boyne City 16-6 in the district final in East Jordan on Saturday, July 6.

Charlevoix pitcher Baby Hang got the scoring started for her team with a triple that scored a run in the first inning, but Boyne responded with two runs of its own, and led 2-1 after one inning.

After a scoreless second inning for both teams, Charlevoix scored five runs in its half of the third inning, led by Hang, who hit a bases-loaded double to knock in three runs. Hang then scored on a delayed steal and and Charlevoix took a 6-2 lead going in to the bottom of the third.

But the lead didn't last long. Using a combination of hot bats and some Charlevoix mistakes, Boyne regained the lead by the end of the inning.

"This along with the (88-degree) heat, took a little wind out of our sails, and we were unable to rally after the third, and Boyne's pitcher Katie Hoth really settled in and shut us out while Boyne continued to hit the ball really well closing us out in five innings," Charlevoix coach Joe Solomon said.

As part of its 15-year anniversary celebration, the Charlevoix Area Community Pool will host several events Friday and Saturday, Aug. 2-3, featuring four-time Olympic swimmer, gold medalist, and New York Times bestselling author Amanda Beard.

— From 7:30-9 a.m. on Friday, Aug. 2, "Breakfast with Beard" will be offered at Castle Farms south of Charlevoix. During the event Beard will inspire with her story of triumph, trouble, and truth behind the Olympic spotlight, detailed in the New York Times bestseller, "In the Water They Can't See You Cry," Beard's memoir of her life's journey. She has shared her tale on the Today Show, Dr. Phil, Access Hollywood, CNN, USA Today, FOX Sports and more.

The cost of the event is $25 and includes a chance to win a 1-year family pass to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

— From 1-3 p.m. on Friday Aug. 3, Beard will participate in a book signing and photo fun event at the Charlevoix Public Library. For $20 "Picture This" photography will take your picture with Beard and have your copy of her memoir signed.

— From 5:30-11 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 2, "An Aquatic Evening" will take place at Castle Farms. Those attending the event will enjoy cocktails and appetizers while mingling with Beard followed by an elegant dinner and live auction of a wide variety of items. Beard will be featured as keynote speaker. Finally, guests will dance the night away to the to the music of Razor Entertainment's "Soul Street." The cost of the event is $125 per person and includes a chance to win local prizes. Ten $250 tickets will also be available that will allow the holders to dine with Beard.

Venetian Games celebrates 15 years

The successful growth of the Venetian Games becomes more evident each year of the festival. There are now 15 sporting events that take place during the week.

President of the Venetian Board, Dan Barron, estimates that several thousand participants take an active role in the week long "Games".

"The Drenth memorial footrace and the sailing regatta attract the largest number of "players"" with the basketball 3-on-3 and soccer tournaments drawing a close second. We salute the 15th anniversary of the games and our board recognizes its importance to the community and the Venetian Festival."

Commissioner of the Venetian Games, Dean Davenport traced the development and growth of the games.

"When the festival management shifted from the Chamber to the board, it became evident that several sporting events, the footrace, 3-on-3 basketball and a softball tournament needed to continue to be held during the festival. We thought other sports should be added so tennis, swimming, golf, soccer, croquet and volleyball were offered and we recruited individuals to serve as game managers for each event. Suddenly, the Venetian Games were born. Most recently new activities have successfully attracted participants — disc golf, horse shoes, junior sailing regatta, bike, blades, and boards. The Ryan Shay mile, a most recent addition brings world-ranked distance runners to Charlevoix often bringing an international flavor to the event."

Davenport noted that the Games serve several purposes beyond the participants who enjoy the competition. Several events recognize local "stars of the past." The junior golf tournament, the Carey Cup, is named in honor of longtime manager of the city's Charlevoix Golf Club, Keith Carey, who early on recognized the value of allowing youngsters to use the course, Davenport said.

"The Jeff Drenth memorial race recognizes a great Charlevoix runner whose career was cut short with his untimely death. The Ryan Shay Mile recognizes a great champion runner from Northern Michigan whose life was cut short with his death," Davenport said.

He also noted that many of the events help raise money for area school programs.

The soccer tournament provides funds for the Charlevoix High School program, the footrace funds go to the Rayder track and cross country programs. Revenue from the basketball 3-on-3 event aids the local youth basketball program while the community pool benefits from the Venetian Swim Championships.

The spectators viewing the events adds to the total attendance of the festival and highlights the point that the Venetian Festival has something for everyone, Davenport noted.

He added, "The success of our games is directly traced back to the event managers. They are terrific and many have been with us for years. We have had some turnover, but the work of Al Gooch (swimming), the late Dwight Boss (softball), Dave Fowler (croquet) and Carol Madison (soccer) have set a high standard. New faces have emerged as managers but the games have not lost a beat. Congratulations managers and participants for 15 years of providing sport opportunities for many and becoming an integral part of our community's homecoming — the Venetian Festival."

Rayder reunion set for July 28

The fifth annual Charlevoix High School all-class reunion will take place on the lower level of the Weathervane Restaurant from the end of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival street parade until 3 p.m. on Saturday, July 27.

The event is open to all Charlevoix High School alumni and features opportunities to meet, greet, and reconnect with classmates. Yearbooks and memorabilia from different decades will be available to peruse. Snacks, lemonade and iced tea are furnished by the Charlevoix High School Alumni Association and the Venetian Committee. Cocktails will be available for purchas as well.

Organizers said in the past four years, the event has drawn alumni from the classes of 1940-2011. While the event is free, those wishing to join the alumni association or make a donation may do so during the reunion.

Organizers said each year, attendance has doubled as those visiting from out of town realize what an opportunity it is to see their classmates. The Charlevoix High School Alumni band also will be in attendance after their performance in the Venetian Festival street parade.

For questions about this event, please contact Sherrel Bergmann at rayderberg@aol.com.

and receive a signed copy of her memoir.

— From 12:30-4 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 3, Beard will lead a swim clinic at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool. This technique-based clinic will feature time in and out of the water. Once in a lifetime experience offering swimmer's the benefit of Beard's years of world class training and international competition. The cost of the clinic is $40 per person and space is limited to 60 swimmers.

About Beard:

· In 1996 at just 14 years old, Amanda Beard made her Olympic swimming debut, winning one gold and two silver medals. She went on to win another gold medal, two silvers and a bronze at the next two Olympic games. Beard also holds eight national titles and is a former world record holder. Amanda is also a partial owner in Mission Skincare Products, a line designed for people with active lifestyles. The company endorses super stars, such as Dwayne Wade, Serena Williams and many other high-profile athletes. For more information, call (231) 547-0982, email info@charlevoixpool.org, or visit the pool's website at www.charlevoixpool.org.

Pool officials noted Beard's visit is sponsored by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and several private donors, who are also involved with Bay Area Substance Abuse Education Services (BASES) which has made arrangements for several teens to spend some one-on-one time with Beard during her visit.

Pool officials also noted that money raised at this event is a primary source to the Charlevoix Area Community Pool's operating budget.

BE A WISE SHOPPER
It's always wise to remember that if an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is. If you are offered merchandise at an unbelievably low price, check it out thoroughly. A call to the Better Business Bureau (serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula) will tell you whether other consumers have had problems with the firm that has offered the merchandises. (248)223-9400. But call the Bureau BEFORE you make a purchase. You'll be glad you did.

NOTICE OF
Mortgage Foreclosure Sale

THIS FIRM IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION WE OBTAIN WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE. PLEASE CONTACT OUR OFFICE AT THE NUMBER BELOW IF YOU ARE IN ACTIVE MILITARY DUTY.

ATTN PURCHASERS: This sale may be rescinded by the foreclosing mortgagee. In that event, your damages, if any, shall be limited solely to the return of the bid amount tendered at sale, plus interest.

MORTGAGE SALE

Default has been made in the conditions of a mortgage made by Leroy H. Brenner Trustee and to his successors in Interest Trustee under Agreement dated 9-20-94, original mortgagor(s), to Financial Freedom Senior Funding Corporation, a Subsidiary of Indy Mac Bank, F.S.B., Mortgagee, dated May 25, 2006, and recorded on June 26, 2006 in Liber 753 on Page 271, and assigned by mesne assignments to OneWest Bank, FSB as assignee as documented by an assignment, in Charlevoix county records, Michigan, on which mortgage there is claimed to be due at the date hereof the sum of One Hundred Thirty Thousand Four Hundred Eighteen and 65/100 Dollars ($130,418.65).

Under the power of sale contained in said mortgage and the statute in such case made and provided, notice is hereby given that said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the mortgaged premises, or some part of them, at public vendue, at the place of holding the circuit court within Charlevoix County, at 11:00 AM, on August 2, 2013.

Said premises are situated in Township of Hayes, Charlevoix County, Michigan, and are described as: Lot #2 plat of Bay Shore West as recorded in Liber 2, pages 263 through 265, Charlevoix County Records.

The redemption period shall be 6 months from the date of such sale, unless determined abandoned in accordance with MCLA 600.3241a, in which case the redemption period shall be 30 days from the date of such sale.

If the property is sold at foreclosure sale under Chapter 32 of the Revised Judicature Act of 1961, pursuant to MCL 600.3278 the borrower will be held responsible to the person who buys the property at the mortgage foreclosure sale or to the mortgage holder for damaging the property during the redemption period

BEAVER ISLAND — Officials with the Beaver Island Boat Company and the Beaver Island Transportation authority report that the Beaver Island ferry Emerald Isle, which has been disabled by a failed engine since June 20, has been repaired and cleared to return to service.

Barb Schwartzfisher, the authority's executive director, said repairs were completed Wednesday, followed by on-water testing and inspection by U.S. Coast Guard officials.

The vessel made its first regularly scheduled run in more than three weeks when it departed from Charlevoix at 8:30 a.m. Thursday.

"This is great news," Schwartfisher wrote in an update email to the Charlevoix Courier late Wednesday afternoon. "The men and women of the Beaver Island Boat Company deserve great praise and credit in this. This, once again, shows us why we live on Beaver Island. These people are my heroes."

The Emerald Isle has been out of commission since one of its two engines failed shortly after departing the island late in the day on June 20. The ferry was able to return to its dock on the island on its remaining engine, and no injuries were reported in the incident. However, since then the island has been relying on its second-

City looking further at creating a public safety department

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

The city of Charlevoix will hire a consultant to explore the feasibility of making a transition from separate fire/EMS and police departments to a single public safety department.

The cost-benefit analysis will be performed by Lynn Harvey, a longtime Michigan State University professor and Michigan State University Extension employee, and would cost between $2,200 and $3,100, depending on how long it takes to complete.

The likely course of action for the city would be to first create a public safety director position and then gradually combine the two departments after that, explained city manager Rob Straebel at the Charlevoix City Council's regular semi-monthly meeting Monday.

"With the pending retirement of the current fire chief — in the next year or so — it is an opportune time to consider reorganizing the city's public safety departments under one director, and possibly eventually into one department," Straebel wrote in a memo to the council.

The transition would require a change to the city charter and so would have to be voted on by city residents. A vote on changing the city clerk position from elected to appointed is also in the works and voters may be presented with both items on the same ballot.

The city will continue to participate in the regional fire/EMS authority discussions, explained Straebel, but will review the progress that is being made to determine whether it is the best course of action.

The city will also consider cross-training fire, EMS and police officers to become public safety officers, a process that would take several years.

Harvey explained that the issues he will address in the analysis include relationships between city leaders and chain of command for the proposed department, costs, possible savings, benefits to the change and whether hiring a public safety director would be the best first step in creating the department.

The council voted unanimously to hire Harvey to complete the study.

The concept to change the city clerk from an elected official to an appointed staff member moved

Let the fun and games begin!

83rd Venetian Festival kicks off this Saturday

Charlevoix's annual week long community celebration returns July 20-27 with the 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival.

Charlevoix's signature summer festival will again feature games, entertainment, live music, art, carnival rides, food, fireworks and the renowned Venetian Boat Parade on Round Lake and two nights of fireworks.

It's the city's annual homecoming in the midst of summer, when everyone who loves Charlevoix wants to be there, said Dan Barton, long time president of the festival board.

"We've found a very successful formula, so we are continuing with that with little tweaks along the way to improve the festival for everyone," he said.

Among the festival's popular events in the past few years is the Venetian Aquapalooza boating party at Ferry Beach. It's an all day affair to kick off the festival. Although Mother Nature didn't cooperate in its first year in 2009, since then the beach and boat party has grown every year. Barton estimated that about 130 boats participated last year. A change that organizers tried last year, moving the performance stage from the pier to the beach will be retained for this year's Aquapalooza and this year the event will be extended by two hours, now from 12:30-6 p.m. and two bands will be featured instead of just one.

Adding to the fun, the Venetian Games kick off during Aquapalooza, with a beach volleyball and horseshoes tournament taking place at the same time at Ferry Beach.

In fact, this year's Venetian Festival pays special tribute to the Venetian Games, which celebrates its 15 year anniversary. In the same spirit, Dean Davenport, who has served as the commissioner of the games since their inception, has been named as the grand marshal of the street parade.

City dismisses civil suit after late FOIA fees paid

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Officials with the city of Charlevoix have dismissed a civil action in small claims court against city resident Julee Roth after Roth paid all of the outstanding bill for a voluminous Freedom of Information Act request she filed with the city last year.

City officials said they completed the time-consuming request, but Roth never picked up the materials.

On Wednesday, Charlevoix City Manager Rob Straebel said Roth has now paid the outstanding balance of $1,267.05, which includes the $45 it cost the city to file the suit in 90th District Court. Roth also paid a $50 deposit at the request of then-city manger Carol Ochs shortly after she made the FOIA request in December.

"We are pleased this issue has been resolved and that all monies due to the city have been paid in full," Straebel said of the resolution of the matter.

At its meeting on June 3, the city council discussed the outstanding balance and directed Strachel to move forward with small claims court action against Roth after he reported that several attempts to collect the money had been unsuccessful.

Roth was one of the three city residents who sponsored the petitions that ultimately led to a recall election in May seeking to oust three members of the city council from office, Jill Picha, Bryan Vollmer and Dennis Kusina. All three recall efforts, which stemmed from community discord over a proposed outdoor fireplace in East Park, were ultimately successful when current council members Gabe Campbell, Shirley Gibson and Jeff Porter won in their respective races.

Roth's Freedom of Information Act request was for "access to and copies of all documents contained in your file relating to the proposed construction and location of a fireplace in East Park." The request then went on to specify in 13 sub-points all of the types of documents Roth was seeking.

The majority of the bill included 3,365 pages of documents at $0.10 per page and 48.5 hours of staff time at $17.97 per hour.

Then-city clerk Carol Ochs said the request was completed, but Roth had neither picked up the documents, nor paid anything more than a $50 "good faith" deposit the clerk requested before beginning on the document request. Ochs said she requested the deposit after letting Roth know on the day the request was filed that the cost of the request likely would exceed $1,000.

The matter in small claims court had been set for an initial bearing Aug. 2.

Photographer on boat injured during Boyne Thunder

A Florida man was injured while riding on a boat taking photographs of the Boyne Thunder event on Lake Charlevoix near the entrance to Round Lake Saturday, July 14.

According to a release from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's office, the incident happened at about 10:30 a.m. not far from the U.S. Coast Guard Station Charlevoix when Jay Nichols, 61, of Naples, Fla., fell when the boat on which he was riding hit two large waves, causing Nichols to fall and strike his back two times on the floor of the boat. Nichols was taken to Charlevoix Area Hospital by Charlevoix Ambulance where he was treated for back injuries.

Teen injured in Beaver Island crash

BEAVER ISLAND — An 18-year-old woman suffered minor injuries during a single car accident on Beaver Island on Thursday, July 11.

Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider reports that at 1:22 p.m., the sheriff's office on Beaver Island was dispatched to Sloptown Road, East of Donnell Mors Road, in Peaine Township for a personal injury accident.

Authorities said the driver, Jamie Campbell, 18, of Beaver Island, was traveling west on Sloptown Road in a 1989 Ford Festiva when she was unable to stay on the curved road. Campbell's vehicle left the roadway and struck a large tree. Campbell was transported to the Beaver Island Health Center with minor injuries.

Police said Campbell reported that she blacked out prior to the crash.

Alcohol was not a factor and Campbell was not wearing a seatbelt, police said.

Board OKs educational center

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Gendron

At Monday's regular board meeting, the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted unanimously to accept students from Boyne City School's alternative education program into the Charlevoix school district.

The students were specifically part of the Recovery High Program, a program aimed at troubled teenagers, which was previously housed at the Great Lakes Academic Center. The program was a collaboration between Bay Area Substance Education Services, Charlevoix Probate Court and Boyne City Alternative Education. Now, the program will come under the jurisdiction of the Charlevoix school district.

The negotiations for the program to move into the Charlevoix Middle School started in February, said district superintendent Bob Gendron.

"Instead of just jumping out and saying yes, we took two to three months to do some research," said Gendron. "We had a meeting where we talked with stake holders, including the (Bay Area Substance Education Services) program, the local police department, the sheriff's department and the hospital ... I think it would be a positive for the school."

The program will now be called the Round Lake Educational Center, and, according to Gendron's estimates, would bring a total revenue of $135,510 while costing $132,200.

"At the end of the day, I think it's the beginning of us getting into alternative education," said

Antrim/State intersection work coming

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

A change in state road funding policy is prompting a project to re-align one of the city's busiest local street intersections sooner than expected.

At Monday's regular semimonthly Charlevoix City Council meeting the council gave staff the green light to move forward in the design phase for a project that will reconfigure the intersection of State and Antrim streets.

Work to resurface a large stretch of State Street was originally planned to take place in 2015 or 2016. However, earlier this year the Michigan Department of Transportation made an administrative policy change under which it will no longer allow local municipalities to rollover or bank annual allotments of road funding money for multiple years (and thus do larger projects), but instead now requires local units of government to spend the money each year. (Municipalities must match the state funding for the projects.)

The change, city manager Rob Straebel explained, meant the city had to hustle to find a project on which to spend its roughly $94,000 allotment. (The money can be spent only on roads that have been designated as "rural major collector roads" by the state. These include portions of Carpenter Avenue, State Street and Clinton Streets.)

City officials decided to focus on the State/Antrim street intersection, largely because of the alignment issue that exists involving State Street.

Straebel said, likely because of an issue with "some very old survey work," State Street shifts about 24 feet to the west as one travels from south to north through the intersection.

In a letter to Straebel, Jim Malewitz with Performance Engineering explained that the conceptual plan created so far would take into account State Street's important use as a bypass around U.S. 31 and the section would include 12-foot wide driving lanes and 8-foot wide parking lanes.

The conceptual drawing Malewitz presented Monday calls for about 5 feet of the needed shift to take place on the north side of the intersection with the remaining 19 feet shifting on the south side of the intersection.

Straebel said the work would all be done within the city's right-of-way and that city officials and engineers working with the city will be meeting with officials from the county and affected nearby businesses in the coming weeks to get their input on the project.

The primary goal of the project, Straebel said, is to make the intersection safer with shorter crosswalk distances, more defined driving lanes and more greenspace.

Straebel did not have a cost estimate for the project, but said it is likely it will easily exceed the needed $94,000 match. Although the state funds must be "encumbered" for the project by mid-August, the project will likely not take place until next year, which means the city's cost of the project will be figured into next year's budget.

Horse Liniment Erases Pain

HIALEAH, FL — An ingredient often used to treat inflammation in racehorse's legs, is now back on the market in its original doctor recommended clinical strength formula.

According to a national drug store survey, the formula at one time became so popular that it rose to the top of pharmacy sales for topical pain relievers. But the company marketing the product at the time changed the formula and sales plummeted. One of the inventors of the original formula has brought it back to the market under the trade name ARTH ARREST and says it can relieve pain for millions.

ARTH ARREST works by a dual mechanism where one ingredient relieves pain immediately, while a second ingredient seeks out and destroys the pain messenger signal before it can be sent to the brain. Considered a medical miracle by some, the ARTH ARREST formula is useful in the treatment of painful disorders ranging from minor aches and pains to more serious conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis, & more.

ARTH ARREST is available in a convenient roll-on applicator at pharmacies without a prescription or call 1-800-339-3301. Now at:

Crews work on repairing the brickwork high atop the Masonic Building in downtown Charlevoix Wednesday.

Masonic building repairs should be completed Monday

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Mother Nature apparently didn't read the schedule.

Crews working to repair the brickwork at the top of the Masonic Building in downtown Charlevoix are expecting to not quite make their goal of having the work completed before the start of the 83rd annual Venetian Festival on Saturday.

In an email updating city officials and others on Wednesday, John Campbell with Site Planning Development of Charlevoix, the company that is overseeing the project, wrote that this week's heat, the threat of rain on Thursday and Friday and a change in the brick and mortar quality on the building will likely push the completion of the project back to Monday, July 22.

Campbell wrote that crews are tentatively planning to begin disassembling the scaffolding on the Mason Street side of the building on Friday, July 19 and have the work completed by the end of day Monday.

The sidewalk on the north side of the Masonic Building (along Mason Street) has been cordoned off since around 6:30 a.m. on June 20 when several bricks from the top of the northeast corner of the building (at the intersection of Mason and Bridge streets fell to the sidewalk just outside the main entrance to the Subway restaurant on the building's first floor. No one was injured in the incident.

Days later engineers examined the 100-year-old building and determined its primary structure is sound, but mortar in some of the bricks in the corbels (areas near the top of the wall that jut out slightly from the rest of the wall) had weakened over time.

Cool musings: The natural world is ever-changing

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

At least partly as an antidote to a warmer than usual July, I have been reading about the times when most or even all of what is now Michigan was covered by a glacier that in places was thousands of feet thick. For the time from about 18,000 years ago to about 7,000 years back, the climate was cooler than now and a giant sheet of ice covered almost all of Canada and much of what is now the northern tier of states in the U.S.

If and when time travel into the past becomes possible, I would want to visit the Charlevoix area about 11,000 years ago, when the gradually melting sheet of ice had retreated to just north of here. And that wall of ice moved north and south over the course of a few years or decades, carving out most of our lakes ponds and hills.

It would have been an exciting time. And it is just possible that there were a few people here to watch it happen, although there is little actual evidence of their presence. A number of very large animals we no longer see would have been here; elephant-like mammoths, musk ox, lions, camels, giant bears and sabertoothed predators, that have left their bones as evidence.

Imagine a two thousand-foot high wall of ice about forty miles north of here, and beyond that to the northwest, a lake, north of what is now Superior, but four times as large. There would have been icebergs floating on that lake. You could have caught Northern Pike or Whitefish in that lake, and every summer there were mayflies, just like now.

If we could visit that time we would find ourselves surrounded by tundra, like that of present day northern Canada, with maybe small groves of Spruce trees here and there. A cool time to be alive, in more ways than one.

The lesson of such a trip into history is larger than just ice and cooler temperatures. The lesson is that the natural world around us changes continuously, often slowly enough for us to be unaware of it. There is no such thing as a time when all was well and the biological world was in balance. It has probably never been in balance, but always changing, even before we humans began meddling with it.

Dr. Elaine Pielou of Dalhousie University in Canada, who has examined that glacial world more carefully than almost anyone, says it better than I could. The idea that the biological world has never been in some perfect state, she says, "Should lead, in time; to a much needed change in popular thought. The notion, espoused by so many nonprofessional ecologists that the living world is 'marvelously' and' delicately' attuned to its environment is not so much a scientifically reasonable theory as a mystically satisfying dogma. Its abandonment might lead to a useful fresh start in environmental politics."

Living on land that has been repeatedly invaded by plants and animals that must be called alien, might make us rethink our concern with more recent invaders.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

Beating the heat

Guerriero stepped out with her daughters to cool off in the water before work Tuesday. She and her husband, Adam, run The Landings in Ironton. "I wanted to have some fun with them before work." The restaurant has been very busy so far this summer, she explained, and the hot weather has helped bring customers out onto Lake Charlevoix and into the restaurant.

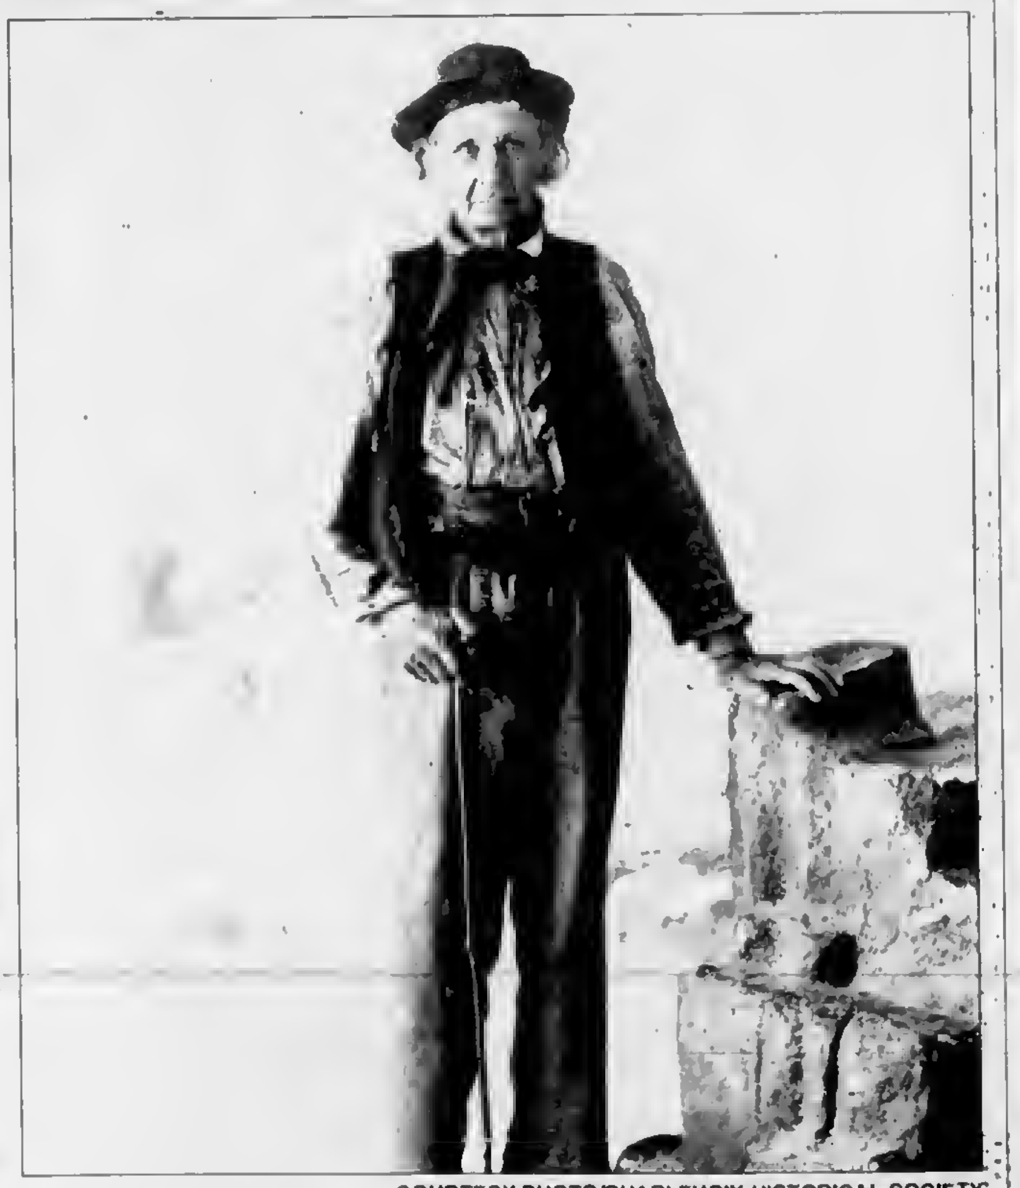
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…



COURTESY PHOTO/CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Chief A-mi-ca-sau-be (which means "submerging beaver" in the Ojihwe/Odawa language) migrated from the Kalamazoo Valley in Michigan in 1855 because of the pressure of white settlement in southern Michigan and northern Illinois and Indiana. The Indians' hunting game was being forced northward because of it. Louis McSauba, as he became known, claimed a large slice of land eastward from Lake Michigan, north of what is now Division Street, out to the country club area along U. S. 31 north. Near the big lake he cleared a grove at the sheltered landward base of the largest sand dune for ceremonial corn and rain dances. Close by this sacred ground he built his log home in a shallow ravine. Rosa Nettleton, wife of pioneer settler David Nettleton, described Chief McSauba as "a tall, fine-looking man, though much wrinkled at the time." He passed away in 1897. The area near his home henceforward received the honor of his name as Mount McSauba where winter carnival sports events (ski jumping, toboggan racing, and ice hockey) took place in the 1920s and 30s. Beginning in 1956, the northwest slope was developed into a ski hill, and over the years this area has blossomed into Charlevoix's winter sports complex. Dan McSauba, Chief McSauba's grandson, was a Charlevoix mail delivery man for 30 years, thought to be the only Indian chief ever to carry the mail for Uncle Sam

Hybl named Zonta scholarship winner

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix Area Zonta Club has named recent Charlevoix High School graduate Katherine Hybl, as the winner of this year's Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship.

The Mary Feindt Memorial Scholarship is awarded to a female high school senior who plans to pursue a math or science-related major in college. The scholarship recipient is chosen based on financial need and her involvement and interest in the math and/or science fields, excluding the medical field.

Zonta officials said Hybl was chosen as the winner "because she best exemplified the spirit of and requisites for the scholarship."

She will be attending Alma College in the fall to pursue a science related field. She has taken many science and math courses, including honors physics, calculus and two years of health occupations, while maintaining a 3.959 grade point average.

She also has been involved with National Honor Society, softball, basketball, and working at the Charlevoix Veterinary Hospital.

Zonta is a worldwide service organization of executives in business and the professions working together to advance the status of women. The Mary Feindt Award is one of the many programs for young women sponsored by Charlevoix Area Zonta. Applications for next year's award will be available from Charlevoix Area Zonta in early spring, 2014.

Bay Winds adds three new staff members

Officials with Charlevoix-based Bay Winds Federal Credit Union recently announced the addition of three new staff members to their rank prompted by "enhanced business and home buying products."

The new staff members include, business development director Tim Timmer, mortgage loan originator Sandy Chambers and marketing director Keith Carey.

Timmer

Tim Timmer was appointed on the heels of the release of the credit union's new comprehensive line of business products. The services include commercial loans (operating, equipment, real estate and construction) and specialized business checking and share accounts with 24/7 online access, online Business Bill Pay, and merchant credit card processing. Timmer has more than 25 years of financial experience, including branch management, investments and consumer and commercial lending.

"Thanks to his wealth of business lending experience, Tim has developed a keen understanding of the unique needs of northern Michigan business owners," credit union president and CEO David Leusink said. "He is already connecting Bay Winds members with the financial resources they need to be successful."

Timmer is a Hope College graduate and earned a master's degree in business administration from Western Michigan University. He may be reached by calling (231) 547-3933 or by emailing ttimmer@baywindsfcu.com

Chambers

Sandy Chambers was recently named to the new position of mortgage loan originator. Chambers assists credit union members in buying homes through Bay Winds' many mortgage options including conventional mortgages for new home and land purchases, refinances, new construction, and reverse mortgages.

"Buying a home is the single largest purchase most Americans will ever make," Leusink said. "Prospective home buyers will find that Sandy's more than 17 years of mortgage loan origination and personal financial advisory experience will help identify the right approach for them and their families."

A graduate of Western Michigan University, Chambers earned a bachelor's degree in business administration with a major in finance. She can be reached by calling (23) 547-3934 or by emailing schambers@baywindsfcu.com.

Carey

Keith Carey has been appointed to the position of marketing director. Carey will oversee all marketing and community and media outreach efforts on behalf of the credit union. Carey's professional background includes service as a legislative director in the Michigan House of Representatives and as a lobbyist for a Lansing-based small-business advocacy association. Born and raised in Charlevoix, Carey served most recently as executive director of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority.

"Bay Winds Federal Credit Union has been helping its members achieve their financial goals for more than 50 years," Leusink said. "We're confident Keith's roots in this area and diverse experience will allow us to effectively connect our members and prospective members with the right products and services."

Carey is a graduate of Alma College. He can be reached by calling (231) 547-3920 or by emailing kcarey@baywindsfcu.com.

Kayak for a Cause funds Daggett scholarships

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

FILE PHOTO

Kayak for a Cause, in its fifth year, is scheduled for this Saturday and Sunday, July 19-20, and will raise funds for youth scholarships to Camp Daggett.

WALLOON LAKE — More than 30 kayaks will congregate on Walloon Lake 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, July 20-21, to paddle around the lake and raise funds for Camp Daggett.

The money raised will go toward scholarships which allow youth to participate in adventure education activities at the camp on Walloon Lake in Petoskey.

The event, dubbed Kayak for a Cause, is in its fifth year and organizer Karen Marietti hopes to raise a record-breaking $20,000 this year. That goal became possible after Marietti learned that the Bay City-based Doll-Loesel Foundation decided to pledge a dollar-for-dollar match of all money raised up to $20,000.

Kayakers can register up until the day of the event. Those who choose to paddle one day— 15 miles— raise $150 each and those paddling two days raise $300, usually by asking friends, family and local businesses for pledges. Once those pledges are raised, participants are registered for the kayak trip, lunch and dinner, a T-shirt and a post-paddle party.

The event is open only to adults.

Yellow and purple dock flags are also available for $50 for those who would like to support the cause from shore.

Marietti says she is pleased with how quickly the event has grown in five short years.

"It's amazing how many people return" each year, she said. "You can talk to everyone while kayaking, so everyone gets to know each other. For me it's about the people and the people we meet on the lake."

She laughingly recalled how in previous years children would cheer them on from docks as they jumped into the water and others brought the kayakers chocolate or cookies as they passed.

"The people around the lake are awesome," she said.

For more information, to purchase a dock flag, or to register to kayak, call Marietti at (231) 347-9742, ext. 117 or visit www.campdaggett.org.

The Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix is handling the arrangements.

History society event will 'Dig into the Todd Family History'

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's July 2013 History Speaker Series program will be "Dig into the Todd Family History"at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 22, at the Raven Hill Discovery Center's Warren Loranger Great Room. The center is located at 4737 Fuller Road, between East Jordan and Boyne City, just off C-48 at Pearsall Road. The guest speaker will be Professor Kerri Finlayson.

Those attending will learn about the Todd Family history including a visit to their pioneer home site located in Wilson Township on the grounds of Raven Hill Discovery Center. Professor of archeology and sociology at North Central Michigan College, Finlayson has been conducting research at this 1860's homestead for 13 years. Through plat maps and historical documents and studying physical remains (pottery, tools, clothing, toys), those attending will see how the Todd family changed through time as well as examine the archaeological evidence found during numerous digs with students and teachers since 2000. Artifacts found by middle school students throughout the years will be on display.

Those attending should be ready "to get down and dirty, because to find out about an old home site, you have to 'dig it,'" event organizers wrote in a news release.

The annual society membership meeting will follow this program. Light refreshments will be served and the program is free and open to the public. For more information, call (231) 582-5326.

Garden of the Week

This week's winner of the Charlevoix Garden Club's "Garden of the Week" award is Andre Aerne. His garden, at the corner of Park Avenue and Grant Street overlooking Michigan Beach has been keeping Charlevoix "beautiful" for many, many years, the garden club noted. The club will be selecting gardens from around the community to highlight throughout the summer through its new Garden of the Week program.

History society event will 'Dig into the Todd Family History'

The Charlevoix County History Preservation Society's July 2013 History Speaker Series program will be "Dig into the Todd Family History"at 7 p.m. on Monday, July 22, at the Raven Hill Discovery Center's Warren Loranger Great Room. The center is located at 4737 Fuller Road, between East Jordan and Boyne City, just off C-48 at Pearsall Road. The guest speaker will be Professor Kerri Finlayson.

Those attending will learn about the Todd Family history including a visit to their pioneer home site located in Wilson Township on the grounds of Raven Hill Discovery Center. Professor of archeology and sociology at North Central Michigan College, Finlayson has been conducting research at this 1860's homestead for 13 years. Through plat maps and historical documents and studying physical remains (pottery, tools, clothing, toys), those attending will see how the Todd family changed through time as well as examine the archaeological evidence found during numerous digs with students and teachers since 2000. Artifacts found by middle school students throughout the years will be on display.

Those attending should be ready "to get down and dirty, because to find out about an old home site, you have to 'dig it,'" event organizers wrote in a news release.

The annual society membership meeting will follow this program. Light refreshments will be served and the program is free and open to the public. For more information, call (231) 582-5326.

Garden of the Week

This week's winner of the Charlevoix Garden Club's "Garden of the Week" award is Andre Aerne. His garden, at the corner of Park Avenue and Grant Street overlooking Michigan Beach has been keeping Charlevoix "beautiful" for many, many years, the garden club noted. The club will be selecting gardens from around the community to highlight throughout the summer through its new Garden of the Week program.

Lions Club installs new board members

On July 1, the Charlevoix Lions Club installed its new board for the upcoming year at its weekly noon time Monday meeting at the Weathervane Restaurant.

King Lion Trent Kutsch took over from former King Lion Jack Weber. Lion Bill Fleck is now the first vice president, Lion Hugh Hansen second vice president, Lion Larry Sullivan third vice president, Lion Eric Eide club secretary, Lion Don Hengesh membership director and Lion Walt Hufford treasurer.

The Lions Club started in 1917, by Melvin Jones a Chicago business man who took his business practices and expanded that concept of providing quality services to include all of their community.

The Lions Club is the world's largest volunteer organization. While focusing on vision related needs starting with Helen Keller in 1925, the Lions Club is involved in all manners of civic action. Charlevoix Lions Club has 52 years of local service.

Local recipients of the Charlevoix Lions Club work include vision and hearing related assistance, youth programs and scholarships, as well as funding for numerous local causes.

Each meeting features a keynote speaker versed in a variety of interesting topics. The Charlevoix Lions Club invites the public to attend one of our luncheons and consider becoming a Lion.

Watershed council to host benefit sale

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council will host its fifth annual "Whale of a Sale" from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, July 20, with proceeds benefiting the Watershed Council's programming.

Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council is a nonprofit organization that works to maintain the environmental integrity and economic and aesthetic values of lakes, streams, wetlands and groundwater in Northern Michigan, as well as statewide and throughout the Great Lakes Basin. As the lead organization for water resource protection in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan and Emmet counties, the council works to preserve the heritage of Northern Michigan.

"This one day event was created to give water recreation enthusiasts a place to donate their unused items and an opportunity to purchase water related items, such as boats, life jackets, anchors, fishing gear, water toys and more at reasonable prices, all while helping raise funds to protect what they love most — our local waters," said Kristy Beyer, communications specialist for Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council.

A live auction for donated boats will begin promptly at noon. "So far we have 15 water craft to auction off, including a nice sunfish, kayaks, and more."

The sale will take place rain or shine at the Irish Boat Shop storage building, located behind Meyer Ace Hardware in Fairview Square on State Road, Harbor Springs. No early sales. For more information, call (231) 347-1181 or visit www.watershedcouncil.org/events.

Looking for a new vacation adventure?
Hop over to Beaver Island for the day and unwind, explore the island and enjoy some classical music at the Baroque on Beaver Classical Music Festival. In 2013 Baroque on Beaver celebrates 12 consecutive years of bringing classical music to Beaver Island. Last year 1,200 people attended Baroque programs and now festival organizers have made it even easier for mainlanders to attend.

For 2013 you may choose from the following Day Tripper Festival Package options:
Option #1:
Day Tripper FERRY/Festival Package: August 1 or August 4 ONLY

Price Per Person: $130* (excluding tax)
This package allows you to experience the beauty of Beaver Island and the magic of Baroque on Beaver at a leisurely pace and affordable rate. The ferry operator is the Beaver Island Boat Company
Option #2:
Day Tripper FLY/Festival Package: August 1 or August 4 ONLY
Price Per Person: $180* (excluding tax)

COURTESY PHOTO

Charlevoix artisist Cal Kemppainen, (right) the featured artist for the 2013 Charlevoix Venetian Festival recently presented the original artwork for this year to festival board member, Anne Golski. The painting will not only appear on all of this year's festival merchandise, but the original painting will be auctioned in East Park on Friday, July 26, immediately following the Venetian Queen crowning ceremony. Money raised from the auction are used to help pay for the festival. To place a silent bid or to request a designated bidder contact Golski at (231) 675-2164. Anyone who wishes to bid in person, should bid in East Park at the Odmark Pavillion by 7:30 p.m. on July 26. Framing for the painting was donated by Marell Staffel at Picture This.

Davenport, who came up with the idea for the games in the same year the current Venetian Festival organization took over responsibility for running the festival, started with just three events: a sailboat regatta, a 3-on-3 basketball tournament and a softball tournament. The games have now evolved to 15 events that draw thousands of participants. This year a new event will be added in the form of a disc golf tournament on the newly completed disc golf course at Mount McSauba.

Here are just some of the week's highlights:

The weekend-to-weekend festival continues on Sunday with 3-on-3 basketball games at Lake Michigan Beach and Venetian Jam at the community skate park and "Worship on the Water," now in its second year, in East Park. The games continue throughout the week, culminating with the Drenth Memorial Footrace and the Shay Mile on Saturday, July 27.

Monday evening brings the Venetian Vision movie in the pavilion in East Park while the Battle of the Bands event takes place at Michigan Beach. New this year, a concert will follow the Battle of the Bands by popular local rock band Audio Circus. And the entertainment keeps ramping up from there. Tuesday night features a concert by Charlevoix City Band in the pavilion and local group Jill Jack in the Tiki Tent.

Barron noted that another tweak taking place this year is that there will be no overlap of performances in the pavilion on one end of East Park and those in the Tiki Tent on the other end of the park. He said when a performance is taking place in one venue, it will be simulcast in the other, thus avoiding overlap of sounds from simultaneous performances.

Baron pointed to some of the highlights of the week's entertainment as the Motor City Women and Detroit Express followed by Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels on Wednesday, contemporary country acts the Kari Lynch Band followed by the Farm on Thursday and Paul Revere and the Raiders on Friday, just to name a few.

Baron said Arnold Amusements are officially slated to start offering rides on Mason Street and the parking lot between Mason and Clinton streets on Wednesday, but if weather and schedules cooperate, the rides could open early on Tuesday.

Thursday, as usual, will be Kids' Day at Lake Michigan Beach.

"We have dozens of games and events for kids to do that day," Barron said.

Festivities continue throughout Friday and are capped off with the coronation of the next Charlevuix Venetian Queen and the Night Sky Fireworks (high altitude).

The Venetian Street Parade will follow the Drenth Memorial Footrace and Shay Mile on the morning of Saturday, July 27, followed a day full of live music in Bridge Park and East Park.

Finally the week caps off with the famous Venetian Lighted Boat Parade at dusk on Round Lake, followed by the Harbor (low altitude, high intensity) Fireworks display on Round Lake.

Barron said festival organizers have also been working hard to improve the quality and selection of food available from vendors downtown during the week-long festival.

And speaking of work, Barron reminds area residents that it's a lot of hard work and contributions that make the festival successful each year. He said it takes about $250,000 to stage the festival annually. He noted that the festival does generate some income from its share of concession and carnival ride ticket sales, but the bulk of the festival is paid for through donations. He also noted that the festival board is eagerly looking for some "new blood" in the ranks of the many volunteers who help orgaoize and run the festival each year.

forward at the city council meeting, with all members agreeing to allow city staff to work on coming up with ballot language for the change.

"An appointed person would report directly to the city manager," explained Straebel. "With an elected official, they report to the voters of the community."

The matter would likely be on the ballot in 2014.

The change in the city clerk's position came to the forefront recently after former city clerk Carol Ochs resigned at the end of June — six months before the end of her term any ferry, the Beaver Islander (which has a smaller passenger, cargo and vehicle-carrying capacity), with help from Keweenaw Excursions' Keweenaw Star and St. James Marine barges to handle the island's marine passenger and freight transportation needs

The Emerald Isle's damaged engine had to be removed, shipped by barge to the mainland and trucked to a repair facility in Kalkaska. In the meantime the vessel's other engine was check for problems. The repaired engine was shipped back to the island on Friday, July 12, where it was re-installed, and re-aligned with the other engine before Wednesday's tests and inspection.

In an update posted on the company's website on Wednesday, Beaver Island Boat Company officials wrote: "We will also begin contacting all those who were put on a list for reservations starting July 18 in the order of the received call. If you call for a reservation you may still be put on a list until we get through all those who have contacted us prior. We appreciate your patience and consideration as we work our way back to our normal operations."

Also, in an update posted to the website on Sunday, July 13, boat company president Margo Marks wrote:

"I want to express my sincere appreciation for everyone's cooperation during this difficult time. Beaver Island Boat Company employees have all done an amazing job of giving their best under these challenging circumstances. Additionally, our customers have certainly worked together with us and have remained patient and flexible during the many trip/scheduling changes.

Thank you to all the Beaver Island residents, island businesses, visitors and to our many dedicated employees. Beaver Island has surely proved to be a wonderful supportive community."

COUNCIL

overhaul of the city's zoning ordinance. Although the council conducted a public hearing Monday, as had originally been scheduled, it rescheduled another date, this one at 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 5 because the advertisement for the July 15 public hearing contained a typo in the date, listing it as Monday, July 13. City official recommended to the council that it schedule another hearing date with the correct date in the advertisement, to avoid any possible legal snags down the road.

— The council gave its approval for the Venetian Festival Inc.'s permit for its two fireworks displays on Friday, July 26, and Saturday, July 27.

The displays will again be done by Colonial Fireworks Company. The permit calls for around 1,400 shells and other pyrotechnic devices to be used over the two nights.

— The council gave its approval to a request from city resident John Winn to purchase eight benches to be placed in East Park through the downtown development authority bench donation program. Winn and some friends wish to donate the benches, which will be placed along the promenade at the marina and will match existing benches in the area, in honor of Winn's son Taylor, who died earlier this year. The wording for the plaques on the benches proposed by Winn include inspirational or whimsical quotes from characters such as The Cookie Monster, Charlie Brown, Winnie the Pooh, and author Dr. Seuss.

Gendron.

"It looks like a great opportunity in the community," said board trustee Glen Catt.

The students from the program will be under supervision at all times, with probation officers present at the school. They will enter and exit through one entrance and have limited access in the building, even going to the bathroom in groups, said Gendron.

Also at the meeting, the board approved the contracts of three of its four administrators, excluding former middle school principal Travis Garrett, whose contract will be adjusted and approved at the board's regular meeting in August. Garrett is now the student success coordinator.

Seventy five percent of Garrett's contract comes from at-risk funding, which do not come out of the school's general funding. His contract has not changed since he was middle school principal, necessitating an adjustment of that document.

The board unanimously approved to extend the contracts of high school principal Suzanne Klinger, elementary principal Doug Drenth and technology director Scott Mays. The board also unanimously approved the non-bargaining contracts of bus driver and mechanic Kenneth Rogers, transportation supervisor Gordon Russell and food service manager Michael Washburn.

Finally, the board approved several teacher recalls. Paying for the salaries of those teachers had been factored into the 2013-2014 operating budget, which it approved at its June 24 meeting. The recalls include full-time high school math and science teacher Kristine Burmeister, full-time band director Duane Wilson, full-time high school social studies teacher Bryan Hawkins, 5/6 time computer teacher Josh Block, 4/6 construction tech teacher Norm Carlson, 4/6 high school Spanish teacher Jennifer Glass and half-time first grade teacher Kelly Eisley-Wood.

The board will meet next for a work session at 6 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 5, at its administrative building, 104 E. St. Mary's Drive. Its regularly scheduled meeting was moved to 6 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 26, at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Shay Mile to feature world-class runners

The sixth annual Ryan Shay Mile will take place in Charlevoix on the final day of this year's Venetian Festival, Saturday, July 27.

Slated to start at 10:30 a.m., just prior to the Venetian Street Parade at 11 a.m., the race is an invitation-only road mile with separate races for men and women. It features $4,000 in prizes: $1,000 for first place, $500 for second, and $250 for third. (There is an additional $250 incentive award of $250 per race to any athlete who is a "clear leader" at the half mile mark.

The title sponsor of the Shay Mile is Bergmann Marine.

This event provides elite middle-distance and distance runners with a competitive opportunity on the spectator lined streets of downtown Charlevoix.

Event coordinator Matt Peterson said once again, the spectators in Charlevoix should be treated to terrific race to the finish line for the Shay Mile with a deep men's field and a strong women's field.

Both winners from 2012, Daniel Clark and Heather Kampf, will be returning to defend their titles. With the current fields assembled both course records, men's 3:55 (Jeff See, 2010) and women's 4:31 (Heather Kampf, 2012), could be broken, Peterson added.

It will not be easy for Clark as he will be pushed by a field that has at least 10 sub-four-minute milers (or the 1500 meter equivalent). Leading this pack should be Liam Bolyan-Pett and Matthew Elliott. Boylan-Pett is a two time runner-up in the Shay mile and has recorded a time of 3:37 for 1500 meters in Europe this summer. The 2011 runner-up, Elliott, is no stranger to the Shay mile but he provided track and field fans with a surprising finish at this year's U.S. Championships in the 1500 meters placing fourth and earning the right to chase the qualifying times for this year's Track and Field World Championships, and he has hit a time of 3:37 for the 1500 meters in Europe this summer. But, getting on the podium will not be easy as five others boast personal bests of 3:40 or faster for 1500 meters: Brian Gagnon, Tony Jordanek, Kyle Boorsma, Macklin Chaffee, and Daniel Stockberger.

And it won't be any easier for the course record holder Kampf. Geena Gall, a 2012 London Olympian in the 800 meters, is returning to the Shay Mile after a runner-up finish in 2009. Kampf and Gall were both in the final of this year's U.S. Championship 800 meters, and have set personal bests for the 1500 meters of 4.08 and 4.09 respectively this summer. Last year's runner-up, Ashley Miller, and Lauren Johnson with a mile best of 4:33, should provide plenty of competition, along with Chemtai Rionotukei this year's winner of the Grand Rapid's 25K Fifth Third River Bank Run.

Peterson noted that the race has had several world class athletes participate since its inception in 2008. Past participants De'sean Turner (steeplechase), Ashley Higginson (steeplechase), Dot McMahan (marathon) and Jeanette Faber (marathon) will represent the U.S. in the World Championships in Moscow this year. Desiree Davila (U.S., marathon), Geena Gall (U.S., 800 meters), and Nicole Sifuentes (Canada, 1500 meters) all represented their countries in the 2012 London Olympic Games. Davila and Gall represented the United States in the 2009 World Track and Field Championships in Berlin, Germany. Delilah DiCrescenzo, 2009 participant, qualified to represent the United States in the steeplechase at the 2011 World Track and Field Championships but could not run due to injury. Peter van der Westhuizen has represented his native South Africa in two world championship meets. The inaugural winner for the men, Grant Robison, ran in the 1500 meters at the 2004 Olympics for the United States.

The Ryan Shay Mile started in the summer of 2008 to honor the memory of Ryan Shay. Ryan passed away on Nov 3 2007, while competing in the 2008 USA Olympic Marathon Trials in New York City. Shay was from Central Lake. A talented runner who won championships in high school, in college while at Notre Dame, and in the professional ranks. Ryan was and is a role model for many young people in Northern Michigan and around the country, Peterson noted.

Drenth Memorial Footrace

For non-world-class athletes who'd like to get in on the running action, earlier in the day the Venetian Festival will host the Drenth Memorial Footrace that also takes place in downtown Charlevoix. The event features is a 5K and a 10K race that both start at 9 a.m., followed by the Family Mile at 10 a.m. Registration for all three races is from 4-7 p.m. on Friday, July 26, at the Lake Michigan Beach pavilion, or from 6:30-8:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 27, at the same location. More information about these races and online registration can be found at www.venetianraces.com.

*Card is redeemable for one buy-one-get-one-free offer at each course. Card holder gets one free greens fee with the purchase of a greens fee at regular price. A few minimal restrictions may apply.

Mackinac Island's Wawashkamo Golf Club is just one of our Golf Club Card partners:

In 1898 Chicago cottagers founded the Wawashkamo Golf Club. By 1900 the club had been incorporated and the clubhouse built on the site of the 1814 Battle of Mackinac Island. "Wawashkamo" is Indian for "Crooked Trail". Golf course architect Alex B. Smith left the natural features of the site unaltered in his design for these true nine-hole Scottish links. Wawashkamo Golf Club is Michigan's oldest unchanged private, nine-hole golf links.

2095 PUBLIC NOTICES

CITY OF CHARLEVOIX

CHARLEVOIX CITY COUNCIL

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Monday, August 5, 2013, 7:00 p.m.
Council Chambers, City Hall, 210 State Street, Charlevoix, Mi
ADOPTION OF A NEW ZONING ORDINANCE AND ZONING MAP

Public notice is hereby given that the City of Charlevoix City Council will hold a public hearing on Monday, August 5, 2013 at 7:00 p.m. at Charlevoix City Hall to consider and hear public comments regarding the adoption of a new zoning ordinance and zoning map, in accordance with the Michigan Zoning Enabling Act, Public Act 110 of 2006 (the "Zoning Act") This ordinance completely replaces the zoning ordinance adopted March 6, 1978 In addition, the official Zoning Map for the City of Charlevoix is also amended to reflect new zoning district names. Numerous properties are proposed to be rezoned based on current or future land use market changes, or other factors.

This hearing is intended to provide an opportunity for City residents and interested citizens to express their opinions, ask questions, and discuss all aspects of the map and text amendments. Those unable to attend the public hearing are invited to submit written comments to the attention of the Mayor at the address cited above.

The new zoning ordinance, which consists of 19 articles, is summarized below:

Article 1, Purpose and Title provides the official title of the ordinance, sets forth its overall purpose and intent, and provides requirements for interpretation, conflicts with other laws, and vested rights.

Article 2, Definitions, defines the particular terms used in the ordinance.

Article 3, Mapped Districts, lists the zoning districts within the City and provides rules for interpreting the City Zoning Map.

Article 4, Residential Districts, establishes the R1 Single Family Residential District, the R2 Single Family Residential District, the R2A Two Family Residential District, the R4 Planned Residential District, and the PC Residential Private Clubs District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific requirements related to multiple family housing are specified

Article 5, Nonresidential Districts, establishes the CM Commercial Mixed Use District, the C1 General Commercial District, the CBD Central Business District, the CH Commercial Hospitality District, the MC Marine Commercial District, the SR Scenic Reserve District, the PF Public Facilities District, the PO Professional Office District, and the I Industrial District. The permitted uses by right and special land uses allowed in each district are listed, as are the development requirements in each district (minimum lot area and lot width, maximum building height, front/rear/side yard setbacks, maximum lot coverage, and minimum residential floor area). In addition, specific district requirements are listed.

Article 6, Overlay Districts, establishes four overlay districts based on unique land use requirements or conditions. This chapter includes allowed uses and requirements for development within each of these Districts that differ from those of the underlying zoning district.

Article 7, Use Requirements, contains requirements pertaining to specific uses in addition to the development requirements listed for each zoning district. This includes specific requirements for (partial list): accessory buildings and uses, bed and breakfasts, home occupations, uses accessory to hotel/motel, single and two family dwellings, site condominiums, sexually oriented businesses, drive-through restaurants, solar panels, medical use of marijuana, vehicle repair (minor and major), vehicle wash establishments, and wireless telecommunications facilities

Article 8, General Provisions, outlines provisions that apply generally to all zoning districts. These include (partial list): determining the number of principal uses per lot; determination of uses similar to those listed as permitted or special land uses; fences and walls; allowed projections into required setbacks; maximum lot width to depth ratio; exceptions to height requirements; building grades and lot drainage; corner clearance and visibility, private roads and shared driveways; excavations; essential services; outdoor swimming pool requirements; and temporary uses

Article 9, Site Development Requirements, provides the requirements for landscaping and buffers, general building appearance and exterior lighting of uses.

Article 10, Off-street Parking, Loading, Access and Circulation, establishes minimum requirements for off street parking for all uses, including size of spaces, parking setbacks, and provisions for deferring, sharing and modifying the required parking Minimum design standards are also established

Article 11, Signs, specifies the type of signs permitted by district and the maximum size and height allowed Other provisions relate to sign permits, lighting of signs and location.

Article 12, Site Plan Review lists the requirements for site plan applications and outlines the process and standards for consideration of a site plan.

Article 13, Special Land Uses outlines the process and standards for consideration of special land uses within each zoning district

Article 14, PUD Planned Unit Development District establishes the PUD Planned Unit Development District This article specifies qualifying conditions, permitted uses and development requirements (density, open space, etc.) for PUDs. The article also lists the general design standards that all PUDs must meet Finally, the chapter includes the application requirements and process for review and approval of a PUD and the review standards that must be met for approval

Article 15, Nonconformities, identifies the rights to which all nonconforming uses structures and lots are entitled and specifies the limitations applicable to expansion and replacement of certain nonconformities.

Article 16, Administration and Enforcement states the duties of the Zoning Administrator, gives the City Council the power to set fees for zoning related requests allows the City to require performance guarantees and a declaration that a violation of the Zoning Ordinance is a misdemeanor and that the City has the ability commence appropriate action in a court of jurisdiction

Article 17, Zoning Board of Appeals, states the membership requirements for the Zoning Board of Appeals (ZBA), the jurisdiction of the ZBA, and the process and standards for consideration of an interpretation, administrative appeal, or dimensional variance

Article 18, Amendments, defines the process for amending the text of the ordinance and for rezoning of land, and provides a process for conditional rezoning (by which an owner voluntarily places conditions upon the use or development of the land in exchange for rezoning approval)

Article 19, Enactment, establishes the legal adoption of the Zoning Ordinance

Venetian set to wrap up with a bang

The 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival is in full swing and so far, except for a cool and windy Tuesday, Mother Nature has cooperated. But some of the festival's biggest events are yet to come. Here's a list of some of the highlights that await this weekend as the community's annual homecoming event ramps up to its grand finale.

Friday

— 1-11 p.m., Arnold Amusements rides continue in downtown Charlevoix

— 6-11 p.m., Chris Martin performs in the Tiki Tent in East Park

— 7:30 p.m., Miss Charlevoix Venetian Queen coronation ceremony at the Odmark Pavilion in East Park followed by the festival's official original artwork auction

— Following the coronation and auction, Paul Revere and the Raiders perform in the pavilion in East Park

— 8-10 p.m., The Up North Big Band performs at Ferry Beach

— Dusk, Night Sky (high altitude) fireworks over Lake Charlevoix

Saturday

— 9 a.m., Drenth Memorial Footrace starting from Michigan Beach

This is a test.

This is only a test.

But it could become permanent.

Leaders with Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, the nonprofit organization that has overseen the effort to line the main road through Charlevoix with petunias for more than three decades is planning to roll out a pilot program that could be a precursor to the biggest change in the organization's history.

After asking for and getting the Charlevoix City Council's blessing to try the idea, organization officials expect a test display of six petunia-laden baskets to be installed sometime in the middle of next week.

The display will be set up on the top of the south Bridge Street hill, in the area of Hurlbut Street and will include six baskets hung from steel posts sunk between the sidewalk and the street. The posts and baskets will be placed every 50 feet on alternating sides of the street (or, said another way, about every 100 feet on each side).

The Charlevoix Planning Commission is looking for community input on a new policy that would dictate which city capital improvement project should go before the planning commission for its review prior to implementation.

A draft of the proposed policy is now available on the city's website, www.cityofcharlevoix.org.

The policy is a direct result of the controversy that grew out of a proposal last year to build a gas-fired outdoor community fireplace in East Park. Objections in the community to the fireplace project started soon after the project was approved and construction began in East Park in mid-August, 2012.

The controversy led to the city council putting the project on hold over the winter, a recall election that ended in three city council members being replaced and the project ultimately being scuttled by the newly-constituted council this spring.

Aside from complaints that the fireplace would block views of the park and Round Lake from Bridge Street and that it did not fit in with the park, one of the complaints among those who objected to the project was that it was

Committee: No restrictions on hunting at county parks

AEBRA COE
Northern Michigan Review

Charlevoix County will not place any restrictions on hunting at Porter Creek natural area near Advance beyond what is required by the state. Hunting has historically been allowed at the park, but county recreation committee members voted in May to restrict the type and times of year hunting should be allowed to deer hunting between Oct. 1 and Dec. 31.

A parking lot at the natural area is nearing completion and trails will be installed this fall. Two of the six recreation committee members — Shirley Roloff and Brian Williams — maintain that no hunting should be allowed at the park for safety reasons as more walkers, dogs and children use the property.

That was also the reasoning behind restricting the months hunting is allowed.

The May decision was brought before the county buildings and grounds committee, made up of county commissioners George Lasater, Larry Sullivan and Richard Gillespie, in June. From there, it was bounced back to the recreation committee, with a request to remove the restrictions.

The revised policy without any restrictions on hunting beyond what is required by state law was passed by the recreation committee 4-2 — Roloff and Williams opposed — last week and is now in effect.

There is no ordinance in place regulating hunting on county property and so instituting a policy to not allow hunting on one natural area would not be enforceable, reported Sullivan, who supports allowing hunting at Porter Creek.

The county could put up signs that say "please no hunting," but the sheriff's department would have no way to enforce it, Sullivan explained.

When asked whether the buildings and grounds committee would support the creation of such an ordinance, Sullivan said "There are not sufficient votes to pursue it at this time."

At Porter Creek, he said, "I believe hunting should be allowed there for the foreseeable future. As activity increases, it may be necessary to put regulations in place."

Additionally, Sullivan disagreed with the specific restrictions the recreation committee agreed on at its May meeting. He said he believes the type of weapon used in bird hunting is less dangerous for hikers than the ones used for deer hunting, and so disallowing bird hunting did not make sense to him.

"Fisherman's Island (a state park in Charlevoix) is open for hunting and I hike there all the time," he said. "I don't go in November because there are people out there with high powered rifles, but the rest of the season I'm out there."

The rules at the natural area are remaining the same as they've been "for decades" in regards to hunting, said parks director Ross Maxwell.

"That's the way it will stay for now," he said. "If there are problems out there that may change."

This September and October, he plans to work on getting a trail system implemented into the nearly 100-acre park. He will have the help of Boyne City Eagle Scout candidate Elliott Crouch, who will make benches to be placed in the natural area for hikers to rest.

The trails will be open to the public year-round.

"People will be able to go into there on a beautiful walk," Maxwell said. "There are some real interesting spots on that property."

Board approves business' grant application

MORGAN SHERBURNE
Northern Michigan Review

Boyne City's Precision Edge Surgical Products Company, a company that manufactures surgical tools, could be one step closer to constructing a mobile manufacturing laboratory.

At the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners regular meeting on Wednesday, the board unanimously approved that the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance work with Precision Edge to apply for a $350,000 Community Development Block Grant. The grant is administrated by the Michigan Economic Development Corporation.

The grant has to be authorized by a Charlevoix County official, but Precision Edge and the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance will put together the grant application. If received, the Economic Alliance will administer the grant to make sure Precision Edge is following the procedures and parameters of the grant.

The $350,000 — which the county does not have to match — will help the company develop a mobile manufacturing lab. Precision Edge will pay $2.7 million in matching funds. The lab will help train potential employees to work in manufacturing. But the lab will also serve as a "marketing tool," says Precision Edge's engineering manager Todd Fewins.

"Our other intention of the lab is to use it as a marketing tool at high school level and at different events in the community to get people interested in manufacturing again," he said.

The grant will also help Precision Edge purchase machinery and equipment to expand within its current facility.

"Precision Edge will retain 38 employees and create 59 new jobs over the next two years," said Sara Christensen, economic development specialist with the Northern Lakes Economic Alliance.

Fewins said he hopes the company will employ more than 100 employees over the next 5-7 years, sparking interest in manufacturing from students coming out of high school.

"It's a good project. That's all I have to say about it," said commissioner Rich Gillespie.

Fewins said Precision Edge's mobile manufacturing lab was based on a similar model in northern Wisconsin, and that the company would work with North Central Michigan College in manufacturing training.

Also at the meeting, the board was apprised of a city plan to re-align Antrim Street in Charlevoix. Antrim Street runs east-west and crosses State Street, which runs north-south parallel to U.S. 31. But the intersection is crooked: it's offset between 35-40 feet, said commissioner Larry Sullivan. The city aims to straighten the intersection, which would give the Charlevoix County Building a little extra lawn.

The city has to act on establishing a use for the money for the reconstruction, which would come out of Michigan Department of Transportation funds, by the end of August.

Catholic school seeks zoning approval for temporary site

RYAN BENTLEY
Northern Michigan Review

A new regional Catholic high school is seeking zoning approval to set up temporary quarters in a space along U.S. 31 North in Petoskey.

St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy proposes to open this year with a ninth-grade class, and to lease space on the lower level of 1170 Bay View Road as an interim location. This building also houses PMP Personnel Services and a State Farm Insurance office.

"It offers a unique mix of square footage, reasonable price and geographic accessibility," said Jeff Bacigalupi, a representative of the committee preparing for the school's launch.

Under Petoskey zoning rules, schools — whether they're public, parochial or private nonprofit — that offer general education are treated as special-condition uses in all areas of the city, including the general business district along Bay View Road. This type of use requires planning commission approval to proceed, and a public hearing is needed before the commission's decision.

The city planning commission decided last week to set a special meeting for 7 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 8, at city hall, 101 E. Lake St., to conduct the hearing and consider the school's request.

The school's organizers expect that about 10-15 students will enroll for 2013-14. Classes would involve a mix of in-person and online instruction, with one full-time and one part-time teacher expected to be on site initially.

Bacigalupi said the school's small enrollment count as it gets started should keep drop-off traffic and parking needs at a minimum.

In two years or so, the school's organizers aim to have a permanent location set up elsewhere in Petoskey.

What's next

St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy will need zoning approval as a special-condition use to set up its temporary location in Petoskey. The Petoskey Planning Commission will conduct a public hearing on this proposed use during a special meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 8, at city hall, 101 E. Lake St.

Charlevoix man injured in one-vehicle crash

A Charlevoix man was injured in a single-vehicle traffic crash south of Charlevoix on Sunday, July 21.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's office officials identified the injured man as the driver and only occupant, Eugene L. Kasmer III, age 69. Kasmer was transported by Charlevoix Ambulance crews to Charlevoix Area Hospital and then airlifted to Munson Medical Center in Traverse City.

Authorities said the crash happened at about 6 p.m. on Marion Center Road south of Black Road in Marion Township.

Deputies said Kasmer was traveling south on Marion Center Road when he lost control of his 1995 Ford Mustang convertible after failing to negotiate a curve. The vehicle went off the roadway, through some trees, and rolled over.

Crews from the City of Charlevoix Fire Department had to use extrication tools to free Kasmer from his vehicle.

Police said a witness reported that Kasmer was unresponsive after the crash, but started to respond to ambulance personnel when they arrived on scene.

Authorities said Kasmer was wearing his seat belt which probably saved his life.

The Charlevoix Township Fire Department also assisted at the scene.

The crash remains under investigation.

Mind your manners, they really do matter

A LOOK AT LIFE

Gayle Gennett

I am a far cry from Emily Post when it comes to manners, but there are a few basics that necessitate my delving into the topic. Speaking up about manners and giving unsolicited advice on the subject comes with old age. You can quote me on this: A privilege that comes with age creates the need to share what we've learned so the younger generation won't make the same mistakes. Plus, our life on earth is dissipating quickly; we feel we have nothing to lose. Our children, on the other hand, may be heard saying, "Please don't embarrass me by correcting someone in public."

Let me begin with sidewalk etiquette. Keeping to the right is the rule of the road just as you do when driving a car or riding your bicycle but it seems more often than not some individuals choose to walk directly down the middle and not budging to move over. If everyone stayed to the right even a crowded sidewalk would flow freely. My top two peeves on the list of sidewalk etiquette would be: the "let's stop to chat and not move over" folks or the large group of people who walk shoulder-to-shoulder forcing the oncoming walker to move over onto the grass or even into the street. Though I did play the game of chicken when I was young, running into each other results is some pain emotionally and physically. So, please stay to the right or at least move over just as you would do in the lake with boats.

Then there is grocery store etiquette. I witnessed a man yelling profanities at the self checkout register because it said he needed help with the item. Turned out he ate part of the salad he purchased at the deli and the weight didn't match the bar code. It's a computer. Sometimes they correct us and sometimes they break down. The assistant manager will show up to help, so remain calm. Leaving the store, I couldn't help notice a young man who emptied his cart and shoved it out into the lot. "Don't worry," I said to him, "I've got this," as I took my cart and his and returned them to the cart corral so no one would have to deal with a cart taking up a parking spot or worse yet a windswept cart can make quite a dent.

Movie theatre/concert etiquette: If people are having their conversations in the movie theater it's OK to tell them to be quiet. When seeing a live concert it's OK to record a little but take it all in with your own eyes. It will be a better memory. While Beyonce was performing a recent concert and shaking hands with a front row audience member, he insisted on recording her with his camera phone and she said, "I am the real deal and seriously put the phone down." If she can say this aloud, we can, too.

Lack of manners can get you into trouble in the public eye as well. Paula Dean's situation is an example. Her manager should have stepped up to the plate years earlier and corrected her rather than collect his money on her apron strings. It's OK to let people know there is a polite way of doing something. Some of us really don't know any better because we haven't been taught manners. "Excuse me" and "I'm sorry" and "thank you" still go a long way.

Share the sidewalk. Be aware there are others around you. The self check aisle is just that. If a problem occurs someone will show up soon to help. Return your shopping cart to the store or corral nearby. If you feel the need to visit your friend during a movie or concert be aware the majority of those present want to listen to the entertainment and not you. Enjoy your live concert, it's a memory you'll always have and take fewer pictures.

There are many reading this article that possess wonderful manners but some of us, me included, could use a reminder once in awhile. Like I said earlier, age has its advantages and I put it all out there. Thank you.

Rayder Reunion set for Saturday at Weathervane

The fifth annual Charlevoix High School all class reunion will take place from 12:30-3 p.m. on Saturday, July 27, at the Weathervane Restaurant lower level.

All Charlevoix High School alumni are invited to greet classmates, peruse yearbooks, laugh at pictures of themselves as teenagers, and share some food and drink.

Snacks, lemonade and ice tea are provided and there is a cash bar available.

During this past winter, the Charlevoix Public library placed all of the yearbooks in a digital file that can be downloaded and copied from its website. Hard copies of most yearbooks will be obtained from the Historical Society for the afternoon.

Each year the number of alumni at this event has doubled and there have been graduates from classes in the 1940s to current graduates. Yearbooks and tables will be arranged by decade so that one can easily find (but not necessarily recognize) those who were in their class.

Although the reunion is free, those who wish to join may pay the $5 annual dues. The money gathered at this event goes back to the school for special projects. This event is sponsored by the Venetian committee and the alumni association.

The alumni band will once again be entertaining the crowd at the Venetian parade. If you would like to join this group or march as a class in the parade, email Sherrel Bergmann at rayderberg@aol.com.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK…

Virginia Young Olsen was the fourth and last of Charlevoix's famous builder-in-stone Earl Young's children, and the one who inherited his whimsical, imaginative talent. In the early 1980s she built her third house in town, the "Applecore," at the corner of Division Street and Mount McSauba Road. It looked like it stepped from the pages of a Grimms' Fairy Tale book with its half-timbering and delicate, undulating shingles that almost resemble thatch. Virginia appears inside the twisted brick gateway on Division Street in early September of 1989. To her left, in the white hat facing the camera, stands Luigi Guidi, the Italian stonemason she hired to do the job. They are being interviewed and filmed by an American Broadcast Company TV crew for the network's Home Show. On Sept. 11, on the ABC national broadcast, it was stated that the "Applecore" had been chosen to be included as one of the ten most interesting houses in the United States.

This image is one of 850 in the Charlevoix Historical Society's most recent DVD titled "Charlevoix, Michigan — A Pictorial Journey through 16 Decades." The disc is available at the historical society, the Central Drug Store, Round Lake Books and Castle Farms. Call (231) 547-0373 for mailing and society membership information. BUSINESS

ANNE KELLY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Scovie's owner Vi Keller stands inside a portion of the new expansion to her restaurant on Bridge Street in downtown Charlevoix

Scovies expansion project completed

ANNE KELLY
Courier staff writer

Scovie's Gourmet on Bridge Street in Charlevoix has recently undergone an exterior facelift and $150,000 expansion project.

The business is now open in its larger space, which doubled the restaurant's seating space, increasing the capacity to 50 patrons. Owner Vi Keller said she plans to continue to provide the same comfortable dining atmosphere the town has known for the past 10 years. A recently acquired Class C liquor license will add another dimension to Scovie's hospitality, allowing the restaurant to serve alcoholic beverages to complement the menu.

"We will probably experience growing pains this year, but we are confident that we will be successful," said Keller.

Keller has more than 28 years of experience in the restaurant business including waitressing, supervising, training employees, and managerial positions. Locally, she worked for Little Harbor Club and Magnum Hospitality enterprises prior to opening Scovie's in 2003. She said her original vision of owning a small eatery and catering business has grown into a larger operation than originally planned.

"It's all about listening to your customers and being willing to change," Keller said. "We believe in customer service," she continued. "Greeting our customers when they come in and understanding that their dining time is limited especially over the lunch hour, are just two ways we make our patrons happy. We want them to feel comfortable here … People have to get back to work in less than an hour so they need fast service as well as good food."

Keller believes that she has learned some important business lessons over the years. These include, knowing the product, knowing the system that works for a particular location; growing with the times, and being aware of the way people spend their money.

Catering for the Charlevoix Airport, office luncheons, private parties, and special events complements Scovie's in-house restaurant operation. Keller is hoping to add an entertainment element this fall, bringing a variety of music and local talent to the restaurant.

She attributes her success to the support of her long time patrons and valued employees, especially managers Eric Wlodarczak and Sherl McEnhill who have been with her nearly eight years.

Scovie's is open for lunch and dinner Monday-Saturday from 11 a.m.-9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. Winter hours are the same with the exception of being closed on Sunday. for more information, call (231) 327-7827.

Coldwell Banker opens showcase downtown

Coldwell Banker Schmidt Realtors recently opened its Real Estate Showcase in downtown Charlevoix.

The boutique-style space, in the Marina District on Clinton Street, features real estate information for the Northwest Michigan area, space for guests to sit and visit and areas with Apple iPads and a large flat-screen display where guests can explore real estate options with an agent.

"We visited a Coldwell Banker broker in Naples, Fla., who implemented a similar concept to attract more local and upscale buyers," said Ken Schmidt, chief executive officer of the Schmidt Family of Companies. "The inviting setting is more like a jewelry store than a traditional broker's office. You can browse the offerings and then engage a Realtor when you have more questions. This venue is perfect for showcasing our beautiful vacation and second homes in Michigan and southwest Florida."

Mark Knapp, general manager for Coldwell Banker Schmidt in Charlevoix, noted that the site takes advantage of today's technologies.

"An agent can sit with a couple reviewing information on an iPad and then walk up to a larger flat screen and air share the presentation in greater detail without missing a beat."

Coldwell Banker Schmidt expects the showcase concept to be most effective for busy families with limited time to search on their own, as well as the visiting client looking for special, hard-to-find properties.

The Apple influence is reflected extensively in the new showcase's design. Mac Mini computers drive flat screens with Apple TV connectivity, letting anyone with a MacBook laptop, iPad tablet, iPhone or air share-capable device grab a screen and engage their audience.

Along with the new showcase, Coldwell Banker Schmidt also operates a Charlevoix office location at 710 Bridge St.

LOCAL Highlights

Bald eagle release set for Sunday at St. Marys Cement

Public invited to attend

Officials with St. Marys Cement in Charlevoix and Wings of Wonder are inviting the public to witness the release of a recently rehabilitated bald eagle back into the wild 11 a.m. Sunday, July 28.

Wings of Wonder is an Empire-based non-profit raptor education organization that also operates a sanctuary and rehabilitates sick, injured or orphaned raptors and releases them back into the wild.

St. Marys Cement Plant is located at 16000 Bells Bay Road just south of Charlevoix.

Event organizers encourage members of the public wishing to attend to bring their cameras, leave dogs at home and arrive early enough to allow time for parking and finding a viewing spot.

Wings of Wonder representatives will be "passing the hat" to raise funds for future bald eagle rehabilitations and releases.

For more information, call the center at (231) 326-4663 or email at wow@wingsofwonder.org.

WEDDING announcement

Jennifer Liotta - Patrick Corbett

COURTESY PHOTO

Patrick and Jennifer Corbett

Jennifer Rose Liotta of Charlevoix, daughter of Cathryn and Eugene Liotta of Charlevoix, and Patrick Michael Corbett of Southgate, son of Ronald and Linda Corbett of Grosse Ile, were united in marriage on June 1, 2013 at the Crew's Nest Yacht Club in Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

The couple welcomed 75 guests to the 3 p.m. outdoor double-ring ceremony. They were married by the groom's uncle, The Rev. Louis Liotta.

Jennifer, who was escorted to the altar by her father, wore a long, white satin-and-tulle pick-up gown with a beaded, pleated bodice and embroidered lace train.

Flowers for the ceremony were white roses and pink lilies.

Jennifer's maid of honor was Tiffany Melke of Petoskey and her bridesmaids were Jennifer Dean of Charlevoix, Jennifer Liotta of Hemlock, and Megan Corbett of Washington D.C. They wore street-length watermelon-colored strapless dresses with pleated bodices to match the bride's dress and carried pink lilies wrapped in matching watermelon-colored ribbons.

Patrick's best man was Aaron Bunch of Allen Park and his groomsmen were Mike Strasser of Southgate, Joel Jauregui of Southgate and Bryan Liotta of Hemlock.

Following the ceremony, guests enjoyed a reception, hosted by the couple's parents, also at the Crew's Nest Yacht Club.

The couple is planning a honeymoon in the fall in the south and they plan to make their home in Southgate.

Library offers health programs

Kroll

Two health programs are planned at the Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St. Both sessions will be presented by Susan Kroll, adult services librarian and former director of the John A. Prior Health Sciences Library at Ohio State University.

"What Does Your DNA Say?" will be offered at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 6. This presentation will review home DNA tests from both a medical and ethical perspective.

At 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 13, brings the session "Growing Old is Not for Sissies." This session will feature websites to help improve health and books in the library's collection that are of special interest to seniors.

Seating is limited in both sessions. Register online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 237-7340.

Joseph Barnadyn named July veteran of the month

Barnadyn

The "Veteran of the Month" for July 2013 is Joseph Tony Barnadyn.

He was born Jan. 12, 1921, the second of 12 children, in Boyne Falls and attended Curfew School on the corner of U.S. 131 and Romaniak Road north of Boyne Falls. In 1936, after completing the eighth grade, he left school and worked on the family farm to help support their family during the Great Depression. In 1941 he went to Hamtramck going to work as an automobile serviceman for Mazur Brothers and on Dec. 1, 1942.

Barnadyn was inducted into the Inactive Army Reserve Corps entering into active service on Dec. 11, 1942 in Detroit. Following basic training, where he qualified as a sharpshooter with the M1 Garand rifle, he attended a specialty school graduating as a cook. On Oct. 6, 1944 Barnadyn departed the U.S. arriving in the European Theater of Operations on Oct. 20, 1944 and participated in battles and campaigns in the Rhineland and Central Europe while assigned to Company I, 179th Infantry. He served as a second cook in an Army kitchen following daily menus while preparing meals for Army personnel and did baking and meat cutting. On Sept. 8, 1945 Barnadyn departed the European Theater of Operations arriving in the U.S. on Sept. 14, 1945 and on Nov. 14, 1945, at The Separation Center, Camp McCoy, Wisc., he was awarded an Honorable Discharge having attained the rank of Sergeant Technician 5th Grade and was awarded the following decorations and citations: The American Theater Service Medal, The European-African-Middle Eastern Theater Service Medal, The Good Conduct Medal The Combat Infantryman Badge and One Overseas Service Bar (representing six months foreign service).

Returning to Hamtramck Barnadyn went to work for General Motors and on Dec. 1, 1945 he married Rose Mary Hypke residing in Hamtramck until 1948 when they moved to a farm near Elmira. He raised crops and cattle and in 1959 specialized in raising and selling certified seed potatoes. Barnadyn served several terms as township constable in the late 1950's and in 1969 he moved to Boyne Falls working for various companies in the building trades and in 1976 he went to work for Circle M Ranch as their construction supervisor. Retiring in 1986, he later moved to Boyne City in October of 2011. He enjoyed hunting deer and rabbits and fishing and held life memberships, and participated in, the Eagles, the Knights of Columbus, was past commander of local VFW post, and was active in his church and parish, St. Augustine. On Nov. 30, 2012 Joseph Tony Barnadyn answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Rosemary, his children and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

Chicaco Club continues support for Camp McSauba

Camp McSaube friende (from left), Jeck Bemis, Lendon Roloff and Caeden Collins posing et their rock eend castle thet they made down at the beach during a week of Camp McSaube this year.

Camp McSauba is in full swing again this summer, with its supervised fun and entertainment, combined with traditional summer camp activities. Many campers in attendance are benefiting from the support of the members of the Chicago Club, who have provided scholarships again this season to help youngsters attend this northwest Michigan camp.

Utilizing a fund they established at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, the members of the Chicago Club have had a long history of helping enrich and improve the lives of Charlevoix's young people. Through the fund, the Chicago Club members have provided more than $111,000 in supplemental resources to benefit children.

"Chicago Club members have quietly but consistently helped meet the needs of Charlevoix's youth for more 13 years. The programs have made a positive impact on scores of young people," said Maureen Radke, program officer at the community foundation. Issues addressed have included: unmet dental and medical needs; teen substance abuse initiatives, and mental health needs. Examples of programs supported have included: the Charlevoix Public Schools' school nurse program; children's health, fitness, and nutrition programs, and support for the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

Foundation officials noted that the Camp McSauba scholarships are an extension of the Chicago Club's desire to continue to support enrichment activities for Charlevoix youth, and this year's grant will allow more than 20 campers to enjoy a week at camp that their families may otherwise have been unable to afford.

"We feel very lucky to be able to make such a positive impact on our campers. The Chicago Club has helped many campers in need over the years afford to go to Camp McSauba," echoed City of Charlevoix Recreation Director Amanda Wilkin.

Camp McSauba offers weekly sessions, planned around a specific theme including: Aloha Week, Treasure Hunters Week, Splish-Splash Week, and Fun & Fitness Week. Each camp session runs five days, with a sleepover on Thursday night, and an awards ceremony for campers, parents, grandparents and friends each Friday morning. Older campers also have the option of swimming at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool on Thursday night, before the sleepover.

"Camp McSauha provides the camp experience of a lifetime for children ages five to thirteen. Campers do everything from arts and crafts, treasure hunts, and chemistry experiments to evening campfires, sporting events and trips to the beach. With each week having a new theme, campers are always entertained with something unique," said Wilkin.

The Chicago Club was established in 1880, and today, many founding families continue to maintain cottages in the association. Although most members are summer residents of Charlevoix, the club has a long history of supporting local causes, foundation officials noted in a press release.

"So many youngsters in Charlevoix are getting a great experience thanks to the support of the Chicago Club," says Chip Hansen, president of the Community Foundation, adding, "good things happen when people work together, and the Chicago Club's members are working together to make good things happen in Charlevoix."

The Chicago Club's Fund is among the 238 funds held by the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, each one designated to support a specific cause or address general needs in education, the environment, arts and culture, health, civic projects, youth, and recreation.

For more information about grant application deadlines or other programs of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, please call the foundation office at (231) 536-2440, visit the foundation's website at www.c3f.org or e-mail Chip Hansen, president at chansen@c3f.org.

Michigan railroad stations topic of program at library

The Charlevoix Public Library will host a slideshow and lecture by Michael H. Hodges titled "Michigan's Vanishing Railroad Stations: Architecture, History and Sense of Place" at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 5.

In his new book, "Michigan's Historic Railroad Stations," Detroit News art critic Hodges photographs and profiles 31 depots across the state, from Detroit to Three Oaks to Charlevoix and Petoskey. In this lecture and slideshow, Hodges traces the evolution of the train station and the range of styles architects employed to both tame and exalt rail transportation. Touching on news accounts, literature and film, Hodges also considers the central role the Charlevoix Depot once played as the nation's principal crossroads.

Round Lake Books will be selling copies of the book for Hodges to autograph.

For more information about this or other programs at the library, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 237-7340.

Dental center offers free care Aug. 16

Beacon Dental Center, owned by Dr. Michael Sullivan, will host its third Dentistry from the Heart event on Friday, Aug. 16, during which the practice expects to provide 100 or more patients with free dental care.

The team of dental professionals at Beacon Dental Center will provide adult patients with free dental care including extractions, fillings and cleanings. There will be several dental professionals and members of the community donating their time and resources, in order to provide free dental care to as many residents in need as possible.

The line will for those wishing to take advantage of the event is expected to begin forming early into the night before. In the past, people have camped out in order to receive free services. Patients are seen on a first-come, first-served basis. Event registration will begin at 7 a.m. on Friday. Beacon Dental staff encourage patients to dress appropriate for the weather as the waiting area is outside.

Since the first DFTH in December 2011, more than $50,000 of free dental care was donated with treatment performed on more than 100 patients.

"It all comes down to wanting to provide something greater to my community," said Dr. Sullivan. "The services provided by Dentistry from the Heart helps more than just a patients teeth, it gives them a renewed reason to smile."

Beacon Dental Center is located at 06483 M-66 Highway North in Charlevoix. For more information please visit www.BeaconDentalCenter.com or contact us at (231) 547-9141.

$750 in grants awarded by foundation

The Consumers Energy Foundation has awarded $725 in grants to two Charlevoix County organizations to recognize volunteerism by an employee.

Tim Petrosky, at the company office in Petoskey, performed 50 hours of volunteer service over the past year with Little League of Charlevoix where he served as a coach.

The $450 Volunteer Investment Program grant will be used to purchase equipment.

Petrosky also performed 80 hours of volunteer service during the past 12 months with the Rotary Club of Charlevoix. He served on the club's board of directors and as chairman of the annual golf tournament. In recognition of this effort, a $275 grant will has been awarded to the Rotary Club to be used to support Rotary youth programs.

The Little League grant reflects a doubled amount through the Consumers Energy Foundation program Consumers Energy Employees Providing Service Around Children's Essential Resources which was established as part of Consumers Energy's commitment to America's Promise-The Alliance for Youth. America's Promise works to provide every young person with the Five Promises so they will have a better chance to succeed in life.

The Consumers Energy Foundation is the philanthropic arm of Consumers Energy. It provides funding for a variety of areas including education, community, civic and cultural development, social services, the environment, and emerging issues.

Emily Boyle, Montana Thompson, Timothy Roback and Erin Boyle from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation attend the Youth Grantmakers Summer Leadership Conference at Central Michigan University.

Area teens attend leadership conference

More than 300 students and advisors representing more than 50 community foundations across the state came together in late June at Central Michigan University with one goal in mind: to learn how to be more effective grantmakers in their own communities.

Young people from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation Youth Advisory committees participated in activities and sessions that helped them explore their interests and expand their grantmaking knowledge. This year's theme, "Impassioned. Empowered. Better Me. Better We." encouraged committee members to think about their passions and how to use them to empower those around them.

From Charlevoix County, Emily Boyle, Erin Boyle, Timothy Roback and Montana Thompson attended along with advisor Mishelle Shooks. From Emmet County, David Jones attended with Logan Bickel, Claire Fleming, Kelsey Nuorala and Rachel Schulingkamp.

"The experience was so influential and inspiring," noted Claire Fleming, a sophomore from Harbor Springs.

Timothy Roback, a junior at East Jordan High School added that he enjoyed being able to connect to other youth and stated that he "especially liked the youth driven discussion."

The 2013 Youth Grantmakers Summer Leadership Conference was entirely planned and facilitated by a group of young people. The Michigan Community Foundations' Youth Project Committee is the statewide governing board for youth grantmaking bodies that works to promote youth philanthropy. The committee comprises 12 youth and three advisors who represent the diversity in philanthropy across the state. Ellen Lively, of Petoskey, currently serves as a member and Sara Ward, of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, currently serves as an advisor to the youth committee.

Youth advisory committees at each community foundation are made up of young people who have the unique and important responsibility of overseeing the permanent Youth Fund at their respective community foundations. These volunteers identify the needs of youth and families here in Charlevoix and Emmet counties and then recommend grant dollars from the Youth Fund to the local nonprofit organizations that can do the most good.

PETUNIAS

recently obtained permission from Michigan Department of Transportation officials to try the new setup.

Wilkin said the plan is on Monday crews will dig six holes. Sleeves will then be placed in the holes and surrounded with concrete. Once the concrete dries, the posts from which the baskets will hang will be inserted into the sleeves, and the baskets will be hung. (This is tentatively slated for Wednesday.)

The reason for the test display is so everyone — residents, visitors, city officials, and even the board itself — can get a feel for how it would look if the city's well-known and beloved annual petunia display was moved from the curbside flower beds that run along the five miles of U.S. 31 from one end of town to the other into the baskets.

So, why, after all these years, is the organization considering such a big change?

One word: weeds.

Wilkin explained that for many years one of the biggest challenges the group has faced is the huge task of keeping the flower beds free of weeds. Several years ago, when budget constraints forced the city to dramatically cut its financial contribution to the program, the board came up with the idea to have work crews from the Charlevoix County Jail do the work. Having the inmates do weeding worked well for several years, but this year, changes in the laws governing how inmate workers must be supervised and other constraints slammed the door on that program.

So the board decided on a two-pronged approach to the problem, appeal to the community to help with the weeding, much like it does every May for planting day while at the same time exploring the basket idea.

In May, before this year's petunias were even in the ground, Wilkin said likely the only way the organization would be able to keep using the roadside beds is if the community turned out in big numbers for two or three weeding events throughout the summer.

However, participation in the first weeding day in June was sparse. A few dozen people turned out instead of the hundreds who typically come out for planting day.

Wilkin said the board was disappointed with the turnout, "and it further solidified the need to pursue the basket option."

He explained if it ultimately goes forward the basket scenario would involve 300 baskets (in addition to those baskets already placed in the downtown) set from roughly Mercer Boulevard to M-66 spaced just like the pilot program alternating sides of the road every 50 feet along the route. Under the plan, the baskets and the posts would be removed each fall to keep them from being damaged by weather and snow plows in the winter and the sleeves would be capped to keep debris out.

The switch would cost the organization some money up front to buy the baskets and the posts, (Wilkin said the board doesn't have a good estimate on that cost yet) but the board thinks in the long run it could be a big money-saver.

Wilkin said the baskets would eliminate not only the weeding issue, but some of the other problems that have plagued the display over the years such as locations with low curb heights flooding out during rain storms, and die-offs from fertilizer and herbicides getting into the beds from nearby properties.

In his memo to the city council on the matter recently, Charlevoix city manager Rob Straebel noted that city crews spend a great deal of time preparing the beds each year, at a cost he estimated at around $16,000.

Wilkin also noted that the same water truck that has been used for many years to water the petunias can be easily modified to water the baskets.

"Pretty much all the suggestions people make to us we've tried already," Wilkin said.

Wilkin said so far, many of the people the board has spoken with, including some of the group's biggest donors, have been supportive of the plan. He said for some, its just a matter of explaining the proposal and the reasons behind it.

He added that if people are really opposed to the proposed change the best thing they can do is show up (and get others to show up) for the next weeding event.

That event is slated for 4-7 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 7. During that time, just like on planting day, the outside lanes of U.S. 31 will be closed to allow people to safely pull weeds at the curbs. When the weeding is done, a yet-to-be-determined treat will be offered in East Park for volunteers.

"We've been pretty lucky this year," Wilkin said. "The weeds haven't been as bad this year as they have been in some recent years, but if you look closely at a lot of the beds, there's a lot of crabgrass in there that will start showing up pretty soon and making it look bad."

POLICY

not vetted by the planning commission prior to approval by the city council.

During the many council meetings at which the fireplace project was discussed, city staff and the city attorney said not only is city not subject to planning and zoning review of its own capital improvement projects, in the past other similar projects have not been sent to the planning commission for its review.

When the dust settled from the fireplace controversy, the council directed the planning commission to come up with a policy that would dictate what kinds of city capital improvement project should be reviewed by the planning commission.

City planner Michael Spencer said the state's zoning enabling act that mandates a "structure," among a list of other things, should not be built in an area covered by a master plan (such as East Park), unless it is reviewed by the planning commission. However, what qualifies as a "structure" is not defined.

The language in the preamble of the proposed policy reads, "(T)he City of Charlevoix does review and make a recommendation on the draft capital improvement plan on an annual basis prior to adoption by city council ... however infrastructure projects and new uses may arise throughout the year that are not included in the budget or capital improvement plan."

The language also notes the planning commission does not currently have a process in place to review infrastructure projects not covered in the budget or capital improvement plan and new uses proposed on public lands.

The proposed policy defines a "structure" as: "a permanent building, typically enclosed or containing a roof, used for a wide variety of activities."

It defines a "feature" as, "an element or attribute that serves to enhance or provide a specific use to a property. (Examples include the trout stream, water fountain, public art, sculptures, kiosk, signs, pavers, maps, benches, etc.)"

It defines an "amenity" as: "a feature, attraction, use or structure typically located in public parks to enhance the experience of the user or fulfill a specific need. (An amenity may also be a feature such as the trout stream, interactive water fountain, disc golf, etc.)"

The policy would exempt from further review projects that have already been review through the annual budget or capital improvement plan process, projects that must be completed to protect public health, safety and welfare, replacing, repairing or expanding utilities, replacing or repairing of existing buildings, structures of features; and replacing or repairing existing roads, curbs, and sidewalks and minor changes to existing uses related to government operations.

Items that would be subject to review under the policy include:

— Any new structure, feature, or expansion of an existing building.

— Any new use or recreational activity proposed on public properties.

— Purchase of any additional properties to be owned by the city. Sale of any city owned lands.

— Construction of new roads, alleys, and new parks.

The review process contemplated would have the planning commission look at all documentation for the project, take public comment on the project and forward a recommendation to the city council for its consideration.

Spencer said the planning commission and staff decided to stay away from assigning dollar amounts as a trigger point for planning commission review. He said sometimes the cost of a project is not always indicative of its impact to the space where it will be constructed.

The planning commission will take public comment on the draft policy at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12, at Charlevoix City Hall.

Hybl selected to play in All-Star game

Ken Hoffman selected to coach in game

DREW KOCHANNY
Northern Michigan Review

EAST LANSING — In just over a month, Charlevoix High School graduate Katie Hybl will begin her college softball career at Alma College.

Hybl continued to add to her illustrious high school career, as she played in the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association Division III Softball All-Star game in East Lansing on Wednesday.

Hybl played four innings at catcher and went 2-for-3 at the plate with two singles and she scored a run when she stole home. Hybl's team won the game 3-0.

Hybl was one of 33 members selected to participate as part of the Division III level, split into two separate teams. Hybl earned All-State honorable mention honors following her senior season as a catcher for the Rayders.

"It feels very rewarding and I'm very honored," Hybl said. "It feels rewarding because I've worked so hard for four years trying to get an All-State honor. I just feel very lucky to be part of it because not a lot of girls from Northern Michigan get selected to do this in the first place, so I'm very excited."

Hoffman

A do-all Swiss Army knife of a player for the Rayders this season, Hybl became Charlevoix's top pitcher, leading her team to a 20-10 record and Lake Michigan Conference title, while batting .485, with a .528 on-base-percentage.

When she took the field Wednesday at Secchia Stadium at Michigan State University, Hybl wasn't alone as Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman was also there to coach Hybl's White team roster.

"I'm really excited that he's coming, just to see a face that I know so I'm not in a sea of people," she said prior to Wednesday's game. "It will be comforting."

Hoffman, who coached along with Bath's Darren Buck, felt honored to be able to receive the chance to coach the All-Star lineup and coach Hybl one last time.

"It was quite the honor, I was really surprised and happy when they asked me if I'd be interested in doing it," Hoffman said. "I can coach Katie one more time and go out and enjoy myself. Katie has meant a lot to Charlevoix softball. She's always been there and had a great attitude."

The girls played an eight inning game, with everyone playing four straight innings.

"Katie (has) ... played a lot of positions just helping the team," Hoffman said. "She was honorable mention playing part-time there (catcher), just think if she was putting all her time into it."

He'll get no argument from Hybl, who was glad to be back to her favorite spot on the diamond.

"I've always loved catching more than anything really," Hybl said. "I've loved to pitch, but I think it seems a little too intense for me. Catching is my niche I guess."

Next season, when Hybl joins her sister and pitcher at Alma, Hannah, she'll get a chance to compete for the starting catcher position, where she'll have the opportunity to be able to do something most siblings only dream of.

"I'm really excited to play with my sister Hannah and be able to catch her again like I did two years ago in high school," she said. "I'm already doing my workouts and getting ready."

Hybl knows she wouldn't be in line for college ball, or where she was Wednesday, if it hadn't been for the people around her, though.

"I want to thank my mom and my dad, my coaches; Kathy Breebe, Dave Serafini and Jeff Brunner," Hybl said. "They meant a lot in getting me where I am."

Tennis has served Belvedere Club member well

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Tennis is game that can be a life-long sport, and it has been that for Bobby Leatherman, a Belvedere member who has been playing the game since he was 3 years old and who recently won a doubles tournament at the Belvedere Club at the age of 81.

Leatherman hails from Robinsonville, Miss., where he grew up in a home complete with a well-utilized tennis court.

"My mother would have friends down from Memphis (Tenn., three hours away) to play, and they would designate me as ball boy," said Leatherman who loved to participate even at that early age. "There was a wire backstop made of chicken wire fencing, and I would play mental games with myself, making my mother and her friends the imaginary opponents with me playing both parts."

Leatherman had lessons early on and by age 12 was playing in local tournaments. He attended the University of Mississippi in the early 1950s, where he played on the tennis team conference circuit. He enjoyed playing mixed doubles back in those days "probably because of my age and the girls," he said.

Leatherman first came to Charlevoix's Belvedere Club as a child in 1934. He's not sure of how the connection was made, but he remembers that his mother brought him to Charlevoix that summer to protect him from an epidemic that was raging in Memphis at the time. He said they rode up on the Pere Marquette Railway from Chicago to Charlevoix and the Belvedere Club and continued to do so every summer the railroad was in operation. He and his wife, Camille, and their three children have made the Belvedere Club their summer place all their married life.

From the time he was 10 or 11 years old Leatherman played in the club's tennis tournaments. His first win was in 1948 so there have been seven decades of recorded matches and several victories.

Tennis coach Erik Londteigen has been with the Belvedere Club in the summers since 1980.

"In the 70s," Lundteigen remembers, "My dad (Gunner Lundteigen) and I would play against Bobby and his son, so I've known him on the courts a long time. He's a wonderful example of someone who really has made tennis a life-long sport. It's neat for kids to see people in that generation still out there having fun and doing well."

Doing well and enjoying the game are on the priority list. Londteigen believes that even with injuries that often occur in later years, a person can still play well and Bobby Leatherman is a prime example to illustrate his point.

Fifteen years ago a rotator cuff injury caused Leatherman to take a hiatus from the sport he loves. He underwent therapy and tried golf in the interim but found that golf hurt his back, while tennis did not. But there was still the nagging shoulder pain.

"Last year I couldn't even play," Leatherman said. "But I took some lessons throughout the year to get back into it gradually."

Though he is not completely pain free, his efforts paid off, because in a tournament just a few weeks ago, he and partner Mason Bohlmann of St. Louis, Mo. faced Frank Trulaske and Trulaske's son David on the courts and won the pro set 8-4.

Carey Cup tourney set for August 6

The 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival may be coming to a close this weekend, but one event long tied to the festival will linger as the Carey Cup Co-ed Golf Scramble tournament, one of the may Venetian Games, is set to tee off on Tuesday, Aug. 6 at the Charlevoix Golf Club.

Tee-off time for the shotgun start will be 4 p.m.

Registration forms are available at the course clubhouse and registrations are due by Sunday, Aug. 4.

The event is named in honor of Keith Carey, who was the manager and head pro at the municipal course for more than 20 years and an ardent supporter of youth golf.

Venetian Games commissioner Dean Davenport said in the late 1950s, in the first few years of his 18 seasons serving as the city's recreation director, Davenport's youth golf program was limited to playing at the high school's football practice fields.

Davenport said when Carey learned of this, he offered an opportunity for the junior golfers to use the course on certain days and times.

Davenport recalled, "The feeling that prevailed at the time was that kids weren't welcome on golf courses. It was felt than they slowed play, didn't follow course rules and were a bother. Keith was the first area golf club manager to realize that youth golfers could be educated to play on courses and it became a breakthrough early on for the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program."

Several years ago Davenport suggested to the current course management that the annual city tournament as well as the Venetian Festival youth tournament should be named in honor of Carey, in recognition of Carey's impact on golf in the area.

"Keith's wonderful managerial style set a high standard and is remembered by long-time players who recall Keith's impact on the golfing community," Davenport added.

For more information on the tournament, contact the Charlevoix Golf Club at (231) 547-3270.

The language also notes the planning commission does not currently have a process in place to review infrastructure projects not covered in the budget or capital improvement plan and new uses proposed on public lands.

The proposed policy defines a "structure" as: "a permanent building, typically enclosed or containing a roof, used for a wide variety of activities."

The policy would exempt from further review projects that have already been review through the annual budget or capital improvement plan process, projects that must be completed to protect public health, safety and welfare, replacing, repairing or expanding utilities, replacing or repairing of existing buildings, structures of features; and replacing or repairing existing roads, curbs, and sidewalks and minor changes to existing uses related to government operations.

Items that would be subject to review under the policy include:

— Any new structure, feature, or expansion of an existing building.

— Any new use or recreational activity proposed on public properties.

— Purchase of any additional properties to be owned by the city. Sale of any city owned lands.

— Construction of new roads, alleys, and new parks.

The review process contemplated would have the planning commission look at all documentation for the project, take public comment on the project and forward a recommendation to the city council for its consideration.

Spencer said the planning commission and staff decided to stay away from assigning dollar amounts as a trigger point for planning commission review. He said sometimes the cost of a project is not always indicative of its impact to the space where it will be constructed.

The planning commission will take public comment on the draft policy at its next meeting set for 7 p.m. Monday, Aug. 12, at Charlevoix City Hall.

A do-all Swiss Army knife of a player for the Rayders this season, Hybl became Charlevoix's top pitcher, leading her team to a 20-10 record and Lake Michigan Conference title, while batting .485, with a .528 on-base-percentage.

When she took the field Wednesday at Secchia Stadium at Michigan State University, Hybl wasn't alone as Charlevoix coach Ken Hoffman was also there to coach Hybl's White team roster.

"I'm really excited that he's coming, just to see a face that I know so I'm not in a sea of people," she said prior to Wednesday's game. "It will be comforting."

Hoffman, who coached along with Bath's Darren Buck, felt honored to be able to receive the chance to coach the All-Star lineup and coach Hybl one last time.

"It was quite the honor, I was really surprised and happy when they asked me if I'd be interested in doing it," Hoffman said. "I can coach Katie one more time and go out and enjoy myself. Katie has meant a lot to Charlevoix softball. She's always been there and had a great attitude."

The girls played an eight inning game, with everyone playing four straight innings.

"Katie (has) ... played a lot of positions just helping the team," Hoffman said. "She was honorable mention playing part-time there (catcher), just think if she was putting all her time into it."

He'll get no argument from Hybl, who was glad to be back to her favorite spot on the diamond.

"I've always loved catching more than anything really," Hybl said. "I've loved to pitch, but I think it seems a little too intense for me. Catching is my niche I guess."

Next season, when Hybl joins her sister and pitcher at Alma, Hannah, she'll get a chance to compete for the starting catcher position, where she'll have the opportunity to be able to do something most siblings only dream of.

"I'm really excited to play with my sister Hannah and be able to catch her again like I did two years ago in high school," she said. "I'm already doing my workouts and getting ready."

Hybl knows she wouldn't be in line for college ball, or where she was Wednesday, if it hadn't been for the people around her, though.

"I want to thank my mom and my dad, my coaches; Kathy Breebe, Dave Serafini and Jeff Brunner," Hybl said. "They meant a lot in getting me where I am."

Tennis has served Belvedere Club member well

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff Writer

Tennis is game that can be a life-long sport, and it has been that for Bobby Leatherman, a Belvedere member who has been playing the game since he was 3 years old and who recently won a doubles tournament at the Belvedere Club at the age of 81.

Leatherman hails from Robinsonville, Miss., where he grew up in a home complete with a well-utilized tennis court.

"My mother would have friends down from Memphis (Tenn., three hours away) to play, and they would designate me as ball boy," said Leatherman who loved to participate even at that early age. "There was a wire backstop made of chicken wire fencing, and I would play mental games with myself, making my mother and her friends the imaginary opponents with me playing both parts."

Leatherman had lessons early on and by age 12 was playing in local tournaments. He attended the University of Mississippi in the early 1950s, where he played on the tennis team conference circuit. He enjoyed playing mixed doubles back in those days "probably because of my age and the girls," he said.

Leatherman first came to Charlevoix's Belvedere Club as a child in 1934. He's not sure of how the connection was made, but he remembers that his mother brought him to Charlevoix that summer to protect him from an epidemic that was raging in Memphis at the time. He said they rode up on the Pere Marquette Railway from Chicago to Charlevoix and the Belvedere Club and continued to do so every summer the railroad was in operation. He and his wife, Camille, and their three children have made the Belvedere Club their summer place all their married life.

From the time he was 10 or 11 years old Leatherman played in the club's tennis tournaments. His first win was in 1948 so there have been seven decades of recorded matches and several victories.

Tennis coach Erik Lundteigen has been with the Belvedere Club in the summers since 1980.

"In the 70s," Lundteigen remembers. "My dad (Gunner Lundteigen) and I would play against Bobby and his son, so I've known him on the courts a long time. He's a wonderful example of someone who really has made tennis a life-long sport. It's neat for kids to see people in that generation still out there having fun and doing well."

Doing well and enjoying the game are on the priority list. Lundteigen believes that even with injuries that often occur in later years, a person can still play well and Bobby Leatherman is a prime example to illustrate his point.

Fifteen years ago a rotator cuff injury caused Leatherman to take a hiatus from the sport he loves. He underwent therapy and tried golf in the interim but found that golf hurt his back, while tennis did not. But there was still the nagging shoulder pain.

"Last year I couldn't even play," Leatherman said. "But I took some lessons throughout the year to get back into it gradually."

Though he is not completely pain free, his efforts paid off, because in a tournament just a few weeks ago, he and partner Mason Bohlmann of St. Louis, Mo. faced Frank Trulaske and Trulaske's son David on the courts and won the pro set 8-4.

Carey Cup tourney set for August 6

The 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival may be coming to a close this weekend, but one event long tied to the festival will linger as the Carey Cup Co-ed Golf Scramble tournament, one of the may Venetian Games, is set to tee off on Tuesday, Aug. 6 at the Charlevoix Golf Club.

Tee-off time for the shotgun start will be 4 p.m.

Registration forms are available at the course clubhouse and registrations are due by Sunday, Aug. 4.

The event is named in honor of Keith Carey, who was the manager and head pro at the municipal course for more than 20 years and an ardent supporter of youth golf.

Venetian Games commissioner Dean Davenport said in the late 1950s, in the first few years of his 18 seasons serving as the city's recreation director, Davenport's youth golf program was limited to playing at the high school's football practice fields.

Davenport said when Carey learned of this, he offered an opportunity for the junior golfers to use the course on certain days and times.

Davenport recalled, "The feeling that prevailed at the time was that kids weren't welcome on golf courses. It was felt that they slowed play, didn't follow course rules and were a bother. Keith was the first area golf club manager to realize that youth golfers could be educated to play on courses and it became a breakthrough early on for the Charlevoix Junior Golf Program."

Several years ago Davenport suggested to the current course management that the annual city tournament as well as the Venetian Festival youth tournament should be named in honor of Carey, in recognition of Carey's impact on golf in the area.

"Keith's wonderful managerial style set a high standard and is remembered by long-time players who recall Keith's impact on the golfing community," Davenport added.

For more information on the tournament, contact the Charlevoix Golf Club at (231) 547-3270.

Venetian swim meet draws more than 40 participants

The winners of the family relay event in the Venetian Games Swim Meet at the Charlevoix Area Pool Monday were (from left), cousins Jackson Buday, 17, Emma Buday, 11, Anton Volovek, 18, Eric Buday, 20.

More than 40 swimmers participated in the 15th annual Venetian Games Swim meet at the Charlevoix Area Community Pool Monday.

Pool aquatics coordinator Betsy Grandstra reported that participants ranged in age from 4 to 78 with some swimmers coming from just a few miles away and some came all the way from Germany.

Five swimmers participated in their first-ever swim meet, including the meet's youngest participant: Ryan Glass, 4, and Thea McDongal, 78.

The winners of the family relay event were a team made up of cousins: Emma Buday, Jackson Buday, Anton Volovsek, and Eric Buday.

Driver arraigned in golf team crash case

KALKASKA (AP) — A driver who authorities say was involved in a two-van crash that killed a 31-year-old high school golf coach, an 18-year-old player and a passenger has been arraigned on manslaughter charges.

Rhonda Mitchell of Kalkaska faces three counts of manslaughter with a motor vehicle, three counts of a moving violation causing death and one count of child abuse.

The Traverse City Record-Eagle reports Mitchell was arraigned Monday in 87th District Court.

It wasn't clear if the 45-year-old has a lawyer.

Three people died, and six, including Mitchell, were hurt in the April 29 crash in Kalkaska County.

A police investigation shows both Mitchell and Grayling High School golf coach Jason Potter were at fault.

A pretrial hearing is scheduled for July 31 and a preliminary examination for Aug. 5.

[illegible]ses potential Venetian records

Festival posts numbers near last year, even with soggy end

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival was on track to not just set, but potentially shatter, attendance and revenue records last week — but Mother Nature had other plans.

Dan Barron, president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival board said even with the downpours that washed out Friday night's events and rains that dampened the rescheduled harbor fireworks on Sunday, the festival nearly matched its record setting numbers posted last year.

Barron said the festival started out strong with record numbers attending its opening Saturday events. He said Aquapalooza, the beach, boat and concert event at Ferry Beach, now in its fifth year and expanded this year by a couple hours, drew the largest audience and most boats to-date.

He said the Sunday, July 21, Worship on the Water event saw more attendance than last year and even on Monday, when cool temperatures and strong winds blew off Lake Michigan, attendance was strong at the battle of the bands at Michigan Beach and at the Venetian Vision movie in East Park.

Barron said crowds grew significantly when the first big-name bands the Motor City Women and Detroit Express and Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels took the stage in East Park and remained strong for the Kari Lynch Band and the Farm on Thursday night. In fact, Thursday's crowd was the largest for that day of the festival to-date also, he said.

As Friday rolled around, everything was shaping up to "shatter" attendance records, Barron said.

Venetian officials were anticipating yet another record crowd Friday night for Paul Revere and the Raiders.

"They've never played here before and we've never had so many out of town (telephone) inquiries and requests for directions and information for a band," Barron said. "We'd been trying to hook them for several years and finally got them here."

But the forecast was ominous, call-

Myles of encouragement

Story of Marine's aid to young runner during Venetian footrace goes viral

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff WRiter

The picture of a Marine nearing the finish line of the Jeff Drenth Memorial 5K Venetian Festival Foot Race last Saturday, side-by-side with a young boy, has already had more than 140,000 likes on the Seals of Honor military Facebook page as of Wednesday. Other Facebook posts, including the original posted, are going viral at an break-neck rate.

The Marine is 2012 Charlevoix High School graduate, Myles Kerr, son of Raymond and Carol Kerr of Charlevoix, who is on leave and will soon be heading to Camp Pendelton, a Marine base located about an hour north of Los Angeles, Calif. The boy in the photo is 9-year-old Boden Fuchs, son of Holly and Dr. Gary Fuchs of Charlevoix, who became separated from his running mates during the race and was encouraged to run alongside of Lance Cpl. Kerr and finish the course.

ANNE KELLY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

U.S. Marine Lance Cpl. Myles Kerr sits next to Boden Fuchs whom Kerr helped during the Jeff Drenth Memorial Footrace Saturday, July 27.

Kerr had been keeping pace with his fellow Marine buddies: Kristopher vanBeekom, a Marine recruiter presently living in Gaylord, Reservist Lance Cpl. Braden Knoop of Charlevoix, and Christopher Keie, of Charlevoix who is in a delayed entry program into the Marines and will begin boot camp in September.

Kerr decided to run the race in training gear to give himself an additional challenge. As three of the foursome crossed the finish line on Bridge Street that morning, Kerr was not with them. They were concerned because they thought he may have overextended himself during the last half of the race.

"I was worried, because he was probably in the best shape of any recruit I ever sent off," vanBeekom said. "We couldn't figure out what happened to him."

The young men were just about to retrace their course to find Kerr when they saw him running down Bridge Street with Boden.

"It was about halfway through the race, right around Michigan Beach when I came upon the boy," Kerr said.

He had been separated from his running mates and was walking slowly

Rain douses potential Venetian records

Festival posts numbers near last year, even with soggy end

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The 83rd annual Charlevoix Venetian Festival was on track to not just set, but potentially shatter, attendance and revenue records last week — but Mother Nature had other plans.

Dan Barron, president of the Charlevoix Venetian Festival board said even with the downpours that washed out Friday night's events and rains that dampened the rescheduled harbor fireworks on Sunday, the festival nearly matched its record setting numbers posted last year.

Barron said the festival started out strong with record numbers attending its opening Saturday events. He said Aquapalooza, the beach, boat and concert event at Ferry Beach, now in its fifth year and expanded this year by a couple hours, drew the largest audience and most boats to-date.

He said the Sunday, July 21, Worship on the Water event saw more attendance than last year and even on Monday, when cool temperatures and strong winds blew off Lake Michigan, attendance was strong at the battle of the bands at Michigan Beach and at the Venetian Vision movie in East Park.

Barron said crowds grew significantly when the first big-name bands the Motor City Women and Detroit Express and Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels took the stage in East Park and remained strong for the Kari Lynch Band and the Farm on Thursday night. In fact, Thursday's crowd was the largest for that day of the festival to-date also, he said.

As Friday rolled around, everything was shaping up to "shatter" attendance records, Barron said.

Venetian officials were anticipating yet another record crowd Friday night for Paul Revere and the Raiders.

"They've never played here before and we've never had so many out of town (telephone) inquiries and requests for directions and information for a band," Barron said. "We'd been trying to hook them for several years and finally got them here."

But the forecast was ominous, call-

Portions of the "no standing zone in front of the Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park looked more like a swimming or wading zone Friday, July 26, thanks to heavy rains that fell on the area prompting the cancellation of several Venetian Festival events.

Myles of encouragement

Story of Marine's aid to young runner during Venetian footrace goes viral

ANNE KELLY
Courier Staff WRiter

The picture of a Marine nearing the finish line of the Jeff Drenth Memorial 5K Venetian Festival Foot Race last Saturday, side-by-side with a young boy, has already had more than 140,000 likes on the Seals of Honor military Facebook page as of Wednesday. Other Facebook posts, including the original posted, are going viral at an break-neck rate.

The Marine is 2012 Charlevoix High School graduate, Myles Kerr, son of Raymond and Carol Kerr of Charlevoix, who is on leave and will soon be heading to Camp Pendelton, a Marine base located about an hour north of Los Angeles, Calif. The boy in the photo is 9 year-old Boden Fuchs, son of Holly and Dr. Gary Fuchs of Charlevoix, who became separated from his running mates during the race and was encouraged to run alongside of Lance Cpl. Kerr and finish the course.

Kerr had been keeping pace with his fellow Marine buddies, Kristopher van-Beekom, a Marine recruiter presently living in Gaylord, Reservist Lance Cpl. Braden Knoop of Charlevoix, and Christopher Keie, of Charlevoix who is in a delayed entry program into the Marines and will begin boot camp in September.

Kerr decided to run the race in training gear to give himself an additional challenge. As three of the foursome crossed the finish line on Bridge Street that morning, Kerr was not with them. They were concerned because they thought he may have overextended himself during the last half of the race.

"I was worried, because he was probably in the best shape of any recruit I ever sent off," vanBeekom said. "We couldn't figure out what happened to him."

The young men were just about to retrace their course to find Kerr when they saw him running down Bridge Street with Boden.

"It was about halfway through the race, right around Michigan Beach when I came upon the boy," Kerr said.

He had been separated from his running mates and was walking slowly,

Venetian noise, zoning on agenda

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

Discussions about noise coming from concerts during the recently-completed Charlevoix Venetian Festival and a public hearing on a major overhaul of the city's zoning ordinance are on the agenda for the Charlevoix City's Council's next meeting set for 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 5, at Charlevoix City Hall.

City manager Rob Straebel said council member Jeffrey Porter asked that the item regarding the Venetian Festival concert noise be placed on the agenda on behalf of a few people who have homes on the north side of Round Lake who complained about the sound coming from East Park during evening concerts on July 24.

Motor City Women and Detroit Express and Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels were the two acts that performed that night.

Straebel said as of Wednesday, he wasn't aware of any other complaints about the concert noise that had been lodged with the city.

The council will also conduct a second public hearing on a proposed major overhaul to the city's zoning ordinance.

The overhaul has been in the works for several years. It started with developing a new master plan for the city in 2010 and after many meetings and public hearings, the council could approve the new ordinance at Monday's meeting. The ordinance makes several changes in zoning to some properties, creates some new zones, and addresses issues and changes in practices that have come up since the last current ordinance was enacted in 1978.

In recent weeks city officials have been fine tuning some of the language. One last-minute item that has surfaced is whether zoning should allow merchandise to be displayed outdoors in front of businesses on Bridge Street in the downtown. The discussion was prompted by several complaints the city has fielded this year about the merchandise displays and the effect they have on the appearance of the downtown.

City planner Michael Spencer said, in response to the concerns, staff has drafted language for the ordinance that reads: "Merchandise or similar goods, and associated displays shall not be permitted on the exterior of buildings, entryways or sidewalks, except during sidewalk sales."

The restriction, as proposed, would apply only to businesses on Bridge Street between Memorial Bridge and Antrim Street.

Spencer said a memo describing the proposed language was recently dropped off at downtown businesses which would be affected by the rule.

The council will also hear a proposal on establishing a brick paver purchase program for East Park's Plaza B. Earlier this year the council gave the go-ahead for city staff to fill in the center portion of the plaza with paver bricks (replacing the woodchips that cover the area now. The program would allow guests and residents to purchase a memorial brick and have it engraved and placed in the plaza.

The council agenda packet was not yet complete at press time Thursday.

Regional Catholic school gears up

St. Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy introduced two local teachers last week at its first open house in the school's proposed interim location at 1170 Bay View Road in Petoskey.

While St. Michael school has partnered with Fisher More Academy and The College of Saints John Fisher & Thomas More to provide an accredited, classical core curriculum, its students will also study with two new on-site teachers, Rachel Campbell and Maartje Nolan. Campbell and Nolan will oversee real time, on-line core classes each morning, and will mentor students, conduct math, science and writing labs, teach religion and provide several elective opportunities for students.

Campbell, the academy's lead teacher, earned her bachelor's degree in elementary education at Eastern Michigan University with an emphasis in mathematics and physics. She obtained her master's in education from the University of Southern Mississippi in curriculum with a concentration in mathematics. Campbell has more than 10 years of teaching and administrative experience. A pianist and piano teacher, Campbell has experience in leading children and adult choirs, a knowledge of the lives of the saints, and love for the Catholic faith, school officials said

"This is an opportunity of a lifetime for everyone involved," Campbell said. "I am thrilled to be part of this adventure — forming minds and hearts into critical thinkers and defenders of the faith."

Also part of the new team is Nolan, a part-time teacher. Nolan earned her bachelor's degree in education with honors at the University of Exeter, United Kingdom. She earned her master's degree in theater in education at Emerson University, Boston, Mass. Nolan also has a master's degree in inter-cultural training and conflict resolution from Lesley University, Cambridge, Mass.

Nolan, her husband Bryan and their two sons are members of Holy Childhood of Jesus Parish in Harbor Springs.

"I am committed to this endeavor for the long term," Nolan said. "I believe that there are things in life that have inherent redemptive value. A good Catholic education is one of these. An authentic Catholic education is one which celebrates the intellectuals of the past, and fosters the thinkers of the future while keeping centered on Christ and his will for us."

Both Campbell and Nolan were available to meet prospective students and their families at three different open houses which took place recently at St. Mary of Charlevoix and at the Catholic high school's proposed location

Private tours are also available upon request.

"We are on track for fall and are extremely pleased to have Rachel and Maartje on board," Deborah Gagnon, co-chair of the high school committee, said.

St. Michael the Archangel school is awaiting final approval of a special use permit from Petoskey's zoning board for the proposed location.

"Any educational institution is required to apply for and prove compliance with traffic and parking ordinances," Jeff Bacigalupi, co-chair, said.

"Our plan is to open St. Michael's in this interim location with a strong group of first-year students," Gagnon said. "Using a hybrid of 40 percent real-time online Catholic curriculum blended with 60 percent traditional classroom instruction, St. Michael's students will learn in a cutting-edge environment, one that higher education and businesses have already moved toward."

For more information on the school visit StMichaelRCA.com or call Gagnon at (231) 330-8868 to ask questions and schedule a private tour of St Michael the Archangel Regional Catholic Academy.

Charlevoix teen injured in van crash

A Charlevoix teen was injured when he was hit by a van while riding a bike on U.S. 31 north of Charlevoix Tuesday.

Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office officials identified the injured boy as Levi Charles Kilmer, 15. Authorities said Levi was transported by Charlevoix Ambulance crews to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital where he was treated for minor scrapes and bruises.

According to a sheriff's office news release, the incident happened at about 4 p.m. on U.S. east of Villa Road in Hayes Township

According to police, Levi was riding his bike with his brother heading west on the south shoulder of the highway when he glanced over his shoulder to look for approaching westbound vehicles. When he thought all the cars had passed, he [illegible] to the north side of the road. At the same time, Robert Michael Hartung, 64, of Alanson was traveling west on U.S. 31 in a 2001 Dodge Grand Caravan. Police said Hartung "reacted well with hard braking as he steered to the right, trying to avoid the bicyclist coming across his lane," but Levi hit the vehicle as they met on the north edge fog line.

East Jordan woman injured in M-66 crash

EAST JORDAN — A South Arm accident remains under investigation after an unoccupied car was found damaged Friday, July 26 on M-66 near Rogers Road.

According to a Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office press release, a passer-by reported a vehicle well off M-66 with its lights on and music blaring at 4:11 a.m. When sheriff's deputies arrived, along with East Jordan Police Department, the East Jordan Fire Department and East Jordan Ambulance, they located a silver 2003 Chevy Impala badly damaged with no one around

First responders began a search, but were notified by Charlevoix Area Hospital that a 21-year-old female driver, Kristen Forster of East Jordan, had been brought to the emergency room for treatment.

Police said Forster reported that a deer ran out in front of her and she swerved to miss it, causing her vehicle to run off the road and roll several times before striking a utility pole. Forster was able to free herself from the badly-damaged car and walk the short distance to her residence.

Forster was wearing her seat belt at the time of the accident, Police said.

In nature, senescence makes a lot of sense

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

When someone who seems to have a sincere interest asks me, "How are you?" I am likely to answer, "I seem to be deteriorating at a normal rate."

Senescence is the perfect descriptive word for that condition. It refers to "the clinical problems of later maturity." I prefer the botanical definition: "The phase of plant growth that extends from full maturity to actual death."

According to most statistical information, I am certainly somewhere between full maturity and actual death.

I have been interested for years in following the process of senescence in plants. For many of them the process is remarkably brief. I recently harvested most of the garlic plants from my vegetable garden. Last year I missed that harvest time by just a few days, and during that time, the above ground parts of the plants that had been nourishing them for the growing season had so completely disappeared that I had difficulty finding the plants.

The wild ramps in our woods, a near relative of garlic, which fill the early spring woods with brilliant green leaves, have so completely disappeared that even the sharpest eye can hardly find where the plants have grown. Below ground the bulb is dormant, waiting for the next year.

Most of our wild and many of our cultivated plants, both annual and perennial, follow that same pattern of vigorous growth and then rapid senescence and death of at least the above ground parts. The green parts of my garden potato plants follow the same pattern. They are here today and a week later can hardly be found.

Since all living things are the product of vigorous natural selection for those characteristics that most benefit their survival and reproduction, it is necessary to question: What about rapid senescence would be an advantage to any plant? The visible parts of a plant, especially the healthy, green, above ground parts most often wither very rapidly.

Plants, unlike animals, cannot move away from any sort of danger, and danger for the green parts of plants consists mostly of those animals and molds that can use the above ground parts for food. Many plants have learned over the eons that one way to disappear is to become senescent and wither away to almost nothing. A dry brown stick or a seriously withered leaf does not look much like food to most potential enemies, and such enemies are likely to ignore it and not dig around it for what food may lie beneath the surface. I have trouble finding the potatoes or the garlic bulbs after the tops have withered to almost nothing, and I imagine that other animals might have similar difficulties.

As I consider an uncertain future, rapid and profound senescence seems like a reasonable solution for me, as well as for familiar plants. The wisdom of nature finds many forms, some of which are not immediately obvious.

Roger Knutson is a professor emeritus of biology from Luther College in Decorah, Iowa, where he taught for 30 years. He holds master's degree and a doctorate from the botany department at Michigan State University.

LOOKING BACK…

The 226-foot single screw, steel-hulled Venetia was built in Scotland in 1904, went through four owners, then came into the hands of San Diego, Calif., industrialist John Spreckles in 1911. The U.S. Navy leased and refitted it in 1917 for use as a patrol craft with the designation SP 341, specifically German U-boat location and chase during World War I. The Venetia arrived in the Azores in January of 1918 and went on to chase several German subs, putting one out of commission, and warding off another before it could strike. Its crew reportedly sunk two, one of them the sub that had sunk the Lusitania in 1915. The Venetia was handed back to Spreckles in April of 1919. He died in 1926. Two years later the yacht came into the ownership of James Fairplay of Ontario, who took it on a cruise with several gentlemen friends. The largest pleasure boat on the Great Lakes reached Charlevoix in July, 1928 for a two-night stay and a golf excursion at the Belvedere course that so impressed Fairplay he expressed a strong desire to return later in the summer for an indefinite length of time. It is not known if he followed up. It appears from the photo that the huge vessel sailed into Round Lake, turned around and came back out to pull up to the south channel revetment near the fish hatchery, perhaps because Charlevoix had no place along the inner harbor large enough to accommodate its length for two nights. The Venetia disappeared from Lloyd's Register of Yachts in 1968.

Rehabilitated eagle released at St. Marys

STEVE ZUCKER
Courier Editor

The Charlevoix area may have a new raptor resident after a rehabilitated bald eagle was released back into the wild at the St. Marys Cement plant property on Sunday, July 28.

St. Marys officials estimate that between 250-300 people turned out to watch Rebecca Lessard, founder of the nonprofit organization Wings of Wonder, release the bird shortly before noon near a small pond not far from the plant's main parking lot.

Wings of Wonder is a raptor rehabilitation, education and research organization that also has a raptor sanctuary based in Empire.

Speaking to the audience gathered Sunday, Lessard explained that the adult female bald eagle to be released was found near Presque Isle in Presque Isle County with a broken wing, likely the result of being hit by a car.

She said when the bird was captured by state officials and brought to the sanctuary, the broken bone had already started to heal, which could have been a problem had it not been aligned properly. Fortunately, Lessard said, the bone was well aligned and continued to heal properly. Still, she said the bird was in "intensive care" for about 6-8 weeks. During that time, the bird was kept in a 8-foot-by-10-foot pen that allowed her to open her wings but not try to fly. She was then moved to the sanctuary's 100-foot long flight pen that allowed her to practice flying.

Lessard also recounted the challenge involved in catching the now-healthy eagle to put it in the crate to bring it to the release site, noting that the bird was particularly feisty — even for an eagle.

After recounting the bird's history, Lessard went to her vehicle, donned protective clothing, carefully removed the eagle from its carrier, and then carried it in a bear-hug hold in front of the crowd to allow for up close views and photographs.

After about 5-10 minutes of viewing, Lessard carried the bird about 30 yards away from crowd and released it into the wind. Although it did not circle around over the crowd as Lessard said it might, after its release the bird flew up, made a wide left turn and soon disappeared into the trees.

Lessard said the bird could return to where it was found in Presque Isle County, but may also decide to stay in the Charlevoix area. She said one of the reasons she selected the St. Marys site is the fact there is good natural habitat in the area. She also noted that the company has erected several eagle nesting posts on its property that the bird might favor should it find a mate.

For more information on Wings of Wonder, visit the organization's website at www.wingsofwonder.org.

Free heart screenings can help prevent tragedy on the court, field

RACHEL BROUGHAM
Northern Michigan Review

It was the not knowing that bothered Melissa Robbins of Petoskey.

Robbins — a mother of two boys now 18 and 19, both involved in sports — heard the stories of young athletes collapsing on the court or field.

"You hear about sudden cardiac arrest and it's really scary," Robbins said. "I wanted to make sure they were OK and it gave me peace of mind."

Each year, approximately 100 children in the United States suffer sudden cardiac death. These cases often take place during sporting events or athletic training and result with a tragic loss not only for the individual and their family, but for the community.

So in an attempt to detect heart abnormalities early and prevent these types of losses, McLaren Northern Michigan and the Michigan Heart & Vascular Specialists will sponsor free heart screenings for high school students in grades nine through 12. The free screenings will take place in Charlevoix, Petoskey and Gaylord and will include: medical history, a blood pressure check, electrocardiogram (EKG), consultation with a specialist and an echocardiogram (ECHO) if required.

The program, now in its third year, has grown according to Dr. Jason Ricci, an interventional cardiologist with Michigan Heart and Vascular, a department of McLaren Northern Michigan.

"The screenings are important for a couple reasons. It's rare, but kids are at risk and if we can identify a condition, we can prevent a catastrophic event," Ricci said.

"Many young people who are at risk don't even know."

In March, 2011, 16-year-old Wes Leonard, a basketball player at Fennville High School near Holland, collapsed on the gym floor after making a winning basket. A forensic pathologist determined Leonard's death was a result of cardiac arrest because of dilated cardiomyopathy, or an enlarged heart, a condition that had gone unnoticed.

"That's what's scary," Robbins said of not knowing.

"When I grew up a kid about a mile down the road just died suddenly. Boom. The family was always healthy and the kid was a wrestler and nobody knew anything was wrong," she said.

So that's why Robbins insisted her two teenage sons attend the screenings when they were first held in 2011. Both played high energy sports and while the screenings showed both were fine, it was the added insurance that gave Robbins peace of mind.

Ricci

"One son ended up getting an ECHO, but both turned out to be just fine," she said.

According to Ricci, the screenings will take less than an hour. He said warning signs of heart abnormalities teens should look for include: chest pain during a physical event, lightheadedness during activity and profound shortness of breath.

"Five to 10 percent of those screened will go on to get an ECHO and many times it's nothing, but we have no authority to tell that student not to continue with athletics. We just have them follow up with their doctor and their information is sent there," he said. "But it will give parents and students a baseline for their health."

"We take our kids to the doctor to get regular checks and vaccinations, so this is just one more thing that helps us monitor their health and then we have a good baseline for moving forward," Robbins added. "It's just so easy I can't believe everyone doesn't do it."

Spots are expected to fill, so parents and students are encouraged to attend one of the other screenings if the one in their city is full.

McLaren Northern Michigan will host three, free heart screenings for area high school students in grades nine-12. The screenings will take place:

OBITUARIES

Shirley Ellen McCann Martin Greene, 91

Shirley Ellen McCann Martin Greene, 91, of Charlevoix, passed away peacefully July 26, 2013, at her home at 508 W. Lincoln.

She was born Sept. 22, 1921, in Petoskey, to John Henry and Frances (Babcock) McCann who preceded her in death. Her parents owned and operated McCann Bakery in Charlevoix for many years.

Shirley had various occupations over the years. She was employed by the Belvedere Golf Club for a period of 18 years and formed many friendships during that time.

Shirley was a devoted wife, mother and grandmother who loved her family. She did many good deeds for others and her community privately. Many benefited from her knitting skills. She loved to read and work crossword puzzles.

She was preceded in death by her first husband, John B. Martin; her brothers, Edwin and Richard McCann; sister, Irene McCann Seymour; and great-grandson, Corey Young.

On Nov. 17, 1951, she married Amos J. Greene and he survives her along with her brother, Dale McCann, of Flint; her children, Frances (Richey) Young of Atlanta, Ga., Thomas (Merchal) Martin of Tampa, Fla., and Nancy Brodine Higbee of Ellsworth, who was like a daughter; seven grandchildren; eight great-grandchildren; five great-great-grandchildren; along with many beloved nieces and nephews.

The funeral service will be 11 a.m. Friday, Aug. 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. The Rev. Richey Young, son-in-law, and the Rev. Jim Green of Bible Baptist Church in Charlevoix will officiate. Following the service, family and friends are invited to gather for a meal at Bible Baptist Church, 5855 M-66 North.

Visitation will be from 6-8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 1, and from 10-11 a.m. Friday, Aug. 2, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix.

Burial will take place at Greenwood Cemetery in Petoskey.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Charlevoix Senior Center.

Sign Shirley's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

Stanley and Jackie Gibbard

A memorial graveside service for Stanley and Jackie Gibbard will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 4, at Dunsmore Cemetery, Echo Township, with the Rev. Dave Scott officiating. A gathering of family and friends will follow at 3 p.m. at the Gibbard Farm. Arrangements have been handled by the Central Lake Chapel of Mortensen Funeral Homes.

Foundations welcome grant requests

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation invite area nonprofit organizations, educational institutions and municipalities to submit grant requests to put local charitable dollars to work in the area.

Grant applications to support arts and culture, education, the environment, community and economic development, health and human services, recreation and youth are available by calling your respective community foundation office. All applicants must call to discuss their proposals in advance. Eligible nonprofit organizations must serve residents of Charlevoix County or Emmet County and work to enrich or improve life for local residents. The deadline for submission is Tuesday, Oct. 1. Applications will be reviewed by community members and youth advisory committee members and recommendations will be reviewed by the respective boards of trustees.

The community foundations accept resources from donors and then use a portion of the income earned from the investment of these gifts to help foster positive change in our area. In this way, donors' contributions meet community needs, now and in the future.

To apply for a grant or for more information, call or email your local community foundation program officer. In Charlevoix County, contact Maureen Radke at (231) 536-2440, maureen@c3f.org. In Emmet County, contact Sara Ward at (231) 348-5820, sward@phsacf.org.

Colors exhibit — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts exhibit "Colors-Views of Northern Michigan" is on display at the organization's building at 109 Clinton St. in Charlevoix. The exhibit will remain on display through Aug. 25. The curator of the exhibit is artist Diane [illegible]enthal, and it will showcase the work of many Jordan River Arts Council and Charlevoix Plein Air artists, as well as other prominent area artists. The two plein air groups each meet one day a week in "open air" at a predetermined site to create their renderings of beautiful Northern Michigan scenes and views. Gatherings are open to everyone. There is no cost, all media (oil, pastel, watercolor, acrylic, pen and ink, etc.) are welcome.

Youth camp — The Charlevoix Circle of Arts Youth Camp runs Monday through Friday through Aug. 9. The cost is $90 per camper per session. Reduced rates are offered for more than one sibling attending a session. The remaining weeks offers acrylic painting or clay modeling for the week of Aug.5-9. Contact the Circle of Arts for more information or to register.

BLOOD DRIVES

— The American Red Cross Great Lakes Blood Services Region provides lifesaving blood to hospitals across the state of Michigan and needs approximately 700 people to donate blood and platelets each week day to meet hospital demand. To schedule a donation time or get more information about giving blood or platelets, people can visit redcrossblood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). Individuals who are 17 years of age, meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on height) and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. Donors should bring their Red Cross blood donor card or other form of positive identification when they come to donate.

ing for a good chance of rain. So, around noon, Venetian officials met with city and public safety officials to formulate a plan, should the skies open up. As predicted, late in the afternoon, it started raining — hard. As the downpour continued, first the Venetian queen coronation and art auction was postponed to the following day. Next, officials waited an hour past the original starting time, and even though the rain had slowed, decided it was too wet to go forward with the Paul Revere and the Raiders concert. A short time later officials decided to call of the night sky fireworks (over Lake Charlevoix) for the night. Arnold Amusements also closed up shop for the night around 8 p.m. after sitting idle for several hours.

That set into motion the plan devised earlier in the day: The Lake Charlevoix fireworks would now take place on Saturday following the lighted boat parade and the harbor fireworks in Round Lake would take place on Sunday, extending the festival's events by a day.

The change in schedules was announced via multiple websites and Facebook pages including the festival's, the city's, the chamber of commerce's and the Charlevoix Courier's and Petoskey News-Review's.

Barron explained a few of the decisions that were made regarding the fireworks and the rain.

— First, he said that even though it had stopped raining more than an hour before the scheduled fireworks show time Friday, the decision had to be made sooner because of the amount of time it takes to move the barge from Ironton to Depot Beach and to arm the fireworks shells. He said for the fireworks show to have taken place Friday it would have either had to take place sometime after midnight, or crews would have risked losing up to half of the shells by trying to arm them in the rain.

— Secondly, he said that shooting the Round Lake show on Saturday after the boat parade as planned and the Lake Charlevoix show on Sunday, or shooting both shows at the same time on Saturday was not feasible. First, only one barge and tug was available and even if another one was available, there wouldn't be enough law enforcement resources available to maintain the necessary safety zones around both sites. He said trading out one show for the other would not have only been very time consuming, but would also have been very dangerous.

"Safety always has to be our number one concern," Barron said.

Word of the changes apparently got out well enough, Barron said, noting that, despite temperatures that struggled to reach the low 60s in the middle of the day, Saturday night still drew good crowds, both in the downtown and to Ferry Beach and Depot Beach to watch the fireworks.

In the meantime, more plans came together for the "bonus" festival day on Sunday. Most of the food vendors agreed to stay open for the additional day, Arnold Amusements held over its carnival rides for another day and local entertainer Chris Martin was booked for a last minute gig to provide entertainment in the East Park pavilion on Sunday.

But as Sunday wore on, again the weather decided not to cooperate when a fairly localized line of showers settled in over Charlevoix making things cool and damp once again. The rain stopped for about two hours prior to the fireworks show — long enough to draw some people to East Park. But then the rain started again shortly before the fireworks started making for a bright but soggy end to the festival.

Barron said in the 15 years since the current organization has been in charge of the festival, this year was the most the weather has impacted the festivities. It was also the first time in that period that a fireworks show had to be rescheduled. Still, the board was pleased, not only with the number of people who showed up even with the bad weather days at the end of the week, but also in how well the volunteers, city and public safety officials worked together to adjust to the changing schedule.

He said the weather hiccups did add to the festival's costs, but with the strong attendance at the carnival rides and vendor sales, he said the added costs won't likely have a big impact on the festival's bottom line.

Barron said the board was also encouraged by the way the festival continues to slowly evolve. He pointed to the continually increasing participation in the Venetian games and kids day (which drew around 1,000 participants) and the development of events away from East Park that help lessen the pressure on the downtown area, as other positive signs for the festival's future.

City police chief Gerard Doan reported no major problems or incidents during the week.

would line the same route along U.S. 31 from one end of the city to the other.

Boss explained Wednesday that the baskets are the same design as the roughly 80 baskets that are spread throughout the downtown, East Park and Bridge Park and that the poles are designed so the baskets hang at roughly the same height.

The basket plan, if ultimately implemented, calls for the baskets to be spaced about every 50 feet along the route, alternating sides and staggered so that there would be a basket on one side of the road or the other every 25 feet. Of course some adjustments to those distances will have to be made to accommodate streets, driveways, fire hydrants, and trees and other structures that could interrupt the pattern.

(For earlier stories, Wilkin told the Courier that the baskets would be spaced every 100 feet on each side of the road and staggered by 50 feet per side, but he said he recently learned from Boss the plan is actually for half those distances.)

The six poles and baskets Boss and Wilkin put up Wednesday just south of Hurlbut Street are to serve as an example to allow the community, city leaders and the organization's leadership to see how such a display would look.
